Inflammable, Insurance Have Women Courage? News for Jenghis Khan Hitler's Vow

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc., International copyright and all other rights reserved.

At least 14 dead, many hurt, in a wooden hotel fire at Lakewood, N. J.; five were killed, 38 injured, in a New York Chinese restaurant at a dinner for men and women of the Holy Name Society.

If insurance on fires, originating in dangerous fire traps, tenements, inflammable hotels and restaurants, were made illegal, would there be so many fires? Would not proprietors take greater precautions if their money were at stake, in a fire?

Mother St. Alphonse, 49, head of the Villa Maria convent, at Montreal, is dying, following a fire in the convent. She saved the lives of many young girls in the building, guiding them to safety in their night gowns, not letting them delay.

Then she returned to conduct a room-to-room search for others, and was severely burned. Men who think women do not equal them in courage are mistaken.

A maniac, with a razor in his hand, seized Dolores, two-year-old daughter of Mrs. Betty Dyson, cut the child's wrist and carried her into a bathroom. The mother smashed the glass door, turned the lock, overpowered the maniac, razor and all. That's another case of a woman not lacking courage.

Jenghis Khan, Tartar invader of Western Europe, died, his corpse was carried deep into some great, mysterious forest and buried by his warriors. To keep the spot secret, every human being met on the way was butchered. It would interest Jenghis Khan, dead more than 700 years, to know of "Mongolian airmen bombing Manchukuoans."

The Mongolians were his men, following him, helping him to build great pyramids of human skulls. Little did he imagine that they would ever change from slow long-haired ponies to flying machines. He would have liked to lead a flying army; terrific speed and impetuosity in attack marked his conquests.

A young Jew, Yugoslavian, not German, murdered, unfortunately, a Nazi propagandist, who was alleged to be stirring up hatred of Jews in Switzerland. Chancellor Hitler, standing beside the corpse, says he accepts the "challenge of murder," and "not Germany, but the Jewish race, which is responsible, will be weakened by the facts."

What about innumerable murders of defenseless Jews in Germany, outnumbered 100 to 1?

The unfortunate indication is that further anti-Jewish outrages will be ignored, if, not actually encouraged, in Germany.

Universal Service says the government considers "an ultra-streamlined metal-finished dirigible, capable of 100 miles an hour."

It would be a pity to admit that Germans can run an old dirigible across the Atlantic for years successfully while this country can't even make a new one. President Roosevelt might order one really great dirigible, able to carry a small plane beneath it as a mother kangaroo carries her baby.

The biggest dirigible in the world, with two biggest American flags painted on either side, carrying passengers and mail across the North Atlantic, would cheer many.

Jane H. Todd, intelligent young New York legislator, opposing the modern "gin marriages" suggests postponement of marriage for seventy-two hours after a license is issued. This, she thinks, would give the effects of gin an opportunity to wear off. That seems reasonable.

To change "marriages are made in Heaven" to "marriages are made in a gin bottle" seems a too sudden transition.

Helene Mayer, young German-born Jewess, on board the Bremen, bound for the Olympic games, says:

"I'm going as a sportswoman, not a politician."

If she is at her best, she will beat all Germany's so-called "Aryans," and that will be more useful than staying here. Her "sport," fencing, calls for every physical quality: speed, strength, eyesight, balance, accuracy, nervous energy.

The League of Nations says it cannot "curb Italy" in three and a half months as it might do, unless with the co-operation of the United States. The League wants America to sell no oil to Italy, although various League members are selling to Mussolini industriously.

The business of this country is to keep out of war and build its own prosperity.

COURT RULES 'VETS FIRST' ON WPA JOBS

Philadelphia, Feb. 14 (INS)—A precedent-setting decision affecting all PWA, WPA and other government projects in the administration's $4,000,000,000 work relief program in this district was handed down here today.

Federal Judge George A. Welsh decreed that honorably discharged World War veterans, their wives or widows are entitled to preference over all others in employment on government work projects.

The decision, the first anywhere in the nation to establish the status of veterans and their families, applies specifically to this federal court district. Its effect, however, may become nation-wide, because it affects the general employment program of Harry Hopkins, the administration's relief chief.

PROJECTS FACE TIEUP

The decision may tie up all federal projects in this area until the

5000 BATTLE SNOW, SHIPS ASK AID

Boston bowed its head under one of the worst storms of the winter today, as a northeast wind, accompanying swirling, sticky snow, increased steadily in intensity and attained proportions of a full gale off the coast.

One ship was reported sinking off Nantucket lightship, where the wind was 75 miles an hour.

An oil tanker in the ice in Long Island Sound, also sent out distress signals.

The Coast Guard cutters, Algonquin and Champlain, were sent to her aid but were making little headway. Hope was virtually abandoned for the boat, a fishing vessel, identity of which has not been determined.

3,000 HIRED

Five thousand shovelers attacked the snow on Boston streets. The WPA authorities lent the services of 3000 men, the welfare department supplied 1200 and the public works department had 800 regular employes on the job, besides 125 trucks and wagons and 185 plows.

All State House employes who could be spared were dismissed at 3 o'clock by order of Acting Governor Joseph L. Hurley. The order applied to those at the public works building, also.

Some of the large department stores and commercial concerns let their employes start home at an early hour.

Tonight's classes of the State University Extension courses were cancelled.

Storm casualties included:

10 Under Isolation As Spinal Carriers

Dr. Karl Bailey of the Boston Health Department, with the aid of five other physicians, today completed examining 1000 of the inmates at Long Island Hospital in an attempt to segregate spinal meningitis carriers.

Ten inmates have been isolated and will be examined twice a day for 15 days.

More than a thousand patients and employes at the island remain to be examined. Dr. Bailey hopes to finish the tests sometime early next week.

Trains Run Late in Storm

These were the reports of transportation services late this afternoon.

For Commuters going North and West: The Boston & Maine railroad reported that trains would leave on their regular schedule with no cars added or removed. Reported no trouble with storm.

For commuters going south and west: The New Haven Railroad admitted that the storm might reasonably cause some slight disruption from normal service and suggested commuters arrive at South Station a little early. Schedules will be unchanged. Probably no cars added.

For commuters going to Lynn, Revere Beach and Winthrop: The Narrow Gauge reported no difficulty has been encountered in maintaining schedules, which will be adhered to as usual.

For Elevated users: Schedules as usual.

AGED FOLK VICTIMIZED CHARGE

Washington, Feb. 14 (INS)—Charges that heads of the Townsend old-age pension movement have pocketed hundreds of thousands of dollars were laid before the House rules committee today by Rep. C. Jasper Bell (D.), Missouri.

He appealed to the committee to sanction a congressional investigation of the Townsend and other old-age pension movements.

After also hearing Representative Ferguson (D.), Oklahoma, urge an inquiry the committee called another meeting for Monday.

Reading from letters from persons formerly connected with the Townsend plan, statements of officers and other documents, Bell alleted the money-making possibilities of the plan as including:

Six million club members claimed, initiation fee 25 cents each.

Dues to Oarp, Ltd., 10 cents a month.

Sale of Townsend Weekly, 5 cents a copy.

Sale of buttons at 10 cents each.

Photos of Dr. F. E. Townsend, sponsor of the plan, 50 cents to $5.

Sale of copies of McGroarty bill at 25 cents each.

Automobile stickers 10 cents each.

Sale of Townsend medallions $1 each.

Question and answer books, 25 cents each.

COOLIDGE WILL FIGHT CURLEY

Washington, Feb. 14 (AP)—Senator Marcus Coolidge of Massachusetts today gave the first inkling that he would resist attempts of Governor Curley to capture the Democratic senatorial nomination this year.

He disclosed he was delaying acceptance of an invitation to a Curley Club dinner in Fitchburg until the present function of the club was made known.

Coolidge said he had been invited to attend the dinner, but before accepting wanted to know if the club now was a "Curley-for-Governor" or "Curley-for-Senator" organization.

Curley already has announced he would be a candidate for the Senate, while Coolidge has not announced whether he would seek re-election.

"I was very active in 1934," Coolidge said, "in the primary campaign in behalf of Curley and of my son-in-law, Robert Greenwood, who was re-elected mayor of Fitchburg.

"Incidentally Curley won in Fitchburg by 2500 votes, a very complimentary vote for that city."

Father Sees Boy Crushed to Death

Lawrence, Feb. 14—Before the horrified gaze of his father, George Bergeron, 16, of Kingston street, South Lawrence, was crushed to death in the Monomac mill here today.

He was caught between the heavy carrier and another part of the machinery in the mule spinning room.

He is believed to have leaned too far forward to tie a knot.

Bergeron had worked only a week, authorities said. His father, Alphonse, was employed in the same room.

Napkin Mark Baby Clue

"Qtre-3."

These cryptic marks may lead police to the person who abandoned a blonde, blue-eyed baby daughter in a Chelsea hallway on the eve of February's first blizzard.

Police, searching the blankets, clothing and every other source of information about Chelsea's "perfect" baby, found only that a small laundry mark on the border of a napkin pinned about the child.

But whether her parents are found or not, the infant will not be nameless. The nurses attended to that today.

They called her Valentina, in honor of Dan Cupid's day.

She was found in the hallway of a house in Chestnut street, Chelsea. It was a hasty abandonment, according to the theory of investigators.

A resident of the house who passed through the hall a moment before Mrs. Sally Bravenicle found the infant said no bundle had been there.

But, hasty as it was, the mother, or whoever left Valentina, took time enough to pin the blankets carefully about her, and to set her gently on the floor near a radiator.

NEW TAX BILL READY IN WEEK

Washington, Feb. 14 (INS)—President Roosevelt hopes the new tax bill, to raise $500,000,000 or $600,000,000 in place of the outlawed processing taxes, will be ready for Congress next week, he said at his press conference today.

He added, however, he had been so busy with other matters he had not given the tax situation much consideration, leaving it in congressional hands.

W. Curtis Bok Sworn as Judge

Philadelphia, Feb. 14 (AP)—W. Curtis Bok, son of the late Edward W. Bok, magazine editor, was sworn in today as a judge of the Orphans' Court. He will serve under the governor's appointment until the first Monday in January, 1938. He succeeds the late Judge George Henderson.

Snow Shovel Row Sends 2 To Hospital

Worcester, Feb. 14—A snowfight, ending with two of the participants in City Hospital and the third in jail, brought two of the freak casualties of today's storm.

Mrs. Victoria Buden, 44, of 17 Taylor street, may have a fractured skull, hospital authorities say. John Yezsinski, 47, of the same address, although not seriously hurt, suffered severe head injuries, and Gus Linawik, 40, of Providence street, is held on charges of drunkenness.

The three were visiting in Mrs. Buden's kitchen when the men entered into an argument over who was the best snow shoveler.

CITY PUTS 5000 TO WORK AS STORM SWEEPS N. E.

SCHOOLS CLOSED, TRAFFIC IMPEDED, SHIPPING HIT

Boylston and Hemenway streets, Back Bay.

O'BRIEN, LAURA, 45, of 15 Elton street, Dorchester: cuts and bruises. City Hospital. Slipped on escalator at Broadway subway station, South Boston.

MONCEVICS, WILLIAM, 22, of 69 Florence street, Brockton: compound fracture of left ankle; Haymarket Relief Station. Slipped in front of 248 North street, North End, while carrying a large drum of oil, which fell on him.

North of Boston the storm was more severe and schools were closed in numerous localities, including Lawrence, Methuen and North Andover. In Greater Boston a number of cities and towns called off the afternoon sessions.

A serious tieup of trolley service occurred on the Harvard square-Watertown line when a slow tore up a rail on Mt. Auburn street, Watertown. After an hour and 15 minutes an emergency crew had a new rail in place and service was resumed.

Cars were lined up for a long distance along Mt. Auburn street and the blockade was reflected on the Massachusetts avenue line.

Coast Guards at the Wood End station, Provincetown, reported that huge sections of the Cape Cod Bay ice field, on which seven CCC youths nearly lost their lives this week, were breaking off and sweeping toward Plymouth, propelled by the gale.

Drift ice extends out from the shore of Provincetown Harbor to a distance of about a quarter of a mile. Coast Guards are working continually, cutting channels to the wharves, so that fishing boats can find refuge if a switch in the wind turns the ice pack in this direction.

Railroad officials issued a public announcement advising commuters to leave for home early. Otherwise they may be greatly delayed. The snow was sticky and was threatening to clog switches and raise havoc with suburban schedules.

Trains from New York and the West were in some cases one to three hours late.

PREDICTS RAIN

The weather forecaster predicted a change to rain, with a maximum snowfall of four inches, but that mark was exceeded without any change. As the afternoon wore on, conditions were becoming bad for automobile traffic. The going was harder than in the deeper snow of the January storm.

Weather Forecaster Harold G. Noyes sent an assistant to the Common at 1:30 to measure the snowfall, and he reported four and a half inches.

While all communities in the South Shore area closed the schools this afternoon, the pupils in Hull voted to brave the storm for the sake of Valentine parties.

The fishing schooner, Natalie Hammond, with 20 men and a large catch of fish aboard, was towed to the Fish Pier after having been in collision last night off Cape Ann with the freighter Malton.

The storm was raging all the way from Atlantic City to Boston and beyond, and the wind was increasing in force hourly.

Drifts blocked many suburban and country highways.

The unidentified vessel in distress off Nantucket lightship was reported to the Coast Guard by the Radio Corporation of America, which received its information by radio from the lightship.

The lightship reported the vessel, between one and two miles astern of her, had signaled by blinkers that she was in distress and sinking.

The lightship radioed Coast Guard headquarters this afternoon that it had not sighted the sinking schooner since 6:15 a. m. The lightship's lookouts could not see more than three miles. The snow has turned to a driving rain.

The Algonquin radioed it would reach the vicinity by mid-afternoon.

The Cutter Champlain, this afternoon, was off Fire Island, 150 miles from the lightship, and making only five knots, one-third of her normal speed. The gale was described as terrific, and the cutter was trying to plow almost directly into it.

The Natalie Hammond was towed to Finn's Ledge at the entrance to Boston Harbor by the Coast Guard cutter Thetis and from that point was towed to the Fish Pier by the towboat Betsy Ross.

Val Joseph, 55, of Gloucester, suffered the only injury from the crash. Immediately after the collision occurred he climbed the rigging and fell 25 feet to the deck. He was taken to Chelsea Marine Hospital.

The cutter Cayuga radioed she had taken aboard Captain Patrick McHugh and the other 10 men of the crew of the dragger Gertrude M. Faucl, which sank off Cape Sable, N. S., Wednesday night.

The transfer was effected from the Canadian trawler Lemberg which picked up the 11 men from the Faucl.

The Cayuga is expected to reach Boston with the survivors early tomorrow.

Six inches of snow fell in six hours this forenoon in the vicinity of Concord, N. H.

In western Massachusetts the storm was fast burying main highways. The weather station at Massachusetts State College, Amherst, announced a snowfall of six inches at noon, with a total fall this winter of nearly 38 inches, or six inches more than at this time last year.

ROADS OPENED

The state department of public works was working desperately to keep highways open, with good progress reported early this afternoon.

Five inches of snow was reported in the Worcester area, three to five inches around Taunton and Fall River, and three to four inches along Cape Cod.

Snow was still falling, however, all over the state, except in the southeastern section, below Wareham, where it was a mixture of sleet, rain and hail.

Squire road, Revere, was reported impassable by the state department, but announcement was made that it would be plowed out as soon as equipment could be spared, although this is not a state highway.

Distress blasts from the siren of an unidentified tanker, caught in the ice near the mouth of Hempstead Harbor, Long Island, N. Y., called the cutter Comanche to her aid.

Coastguardsmen were also trying to reach the tanker in surfboats through the ice floes.

Nation Experiences Everything But Heat

By Associated Press

Virtually every form of atmospheric and climatic disturbance except a heat wave plagued some part of the northern hemisphere today.

The elements dealt body blows with wind storms on land and sea, dust storms in the southwest, snow, hail, sleet and rainstorms in various parts of the United States, earthquakes in Montana, fires fanned by winds, transportation hampered, and threatened floods.

Epidemics followed in the wake of storms. A Hollywood movie company was isolated high in the Sierras and several members of the troupe were ill with influenza.

Montana reported a "moderate" earthquake in the western part of the state.

Dust storms struck parts of Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, Colorado and Kansas. Cold winds dropped temperatures from 50 degrees to zero. Visibility in places was limited to 50 feet.

Estimates of weather deaths for the last 48 hours were set at 35 in the United States.

Another cold wave advanced today upon the nation.

Chicago and Pittsburgh had midnight temperatures of 38 and 35 respectively but out of the northwest headed a new wintry blasts which had driven the mercury below zero all across Nebraska and to south Iowa at —31 at Dickinson, N. D., —18 at Alexandrie, Minn., and —20 at Fargo, N. D.

There was general snow over the east with temperatures of 15 to 20 above. A heavy sleet storm fell in New York City, where 21 were injured as 32,000 fought to keep the streets open.

At least a foot of snow was expected in southern Maine, according to officials at the Portland weather station, who predicted clearing tomorrow, with more snow tomorrow night.

Dinner Waits Rescuers

Mt. Washington, Mass., Feb. 14 (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Houghtling, snowbound in their home for two weeks, cooked a boiled dinner today for the CCC boys who shoveled them out.

The boys, from a camp at Copake, N. Y., shoveled away 15-foot drifts which surrounded the Houghtling home.

When the boys reached the door they were invited in for dinner.

"I'll Limp on the Stage"

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

A mysterious back injury, which sent her to Trumbull Hospital in Brookline, threatened for a time to cut short the stage career of Miss Doris Dudley, 18, who has a role in "End of Summer." However, she declared today she will play in the New York opening Monday even if she has to hobble on crutches.

Doris Dudley Hurt But Will Stay in Show

True to stage tradition that "the show must go on," Miss Doris Dudley, member of the "End of Summer" company and victim of a serious spinal injury, today insisted she would open with the show in New York, Monday night.

Suffering from a dislocated vertabrae, Miss Dudley stated from her bed at Trumbull Hospital:

"I'll open with the show in New York on Monday night if I have to go on the stage with crutches!

"All the king's horses won't be able to keep me off!"

She scoffed at the idea that the injury was a threat to her stage career.

"I can't let the show down, and I can't let myself down. This is the last play I'm to do before I go to the coast and into the movies, so it's important."

Miss Dudley had a visitor—Sydney Kingsley, author of "Dead End" and purported fiance of the pretty actress.

She is still unable to account for the injury that came upon her so suddenly.

3 BOYS GUILTY IN BREAK

Three Cambridge youths, one of whom was shot while fleeing after an attempted break into a North Cambridge store, pleaded guilty in East Cambridge court today.

They were held for the grand jury in $2500 each.

America Ladetto, 18, of Clifton street, the youth who was shot in the thigh, had sufficiently recovered to make his court appearance.

His companions, acted at their homes, were booked as Felix Sartori, 18, of Jackson street, and John Falcone, 18, of Clifton street.

The trio pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and attempted larceny.

Ladette was shot by Patrolman Roy G. Hughes after he and his companions had refused to halt the officer's repeated warnings to stop.

Nazis and Antis Riot, 5 Wounded

Free City of Danzig, Feb. 14 (AP)—Four Nazis and one anti-Nazi were in hospitals today with wounds following a riot in Pihnendorf.

The riot broke out at a German Nationalist meeting which also was attended by Socialists and Communists.

4 'MUST' BILLS ARE HEADED BY WORK RELIEF

Washington, Feb. 14 (INS)—President Roosevelt's "desired" legislative program for 1936 was steadily taking final shape today with indications it would all be in the hands of Congress by March 15.

Administration officials, aided by House and Senate spokesmen, were working overtime to whip into acceptable form the proposals upon which Mr. Roosevelt wants action at this session in addition to routine appropriation bills.

It appeared there were only four major matters upon which the White House hopes for favorable action before adjournment. They are:

1—An appropriation for continuing work-relief during the next fiscal year, starting July 1. Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Works Progress Administrator Hopkins have indicated about two billion dollars more would be needed to carry the unemployed.

NEED NEW TAXES

2—Substitute taxes to replace the outlawed AAA processing taxes to finance the administration's substitute program. This is estimated around $700,000,000 may be asked. By direction of the President, heads of lending and spending agencies are now trying to effect additional budget economies to partly offset this requirement made necessary by the Supreme Court's adverse AAA decision.

3—A coordinated Federal housing program designed to carry on slum clearance on a loan-and-grant basis and simultaneously encourage construction of small homes in such fashion private enterprise may benefit.

4—Elimination of the present indirect ocean mail subsidy of the merchant marine in favor of a direct construction and operating subsidy.

NEW INFLATION DRIVE

House inflationists renewed their drive today on the President's advisers sought to complete a tax program.

Rep. Patman (D) of Texas, announced he would circulate a petition to discharge the House rules committee from consideration of a bill to pay the $2,400,000,000 soldiers' bonus in new currency.

His plan is to obtain signatures of 218 members to force a vote on the measure. It would be amended to provide for payment of the bonus in new money backed by the gold and silver in the treasury.

WAR VETS FIRST, JUDGE RULES

case is ultimately settled by higher courts.

Meanwhile, it will force relief chiefs here to make drastic changes in existing regulations for the employment of personnel on the jobs, outside of executive and administrative positions.

Judge Welsh's ruling was rendered in a test case filed by Benjamin J. Spang, a Philadelphia veteran, who was refused a job on a WPA business census because he is not on the relief rolls.

The jurist's decision contained a stinging rebuke to the government bureau for interpreting President Roosevelt's proclamation for relief work to exempt veterans from preferences.

ISSUES WRIT

Judge Welsh's order issues an injunction against the WPA officials here, restraining them from paying out compensation to anyone on their work rolls, or employing anyone, unless the veterans, their wives or their widows are granted preferential status.

Relief bureau, counsel for Spang charged, refused to give jobs to veterans not on relief because they contended the works relief program was to ease unemployment and poverty by giving jobs to persons on relief rolls regardless of whether they saw war service.

"We think the veterans' preference laws were intended to cover all classes of employment in the executive department and that work relief must be incident," the district court ruling stated.

"The preferential status given to veterans is not to be considered in the nature of a gratuity.

"This statute was conferred by an appreciative government upon men (and women) who had rallied to their country's service in wars in behalf of American ideals and aspirations."

2 Postoffice Doors Broken

A gale of wind, sweeping through Postoffice square today, blew two large doors on the street floor of the Federal building ajar with such force the glass was shattered. The crash of the doors and falling glass caused a stir in the parcel post room of the postoffice.

Italians Admit One Defeat

London, Feb. 14 (AP)—An increase of action on the southern war front in Ethiopia was indicated today by Italian and Ethiopian communiques.

Three sharp battles, embracing two Italian victories and one defeat, were reported in the official war communique of Rome.

The advices, relayed by Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commander-in-chief on the northern front, said:

"On the Somaliland front, near Bulloi on the Genfro River, our detachment surprised an Ethiopian detachment retreating from Lama Scillindi and destroyed it, capturing arms almost entirely of British manufacture.

"On the Dawa River, our auto truck column attacked an enemy detachment near the wells of Bubu, Dibdih, 80 kilometers southwest of Negheli, inflicted losses and dispersed them.

"Considerable Ethiopian forces Feb. 10 attacked our observation post of 60 dubats Curati, northwest of Gerlogubi, in Ogaden Province, and overwhelmed them after the most stubborn resistance."

Ras Desta Demtu, commander of the Ethiopian forces in the south, reported to his government in Addis Ababa from Sidamo that 650 Eritrean troops of the Italian forces had surrendered to him.

He stated that 300 more "announced their intention of surrendering, but it seems they took the wrong road and it is feared they are lost."

Italian Bombers Kill Five, on Way to Dessye

Dessye, Ethiopia, Feb. 4 (INS)—Italian airplanes, en route to Dessye today for their "daily bombing," bombarded a village in the Mertheyeesu district, killing five persons, including three children, according to advices reaching Ethiopian headquarters here.

At the same time, also en route to Dessye, field headquarters of Emperor Haile Selassie, they were subjected to a bitter anti-aircraft fire, and it appeared one was struck for it headed northward toward its base.

TALMADGE HAILED IN FLOOD OF SPEAKING REQUESTS

By CARTER BROOKE JONES
Universal Service Correspondent

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 14 (US)—When Governor Eugene Talmadge is back at his office today, after his address at the Lincoln Day ceremonies at Springfield, Ill., he found his desk piled high with congratulatory messages and invitations to speak in various parts of the country.

He was especially commended for his dramatic utterance:

"Would that we had a man like Lincoln in the White House today."

The Georgia chief executive was pleased with the reception Springfield gave him when he, in what was virtually a joint debate with Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, tore the "New Deal" to shreds and called for a return to constitutional government.

The governor said it would be impossible to accept all the invitations, but that he hoped to visit the Far West later, although he has made no definite plans.

IN PEORIA FEB. 22

His will deliver an address in Peoria, Ill., February 22, Washington's Birthday and may make other speeches at distant dates.

"I am grateful," he said, for these friendly invitations and will accept as many as I can."

Asked about the federal indictment against Alex S. Howell, state school supervisor and brother of Hugh Howell, Democratic state chairman, for alleged use of WPA workers to mail out an anti-Roosevelt publication and for assertedly falsifying their time records, the governor said:

"Assuming the charges are true, aren't those persons equally guilty who spent relief funds to decorate the Georgia Tech Stadium and buy nine miles of rope for a political speech which President Roosevelt made here in November?"

CUTES HEFLIN VISIT

"Why, they brought relief workers from Savannah at the expense of the taxpayers and had them cash their relief checks at Rose Garden, near here, to swell the crowd.

"Aren't they equally guilty in sending Tom Heflin to visit Methodist conferences to make political speeches at the taxpayers' expense?"

Alabama's former senator was sent on a speaking tour recently, for the Federal Housing Administration.

Governor Talmadge added:

"It all depends on whose ox is being gored."

The governor brought back as a souvenir a miniature replica of the log cabin in which Lincoln was born, the gift of Governor Henry Horner of Illinois.

$17,000 HOLDUP SUSPECTS FREE

Members of the newly formed "Triple S" police squad seized three New Yorkers and a Boston man today for questioning in connection with the recent $17,000 holdup at the United Drug offices, Forsyth street, Roxbury.

The men were arrested at the point of shotguns after a Triple S squad car had chased them through Bowdoin street, Dorchester, for nearly a mile.

When police finally forced the car to the curbing they were amazed to find it being operated by a Boston man who has a long record as a safe cracker.

Failure of victims of recent robberies to identify any of them or 15 others rounded up as suspicious persons during the night caused the release of all.

VIEW BOY IN MORNING

Holyoke, Feb. 14—"Find out how your boy friend looks in the morning and you will know if you are in love" was the advice of Professor Samuel Hayes, Mount Holyoke College psychology department head, in the third of a series of seven lectures in the School for Marriage here.

Professor Hayes spoke on the subject, "Falling in Love Intelligently," and dealt with the value of matrimony, psychology of marriage, technique of courting and marriage, petting, length of courtship and the need of children for successful wedded life.

Some 250 young women and men—the women outnumbering the men by four to one—attended the lecture in the Second Congregational Church under the direction of the pastor, the Reverend Moses R. Lovell.

Traps for Men

Professor Hayes told of a student at Mount Holyoke who gave him as the qualifications necessary for a young woman to attract men, an attractive appearance, bright clothes, pleasantness and graciousness, a sense of humor and an interest in many things.

He said the same student asked him the best way to bring a slow suitor to the point and that he replied there were several methods, best of which was household ability.

He told his hearers to make themselves intellectually interesting.

Marriage, he said, was not for childish people and young couples should be sure they will find peace and response in one another's company before they are wed.

Children Vital

Engaged couples, he declared, should discuss their problems and be sure they agree, particularly on the question of children. He pointed out also that no marriage is complete without children.

Belief that looks were important should also be abolished, he declared, and he expressed the opinion that homely girls were often the most interesting.

Girls should also learn to use emotional control and should not use emotional expressions to gain their ends, he asserted.

Miss Flick Of Sports Fame to Wed

MARGOT FLICK

Miss Margot Flick, noted society sportswoman of Lenox, New York, and Richard Sanford Hoffman, New York writer, are to be married tonight, according to an announcement received here.

Miss Flick, who was introduced to society both in New York and Philadelphia, is the daughter of Mrs. R. Jay Flick.

She has played polo as the only feminine member of the Pittsfield, Mass., four, pilots her own plane and owns the Knollton Kennels.

Hoffman, who was divorced from Betty Barber Hoffman of Stockbridge in 1934, is a graduate of Williams College.

HEIR Must Pay DANCER

HARLEM GIRL WINS $40,000

By JAMES WHITTAKER

Copyright, 1936, by Boston Evening American and N. Y. Mirror.

New York, Feb. 14—It is the sort of thing which could not happen to a MacMartin of the Canadian and British Empire MacMartins.

It couldn't possibly happen, so it did.

It happened $40,000 worth. That was the award made yesterday by a social registerite sheriff's jury to Annastean Haines, comely colored lass of a Harlem night club crew, following a strictly private hearing of her complaint. Her attorney was the socially prominent Herbert C. Smythe.

Her complaint was that, one night in July, as she sat beside Duncan MacMartin in the well-known Rolls Royce roadster, speeding up Fifth avenue through the grey dawn, the thing that sometimes happens to drivers happened to MacMartin.

She was flung far and wide from the Rolls Royce known to every club doorman in town as symbol of the $10,000-a-week income of the scion of the man who discovered Canada's Big Hollinger gold mine.

The auto struck a parked car and came to a shuddering, sliding stop.

"My clothing caught in a door handle and I was dragged nearly a block along Fifth avenue and 59th street," the entertainer told.

The accident of last July 5th came just two weeks before young MacMartin's marriage by elopement July 18 to nordic blonde Lillian Kenton.

No Defense

Lillian yesterday signalized the end of six brief months of marriage to the Canadian by filing suit for divorce in Reno. She charged cruelty.

The list of jurors who found the award for Miss Haines reads like the roster of one of MacMartin's own clubs:

James O. Stack, director of Vincent Astor's St. Regis, the Ritz-Carlton, and other hotels.

Conrad N. Pitcher, director Wright Lumber Co.

Albert Keller, president Ritz-Carlton Corporation.

Robert C. Fulton, vice-president Ashforth & Co.

George Crouch.

John V. D. Cornell of Industries Development Corp.

Thomas B. Leonard of Moore, Leonard and Lynch, a Social Registerite and Harvard man.

Charles D. Draper, partner of H. N. Whitney, former president of the New York Stock Exchange, Social Registerite.

J. J. Onativia, Jr., socialite and Harvard grad and Hugh R. Roden, A. J. Miner and William F. Lamb.

The occasion for the unusual sitting of a sheriff's jury in Annastean Haines' personal damage case is the fact that the suit was undefended. Filed on Feb. 1 in Supreme Court, it brought no contest of the alleged facts by MacMartin's attorneys.

Not Smiling Now—And Not Together!

(Picture from International News Photograph Service.)

When they were honeymooning at Saratoga, N. Y., a scant half dozen months ago, wealthy Duncan MacMartin and his bride, former artist's model Lillian Kenton, had these happy smiles for the cameraman and for each other. Now MacMartin is in New York—and Mrs. MacMartin is at Reno. And if they're smiling at all, it isn't at each other. Mrs. MacMartin's divorce suit charges cruelty.

CENTURY Soon for LIVES

DOCTOR SEES LONG SPAN

New York, Feb. 14 (US)—By sharpening their senses and leading ascetic lives, our descendents in future generations may achieve "rejuvenation" enabling them to live for centuries.

This prediction was made today by Dr. Alexis Carrel, Nobel prize winner and Rockefeller scientist who, with Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, recently developed a "robot heart" for the carrying on of life in organs separated from the body.

The scientist's beliefs were made public as part of an interview published in the current issue of the American Magazine.

The addition of hundreds of years of life to man's present normal span will not come through gland operations, but rather through development and exercise of dormant inner faculties the modern man is too lazy to use, said Dr. Carrel. He added:

"When we lived without stoves and radiators, our bodies developed the internal heat necessary to carry through the winter. We were able to travel afoot hundreds of miles without fatigue.

"These faculties, so vital to primitive man, are still within us.

"Use them and you will be flooded with power. When you feel drowsy in the evening, fight it off. Do not go to sleep. Make up the sleep some other time, and skip a meal once in a while."

Girl Born To Beatriz Of Spain

INFANTA BEATRIZ

Rome, Feb. 14 (AP)—The Infanta Beatriz gave birth today to a girl, the first grandchild of former King Alfonso of Spain.

A spokesman for the former monarch said both mother and daughter were doing well.

Former Queen Victoria came to Rome recently to be near her daughter, reviving rumors of a reconciliation with Alfonso, which Royalist sources said was being promoted by the Italian royal family, with whom Victoria is staying.

The baby will be named Alessandra Victoria.

Alfonso sent announcements of the birth to the members of his entourage and awaited an opportunity to visit his daughter and see his granddaughter whenever his wife is absent.

Autos Kill 2, Woman Hit By Bus

Two more fatalities as Death Took the Wheel in Greater Boston brought the toll today to 35 victims in this area since the first of the year.

Edward C. Hammond, Jr., 28, of Burnside avenue, West Somerville, crushed between his truck and another after he had aided the driver of the latter out of a snow bank, died last night at Somerville Hospital.

AUTOS HAVE KILLED 35 IN GREATER BOSTON THIS YEAR

The bus slid through a fence before the driver was able to halt its progress.

At Dedham Hospital doctors said Mrs. Bonano was in a critical condition.

In Suffield, Ct., Audrey Ruffin of Lawrence was seriously injured when the beer truck he was driving crashed into the rear of a truck driven by William C. Hart of Lynn.

DARRISH JAILED, HOME BURNS

Bail of $25,000, upon which Julius Darrish convicted last Tuesday of 2nd degree murder, has been at liberty, was revoked today by Judge Thomas H. Dowd in Middlesex Court and Darrish was committed to jail.

Terming the court's action today as another in a series of "bad breaks," Darrish said that last Saturday his home at 320 Everett avenue, Chelsea, burned down.

Monday he was placed on trial, and on Tuesday was convicted and given a mandatory sentence of life imprisonment. He stated that his wife and 9 children are living in a tool shed in his junkyard in Everett.

It was in this junk yard that the crime of which Darrish was convicted occurred. Darrish stabbed Albert E. Gilbert, former ERA worker of Everett, with an ice pick while Gilbert and Edward Thompson of Chelsea were loading an iron table on a cart in Darrish's junk yard.

Thompson, who was stabbed, recovered.

Darrish moved for a new trial and the case was continued until next Tuesday.

150 Perish in Slum Blaze in Tientsin

Tientsin, Feb. 14 (INS)—Charred ruins of the hovels that housed 1300 of Tientsin's poor yielded the bodies of 150 today after flames, fanned by wind, swept through the settlement. The death toll is expected to be much higher.

Dad 'Tickled Pink' at 18th Child

Wildwood, N. J., Feb. 14 (AP)—The arrival of another daughter, which means another mouth to feed, apparently does not daunt William Anderson of 112 West Leaming ave.

"He was tickled pink," said Dr. Margaret Mace, proprietor of a maternity hospital, at the stork's 18th visit yesterday.

The latest addition to the family is a girl, Carolyn. Her lusty cries indicated she was to be no weak sister. Both mother and child were reported doing well.

Sixteen of the 18 children are living and two are married.

Anderson is 47 and his wife 39.

"Father of Legion" Boasts 13th Baby

Easthampton, Feb. 14 (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Edward A. La Plante have a 13th child. A boy born yesterday, the 13th.

In 1924 when the couple had the 12th, Frank N. Belgrano, then national commander of the American Legion, conferred the title "Father of the Legion" on La Plante and informed him he had the largest family of any Legionnaire.

The La Plantes have been married 15 years. Their oldest child is 14. Mr. La Plante is janitor at the Town Hall.

4 'Cheating Ring' Students Ousted

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 14 (AP)—Discharge of four students for running what was termed a cheating "ring" was announced today by the student council of the University of South Carolina as the climax of an inquiry into another Southern campus cheating scandal.

This action followed closely a similar move at the University of North Carolina where 43 students were suspended for cheating.

3 RESCUED IN ATLANTIC FIRE

Two children and a partly blind woman were rescued and four other occupants were driven into the swirling snow today when fire raged in the second floor of a three-story wooden dwelling at Nos. 63-65 Kendall street, Atlantic, today.

William Weydt, occupant of the second floor, who recently returned home from the Quincy Hospital after an operation, discovered the fire.

After warning his wife to notify the family on the first floor, he made his way through the smoke-filled corridor to the apartment on the third floor, occupied by Mrs. Mary Kilpatrick, 58, partly blind. He assisted her to the street.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Curran, occupants of the first floor, carried their two children, Joseph, 4, and Mary, 8, to the street.

Man of 126 Arrests Adds One to Record

Louis Howell, 28, with a record of 126 arrests throughout the country, according gto his own admissions, touched Special Officer John Petitti for a dime in the Back Bay station yesterday.

Today in Back Bay postoffice Howell approached Deputy William Livingston, Special Service Squad leader and immediate superior of Petitti, with a different hard luck story.

Petitti was at the postoffice entrance and before Howell could complete his story he was taken to headquarters and booked on a charge of vagrancy.

Smart-Looking Fingernails

MANICARE

prevents hard, horny cuticles

Slender-looking fingertips, with big half-moons, give the nails real smartness and allure. Chic women now use Courtenay's Manicare because it makes fingertips more interesting.

First: it prevents tight cuticles that cover up the half-moons. It gives you soft, smooth cuticles.

Second: Manicare makes cuticle-cutting unnecessary. Cuticles get hard when cut too much.

Third: Manicare helps prevent brittle nails that split and break.

Fourth: Manicare thoroughly cleans the fingertips and does not disturb polish. Best of all, Manicare is quick, easy and pleasant to apply.

RUSSIANS EAGER TO LEARN OF AMERICAN "SHOOTINGS"

Steven Dzielinski was born in Hartford, Ct., of Polish parents. His father was a Russian Revolutionist in Poland when it was under Czarist rule and had fled to America.

When quite young, Dzielinski joined the Communist Young Pioneers in Hartford and was active there with that organization for many years.

In 1931, when Dzielinski was 16, he set out with his father for Russia, which both believed to be a workers' paradise.

Starvation and terror which Dzielinski witnessed in Russia so broke his health that he returned to the United States in the company of his father.

In his first three articles he described how his youthful conception of a Soviet paradise crumbled before a grim picture of begging and starving Russian peasants and how he found there only chaos.

This is the fourth of the series.

By STEVEN DZIELINSKI

(Copyright 1936 by American Newspapers, Inc.)

The Communist way of running the country dismayed the many Polish workers and peasants who came to the soviet Union full of enthusiasm. The Soviet Government then arranged for a convention to be held at Kiev for the purpose of "enlightening" the Poles.

Kharkow had its Polish Club. My father joined and was elected as one of the delegates. I was permitted to go with my father. This is how I came to spend two months at Kiev.

Steven Dzielinski

The convention itself only lasted three days, in which my father and I were the center of interest because we were from America.

I was persuaded by my father and some of the Kiev delegates to remain in Kiev and go to a Polish institute in that city where I could study under the Polish language which I knew better than Russian. Kiev is a city of colleges and schools — a center of learning. I decided to stay.

My first night was spent at the apartment of Director Sochalski. Here I had good food and the best of drinks. I mentioned to him that it would be a good thing if all the workers could get such good food. He replied that some day they would, but just now it was their duty to suffer for the cause of Socialism.

But I always noticed that high officials seldom suffered for "the cause." They had servants—Mr. Sochalski had two—who waited and kowtowed before them in a way that seemed to me disgraceful in a workers' republic.

The next day I was sent to the Dormitories to live with the rest of the students. I was placed in a pedagogical institute, and was to take up technical mathematics. After completion of my studies I was to tour the villages and teach the peasants.

The Institute was a large building tucked away on the side of a hill. Each room had nine cots, one or two chairs, a table, and nine students.

It was easy for me to make friends with the students because they were so anxious to know about America. This was the one thing that interested me most in Soviet Russia. The great desire of the worker, peasant and student to know the truth about America.

The government told them that workers and farmers in America were starving and ready for a Communist revolution. But the American tourists and workers who came to Russia, well dressed and fed, belied the Communist propaganda.

The students wanted to know from me why people in America stood for the capitalists shooting down hundreds of workers in the streets every day. I told them this tale was slightly exaggerated, that I hadn't seen any workers shot in America.

This confused and confounded a few of them. They whispered among themselves: "Perhaps he is an American patriot or Kulak." (Kulak: Former rich peasant, now meaning anyon opposed to Stalin.)

Americans touring and speaking to Soviet Russia soon came to this understanding and vied with each other in describing the cruelties of the American capitalists toward the workers, thus assuring a safe, pleasant and not too expensive tour around Russia.

Most of the students wished they could go to America. They'd even take a chance of getting shot in the street. Of course, some of them or any worker could leave the country. Very few could get special permission if their friends or relatives in the foreign land could buy their way out with 200 dollars in gold.

I am sure if the border doors were opened by the Russian communists, the population would dwindle by three-fourths. The stampede for foreign lands and the "proletarian misery" that goes with it, would be tremendous. I have heard the statement often from the mouths of scores of Russians.

To be continued in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

U. S. BOY SENT TO RED SCHOOL

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

In between working days, which run to as much as 16 hours each, toilers in the Soviet tractor plant at Kharkov, Russia, are "privileged" to spend their off-duty time in Communist classrooms of this type, where they are expected to absorb the newest and best of Red doctrines. Third from the left in the picture is Steven Dzielinski, one-time Hartford, Ct., youth, who is describing in daily articles in the Boston Evening American conditions in the "Workers' Paradise" as he saw them at first hand.

'Defenseless U. S.' Aim of Soviet in R. O. T. C. Course Attack

For the past five months or more a group of earnest college students have been making a nation-wide survey of the extent and effect of Communism on our institutions of higher education.

In all, more than thirty universities and colleges were actually visited in person or canvassed.

Every effort was made to obtain a calm, unbiased picture of the existing situation.

The following is the sixth of a series of articles setting out the result:

ARTICLE SIX

The anti-war issue provides the magnet for the Young Communist League and its newest fledgling, the American Student Union, with which to pull tens of thousands of liberal students into the sphere of influence of the Communist International, it is shown by the present canvass of the country's leading colleges and universities.

In New York the spearhead of the extremist agitation against the R. O. T. C. (Reserve Officers Training Corps) has long been the City College. The compulsory system has been superseded here by optional military training after a long fight. It is noteworthy that in 1935 City College had one of the largest optional units in the country.

Yet the move changing R. O. T. C. from compulsory to optional is hailed by Communists and "liberals" alike throughout the country as of unusual import, marking the "first conquest" in the campaign to abolish military training in general.

At the moment the campaign is centered around the proposed "Nye-Kvale" amendment to the national defense act, section 40. If passed, it will make the ROTC elective in all universities.

According to the Communist "anti-war" agitators, the passage of this amendment would leave the door open to an unhindered movement towards the complete abolition of military training in American colleges.

Now the defense of the Soviet Union requires a defenseless America. And the American Student Union is out to promote actively the program of the Communist International with the alluring cry: 'Peace!'

Peace Meeting

At Chicago University, the survey group attended a peace meeting held in the university chapel last November 3. There was a capacity crowd of students and faculty members.

The extremist student groups had planned an agitation demonstration of their own. But a compromise plan for a general meeting was finally agreed upon. The left-wingers were represented by one of their leaders, Quentin Ogren, who resorted to a clever device while on the platform.

"I cannot administer the Oxford oath (of non-support of the government in the event of war), because the university will not let me," Ogren declared. "But I can and will repeat it for you and those of you who wish to can agree in it mentally."

Trick stunts are found to have been staged by the Communists throughout the country ever since 1934. A typical incident occurred in Seattle when the University of Washington Extremists joined an American Legion parade in a truck covered with patriotic signs.

In the center of the town, the placards were turned over to flaunt slogans against the Legion and calling upon citizens to "fight against war." Since nobody wants war, the stunt is offered as proof by progressive students that the Communists were interested in agitation only.

There were many such incidents, sometimes accompanied by minor riots, in colleges in the Dakotas, Massachusetts, New York, California, Illinois, Wisconsin, Georgia and New Hampshire. The survey finds that only the Harvard men, during the first anti-war strike in 1934, found an effective weapon of opposition—ridicule.

The Harvard Crimson announced on the morning of the strike the arrival of the "Michael Mullins Marching and Chowder Club." Attired in quaint fashion, marching in goose-step formation and using mock Nazi salutes, the "Michael Mullins" men invaded the meeting of the extremists and turned the whole affair into a joke.

Dumped Into Lake

More serious were the reactions in the University of Wisconsin and the Michigan State College to the local "anti-war" meetings. In the first case, four extremists were dumped into the lake; and in the second case, the Reverend Marley, Ann Arbor, and four students were similarly bathed in a nearby river.

These isolated acts of violence played into the hands of the Communists who are only too eager to denounce them as signs of Fascism. Anybody who is opposed to a student strike on any campus survey finds is quickly branded a Fascist. If there are no Fascists on the American campus, they must be invented for agitation.

Reason is the last resort of the Communists. They are interested in cultivating trouble on which they thrive, in promoting reaction which serves their end.

"To organize a strike against war is to show a strange lack of sense of humor, for the strike itself is a form of war," declared Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler in 1935.

Strike Effective

The student strike, the survey has shown, promotes these objectives. As Joseph P. Lash, one of the guiding spirits of the American Student Union, has publicly stated it:

"Everyone recognizes a strike as the most intensive form of protest, and it gets the attention."

The American Student Union is concerned with student problems only as a tactical maneuver. Its leaders are actually concerned with a goal not displayed before the gullible youths, the goal set for it by the Young Communist League.

And that goal, officially formulated and proclaimed by the Young Communist League, is "the successful overthrow of capitalism and the creation of a Soviet world."

80 ROYALISTS SEIZED AFTER FRENCH RIOT

By MICHAEL WILSON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

Paris, Feb. 14—Blow after blow was dealt French monarchists today as the government worked with Premier Sarraut to crush terrorism and rioting following an alleged murderous attack on Leon Blum, Socialist leader.

Police formally charged Charles Maurras, one of the directors of the Royalist newspaper L'Action Francaise, and noted historian with "provocation to murder."

Eight others of the 80 monarchisty rounded up in all-night raids were formally accused of the actual attack on Blum. The 66-year-old deputy is in serious condition at his home, after treatment in a hospital.

Police reserves were held ready for action and Republican guards and mobile guards were confined to barracks, to prevent any recurrence of the political riots that have so frequently spilled blood in Paris streets.

Trouble flared just before midnight when Communists wrecked the clubhouse of the "Camelots Du Roi—"King's Henchmen"—in the 14th Arrondissement. Twelve persons were injured, one seriously, before the Reds fled as police arrived.

Under direction of magistrates, police staged a raid on the Action Francaise Headquarters and for five hours searched it from cellar to roof.

Blum's hat and tie were found in the building, they said. Maurras, Henri Daudet, another Royalist director and son of the immortal Alphonse, and Maurice Pujo were there at the time, but Daudet and Pujo were not immediately arrested.

The Royalists had a severe stroke of misfortune, according to police, in that an amateur photographer happened to be on the scene with a moving picture camera when Blum was dragged from his car and beaten. The camera was seized, and developing of the films will make it easy to identify his assailants, said authorities.

GERMANY BACKS NAVAL CURB

London, Feb. 14 (AP)—Germany alone has informed Great Britain thus far that it approves a proposed treaty being discussed by the International Naval Conference, it was learned today.

The Third Reich has given informal approval to maximum tonnage limitations for cruisers, aircraft carriers and submarines, agreed upon by committees.

Germany also has indicated approval of a proposed settlement of the dispute as to how big battleships should be under a new agreement to replace the Washington and London limitations treaties, expiring with this year.

The French delegation has opposed German participation in the conference, which has comprised representatives of the United States, Britain, France and Italy since the Japanese withdrawal.

The French have indicated a willingness, however, to have Germany, which has concluded a naval agreement with Britain, sign any new limitations treaty after the conference closes.

Defense Rests In Liggett Case

Minneapolis, Feb. 14 (AP)—The defense rested today in the trial of Isadore (Kid Cann) Blumenfeld, charged with slaying Walter Liggett, newspaper publisher, last December 9.

Thomas McMeekin, counsel for Blumenfeld, before resting, asked the court to permit the jury to view the scene of the slaying before it begins its deliberations. Judge Arthur Selover said he would arrange for the visit sometime tomorrow.

Nazis to Rear Amazons Beauties Ordered To Do Farm Work

By W. A. S. DOUGLAS

(Copyright, 1936, by Universal Service)

Berlin, Feb. 14—How about a year in the Iowa fields for every pretty Chicago stenographer—a sound, down-to-the-ground course in planting, gathering and shucking corn?

Or a similar compulsory hitch on the dairy farms of New Jersey for every New York debutante—up with the lark, cheek against the flank of a Guernsey, pail and squeeze, pull and squeeze—and warm fresh milk squirting into the pail?

Or grape and artichoke culture in California for every movie-mad little thing who believes Hollywood is calling and finds instead that the state's wine industry comes first and that care of smudge pots in the orange orchards is considered more conducive to feminine welfare than makeup pots on the movie lot?

That's the German outlook these days. Every girl, be her father baron or hodcarrier, has to do her 12 months of state service in the fields if she is city-bred, in the city at government work if she is of country stock.

It all makes for a national democracy, close-knit, argus the proponents of National-Socialism.

And, more important by far, it makes for a breed of big-shouldered, deep-bosomed, broad-hipped women who will bring into the world big, blond German boys and girls who will in turn make the German people masters of Europe—maybe, and they don't mind saying so, masters of the world.

From the cradle, a child in new Germany is being prepared for party material—girl or boy.

As matters stand today, with people wondering among themselves whether or not the army caste is in the saddle, one thing is most definitely clear: If the army does not get and hold a solid grip in the next few years then its chance as a dictatorial unit will be guns.

There will always be the army—and the army will grow—but the Nazi party hopes to be predominant and make the army merely the party's subservient war-machine.

The Hitler government sees in the boys and girls of today the voters and party members of half a dozen years hence.

The Hitler government does not at this time, as is the popular conception, deny the solace of religion to German people insofar as that solace purely concerns a period of worship and acknowledgment of a superior being. One must except Judaism, of course. And undoubtedly Paganism is building, but at the moment one may worship and be taught the scriptures.

The Protestant and the Catholic, the Nazis realize, cannot be thrown out neck and crop as can the Jew. But the present methods are vastly more insidious and far more effective.

BACKS NEUTRAL BILL

House Group Agrees With Senators

The House Foreign Affairs Committee unanimously approved today a bill to extend the present neutrality law until May 1, 1937, with additional provisions for restricting loans and credits to belligerents and exempting Latin-American nations at war with non-American countries.

Virtually identical to that already reported out of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the measure is expected to be called up in the House Monday under suspension of the rules.

That procedure will prevent amendments, limit debate to forty minutes and require a two-thirds vote on passage.

(The bill would advance to May 1, 1937, the present February 29 expiration date of the section of the existing neutrality law which directs the President to place embargoes on shipments of war implements to belligerent nations.

Loans and credits to warring nations would be held down to short-term commercial amounts sufficient for normal peacetime trade.)

The agreement to make the proposed law inapplicable to American republics fighting non-American powers was in recognition of the Monroe Doctrine.

Secretary Swanson Holding His Own

Washington, Feb. 14 (AP)—Secretary Swanson, the Navy's 74-year-old chief, was reported shortly after noon today to be holding his own against grave illness.

Captain George C. Thomas, commanding officer at Naval Hospital, said he was "resting comfortably" and that there had been "no startling development."

HAUPTMANN'S HOPES WANE AS REPRIEVE NEARS END

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 14—Bruno Richard Hauptmann stands again today on the eve of a sentence of death.

The 30-day reprieve granted the kidnaper and slayer of the infant son of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh expires tomorrow.

Monday Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, who presided at Hauptmann's trial, will again read the sentence that will spell the alien carpenter's doom. The week of March 16 probably will be set for the death.

Hauptmann, it was reported today, is ready to abandon all hope. His wife, Anna, appeared cheerful as reporters crowded around her and Samuel Leibowitz, the condemned slayer's newest attorney, as Leibowitz and Mrs. Hauptmann left the prison yesterday.

An official of the penitentiary indicated that he believed such cheerfulness was assumed. He did not think anything transpired in the cell calling for cheerfulness nor raising new hope.

TRUTH DEMANDED

Leibowitz, who gained attention in the Scottsboro, Ala., trial of Negro youths who attacked two white girls, has not definitely announced he will represent Hauptmann.

His only statement after conference in the death house was that Hauptmann wept and continued to deny knowing anything of the crime.

Before entering the prison, Leibowitz had said he would not take the case unless Hauptmann told him "the whole truth." There are many indications that he does not believe Hauptmann told the true story.

Leibowitz is on record, both in speeches made at the time of Hauptmann's trial, and in articles on that trial he wrote for the New York Journal, as believing Hauptmann guilty—but not necessarily alone in the crime.

Therefore, it is considered doubtful that he will actually represent the carpenter.

Such a refusal would, it is expected, dash the last hope of Hauptmann. Governor Hoffman has indicated that the prisoner can expect no further reprive, unless new evidence to warrant such action should be uncovered.

NINTH ATTORNEY

Up to today—the eve of the expiration of the original reprieve—there has been no such new evidence made public. Colonel Norman T. Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, and in charge of the investigation of the crime, indicates his belief there will never be any such new evidence.

Leibowitz, incidentally, was Hauptmann's ninth lawyer. If he refuses the case, it will mean that all but three of this battery of legal talent either has quit or has been fired by Bruno or his wife.

Only C. Lloyd Fisher, Egbert Rosecrans and Judge Frederick A. Pope remain of the legal battery. Fisher succeeded Edward J. Reilly as chief counsel. If Leibowitz accepts the case, he will supplant Fisher.

MAY DIE IN MONTH

It was just a year ago yesterday that the Flemington jury found Hauptmann guilty. He has spent the time since fighting for his life through every possible channel — and he has lost every battle. He fought through the lower courts, the New Jersey appeal court, the Supreme Court of the United States. They all turned down his pleas. Finally, Governor Hoffman staved of death, which had been scheduled for last month, by granting a 30-day reprieve.

It looks today as if Hauptmann will die during the week of March 16 next—or earlier.

Crash Kills Four Japanese Fliers

Tokio, Feb. 14 (AP)—Four Japanese naval airmen, were killed today when two planes collided in mid-air during fleet maneuvers southwest of the Shikoku island coast.

It was the third fatal accident in the navy's air forces in three days. Six men were lost and four injured in the three crashes.

U. S. EMPLOYES JUMP 35 P. C. IN 2 YEARS

Washington, Feb. 14 (AP)—Employes added to government payrolls were reported by the Civil Service Commission today to have numbered 211,078—a jump of nearly 35 percent—in the last two years.

Their number advanced from 604,711 for January, 1934, to 815,789 for December, 1935.

The December figure embraced 657,885 men and 157,904 women. Those in Washington numbered 11,692 and outside Washington, 704,097.

These employes, comprising those in the regular, new and emergency agencies and the administrative staff of the works program, but not including the legislative, judicial or military services or the Civilian Conservation Corps, were reported for the different periods as follows:

January, 1934	604,711
July, 1934	767,693
December, 1934	685,495
January, 1935	687,741

Bedford Parents, Teachers Honor Founders

MRS. ADA WEBBER MRS. JOHN BROWN MRS. LEONARD KIELEY

(Picture from International News Photograph Service)

MRS. HELEN ELLIOTT MRS. E. C. MASON MISS RITA SIRELLA

In an impressive candle-lighting ceremony at the junior high school in Bedford, officers of the Parent-Teachers Association honored local and national founders of their organization. Taking part were Mrs. Helen Elliott, chairman of the International relations committee; Mrs. Ada Webber, field secretary for Massachusetts; Mrs. E. C. Mason, editor of the P. T. A. magazine; Mrs. John Brown, president of the Bedford organization; Miss Rita Sirella, Bedford secretary, and Mrs. Leonard Kieley, Bedford treasurer. Special tribute was paid the late Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst, William Randolph Hearst's mother, who was a co-founder of the national organization.

BEDFORD JOINS TRIBUTES TO MRS. HEARST

Impressive tribute to the memory of Mrs. Phoebe Apperson Hearst and the founding of the first Parent - Teacher Association in Massachusetts was paid last night in the Bedford junior high school auditorium.

Mrs. Hearst, mother of William Randolph Hearst, was a co-founder with Mrs. Alice McLellan Birney of Georgia, of the Mothers' Congress, out of which grew the nation-wide Parent-Teacher Association.

Twenty-six years ago a group of Bedford mothers trooped into a school for their first meeting and founded the first organization of its kind in this state.

Last night in the junior high school auditorium more than 300 members of the Bedford branch of the P. T. A. banqueted and honored the national and local founders of this organization.

LIGHTS CANDLES

Preceding the dinner candlelight services were held. Mrs. John Borwn, president of the local group lighted a huge white candle in memory of Mrs. Hearst and Mrs. Birney.

Mrs. Brown after lighting the candle said:

"This celebration has a two-fold purpose. First we wish to honor the memory of the P. T. A. founders, and, second we wish to pay tribute to the founders of the P. T. A. organization here in Bedford.

"We recall the aims and ideals of Mrs. Phoebe Hearst and Mrs. Alice Birney, the founders, and we wish to center our thoughts on the welfare of our children, and the home.

"The welfare of the community depends upon better homes and better schools to make better children and better citizens.

"We bow to the memory of these two pioneers, and may the torch they lighted burn through the years."

TELLS OF FOUNDING

The second candle in memory of the founding of the Bedford P. T. A. was lighted by the organization's first president, Mrs. Edward Mason, now of Winchester.

Mrs. Mason related the first meeting conducted 26 years ago. She had been a teacher herself and when a movement for the co-operation of parents with the schools set in she could see its value to the teacher.

Mrs. Paul Kelsey of Newton, president of the Massachusetts organization of the P. T. A., lighted a third candle in honor of past national, state and local officers.

Candles in honor of nursing, education, physical training, spiritual guidance and to the mothers and fathers of the nation were also lighted.

Other speakers included Mrs. Ada Weber of Boston and Arthur Grindle, superintendent of Bedford schools.

POLICE HUNTING MRS. HEWITT

New York, Feb. 14 (INS)—Armed with a warrant police today sought Mrs. Maryon Cooper Hewitt on charges of mayhem resulting from a sterilization operation on her daughter, Ann Cooper Hewitt, 21. The warrant was sent here by San Francisco authorities.

While police sought to arrest her, Mrs. Hewitt was reported ill "somewhere in New York", her whereabouts known only to her attorney, William V. Breslin of Englewood, N. J. Breslin said his client would fight extradition.

"Probably New York police will pick her up," he admitted.

GAS, RACKET UPROAR

Beacon Hill Quiet Shattered

Leaking gas mains respect no class, nor do the emergency crews of the Boston Consolidated Gas Co.

Shortly after midnight peace and quiet for Boston's society folk on Beacon, Anderson, Pinckney and Myrtle street, on Beacon Hill, were rudely shattered by air drills.

Previous to the arrival of the gas workers, a complaint had been received that gas was seeping into several homes along Myrtle street and that the residents were beginning to feel the effects of the fumes.

Police were sent to the district to make certain that no one had been overcome and then the gas emergency squad, lights, drills, picks and shovels arrived.

Ten minutes later and continuing every second through the night for three hours complaints of the noise were being received at police headquarters. There was nothing police could do however.

Just before daybreak the leak was located and repaired.

Curley in Cuba For Sightseeing

Havana, Feb. 14 — Governor James M. Curley and his party are here today for a few days of sightseeing, planning to return to Miami early next week.

LANDON PASSES UP PRIMARIES

Washington, Feb. 14 (INS)—Alfred M. Landon, one of the three leading candidates for the Republican Presidential nomination, has no intention of entering either the Illinois or Ohio primaries, according to his friends here today.

Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, and Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, have both filed in the Illinois primary, and Borah has filed in Ohio. Thus far, Knox has not entered the Ohio contest, although he has intimated that he might do so.

Governor Landon, according to his friends, is going to steer clear of primary contests and attend to his duties as governor of the sunflower state. Entrance to a primary usually entails intensive speech-making and campaigning and this, Governor Landon's friends say, he has neither the time nor the inclination to do.

Lawyers Wrangle In Statler Case

Carthage, N. C., Feb. 14 (AP)—The fight for the $560,000 estate of Mrs. Elva Statler Davidson changed today from a conflict of testimony to a war of attorney's words.

Final arguments of counsel remained to be heard after Davidson, 40-year-old widower of the 21-year-old heiress to a hotel fortune, completed his testimony.

Davidson denied allegations of will contestants, Mrs. Davidson's foster kin, that he had coerced her into making a will in his favor and asserted he had not contributed to her death in any way.

After Mrs. Catherine Statler of Tucson, Ariz., one of the objectors testified Davidson once had said he could "live off Elva's money," he entered a flat denial.

"With all due respect to Mrs. Statler, she knows that is not a fact," Davidson testified.

JAPAN INCREASES ARMS, MANCHUKUO 'WAR' LOOMS

Tokio, Feb. 14 (INS)—Excited over an increasingly tense situation precipitated by a pitched battle on the outer Mongolian frontier, Japan today rushed military and financial preparations for defense against "the Russian menace."

The latest of a long series of outer Mongolian-Manchukuan border clashes — a battle on Wednesday in Olahudka, west of Lake Bor — led to informal Japanese charges today that alleged Soviet bombing in the battle "approaches war without a formal declaration."

As a consequence, in an increasingly serious atmosphere, the Japanese cabinet sharply increased funds immediately available for defense and ordered new military precautions on the Asiatic mainland.

It was reported the Japanese air corps in Taltzhar was made ready for any emergency, and that if necessary "for self-defense" they would fly over the Hsinan mountains and launch an attack upon the Outer Mongolians in their own territory.

Heretofore, both Moscow and Tokio have claimed the border clashes occurred in their repective territories.

An additional $1,200,000 was appropriated by the Japanese Cabinet for the army from the reserve fund, $27,000 for the navy and $51,000 for the foreign affairs department dealing with Manchukuoan matters.

Moscow Sends Sharp Protest to Manchukuo

Moscow, Feb. 14 (INS)—Punishment of the Japanese responsible for the latest alleged invasion of Outer Mongolian territory was demanded today in a sharp note of protest sent by the Outer Mongolian government to Manchukuo.

As in all previous frontier clashes, the Soviet version of last Wednesday's fight near Olahudka was exactly opposite of the Japanese account.

Dispatches from Ulan Bator (Urga) capital of Outer Mongolia, to Tass, the official Soviet news agency, said a mixed detachment of 500 Japanese and Manchukuoan troops with two tanks and two airplanes attacked a Mongolian frontier post.

Outnumbered, the Mongols retired, while the "invaders" penetrated seven miles into Outer Mongolian territory. There the Mongols were reinforced, and finally drove the Japanese-Manchu troops back into their own area.

One Mongolian was killed and seven were wounded, the dispatches said, while the Japanese and Manchus lost seven killed and more than 20 wounded.

(Japanese press stories said Mongol troops were driven out of Olahudka, which the Japanese said was in Manchukuoan territory. The two airplanes involved were Soviet machines, Manchukuo sources charged.)

The outer Mongolian protest demanded an immediate investigation of the raid and "violation of the frontier," punishment of the guilty, and measures to prevent further invasions into Mongol territory.

NAZIS JAIL 150 CATHOLICS

Berlin, Feb. 14 (USI)—With the sentencing of a Catholic priest to one year's imprisonment, and mounting arrests of prelates and laymen, Germany's Gestapo (secret police) continued unabated today its drive to smash Catholic youth associations.

In Weisenau, near Mainz, Father Albert Immel was convicted on a charge of preaching an "anti-state" sermon. He denied the charge, but was sent to jail for one year.

Simultaneously, in Rome, German Ambassador Von Bergen called on Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, and held a lengthy conference.

Rome dispatches stated it was unofficially reported that the German envoy offered an "explanation and extenuation" of the Gestapo drive that by Monday had resulted in the arrest of an estimated 150 Catholics.

Vatican circles stated a protest to the German government by the Holy See probably would be withheld, pending Germany's answer to previous representations.

Falmouth Picks New Selectmen

Falmouth, Feb. 14—Frederick T. Lawrence, selectman here for the past six years, will be succeeded by William E. English, former selectman, as a result of the latter's election to the annual town voting.

Mrs. Mabel J. Foss, only woman member of the school committee, was defeated as the result of the election of Noah M. Gediman and John W. Vallie for three-year terms and Gardner W. Handy for a one-year term.

Court Considers Dolan Suit Plea

Judge John C. Crosby of the supreme court today took under advisement the question of whether the city's suit against Edmund L. Dolan, former city treasurer, will be heard in the supreme or the superior court.

A petition brought by Robert G. Dodge, special counsel for the city, asks for an accounting by Dolan of $250,000 in profits alleged to have been made in bond transactions with the city, during his term as treasurer.

QUALITY is A POOR WORD

BECAUSE there are varying degrees of quality and every Tom, Dick and Harry can use the word without saying what it actually means. But every Tom, Dick and Harry could not say, as we do about First National meat, "You can't buy better meat at any price." We are willing to make this strong statement because we know we can prove it. The men from whom we buy meat admit that few concerns to whom they sell demand specifications which are as high as ours. The meat that is sold over our counters is as fine as any you can find in the country. That is what we mean by quality in First National meats.

BILL TO OUST UNDESIRABLE ALIENS FILED IN CONGRESS

Washington, Feb. 14 (US)—A measure designed to deport undesirable aliens, register all aliens in this country, and establish a rigid system of selective immigration has been introduced in both houses of Congress.

Senator Reynolds (D.) of North Carolina filed the bill in the Senate and a companion measure was presented to the House by Representative Starnes (D.) of Alabama, with appeals for speedy passage.

Major purposes of the bill are to save available jobs for American citizens, rid the country of lawbreaking aliens and relieve the federal and state governments as well as private charitable organizations of the expense of maintaining destitute foreigners, Reynolds told the Senate.

MANY JOBLESS

Senator Reynolds demanding the adoption of the comprehensive plan contained in his bill declared:

"It is a matter of common knowledge that in spite of all the things that we have done to artificially stimulate employment, there are still many millions of people unemployed in this country.

"It is estimated on the best authority that one person out of every five or six is in one way or another dependent in whole or in part for their support upon the government of the United States. This estimate of course, takes into consideration those on the relief rolls.

"Now, in spite of the fact that this condition has been with us for several years, we are tolerating in our midst millions upon millions of aliens.

"Estimates on the number of aliens in the United States vary greatly, with the commission of immigration putting the total at 4,000,000 and others at seven millions. Ninety-five per cent of the aliens are adults."

100,000 UNDESIRABLES

Differences of opinion also exist as to the number of undesirable aliens here, Reynolds said. Some government authorities place the figure at 100,000 while others insist it is much greater. One estimate is that there are 300,000 undesirable aliens in New York city alone, the senator said.

The Reynolds-Starnes bill would create a board consisting of three members, one representing the attorney-general, another the Secretary of Labor and a third the Secretary of State, to supervise registration and fingerprinting of all aliens at postoffices.

Aliens would be required to pay a fee of one dollar to register and be fingerprinted.

PROVISIONS OF BILL

The bill authorizes the Secretary of Labor to report an alien if:

1—At any time after he is convicted of an offense which may be punishable by imprisonment for one year or more or a crime of moral turpitude or if he is convicted of two misdemeanors.

2—He has been convicted of possession of carrying any concealed or dangerous weapon or a machine gun.

3—He has violated any federal or state narcotic law.

4—He knowingly encouraged or aids one to violate the immigration laws.

5—He has been engaged in espionage for a foreign government.

There are provisions in the Reynolds-Starnes bill to facilitate the admission of near relatives of aliens already in the country. They are given preference in the quotas.

Radio Gets Signals From Stars

Pasadena, Cal., Feb. 14 (AP)—Scientists listening in on blasing noises from the heavens were hopeful today of decoding the "messages" and supplying a master key for solution of several puzzling problems of science.

By means of a special short wave radio set at the California Institute of Technology, Drs. G. W. Potapenko and D. F. Folland are trying to interpret the celestial broadcasts.

The messages, they said, consist of short wave radio impulses originating at some point beyond the solar system.

The two astronomers believe the celestial broadcasts are from a "station" situated in the center of the galaxy, the star cluster of which the sun is a member. This cluster contains several hundred billions of stars, each comparable as the "Milky Way."

Dr. Potapenko said some signals are received when the antenna is pointed in the general direction of the Milky Way, but that best results are obtained when the antenna is aimed at the galaxy center.

This center, in which the earth is only a point, is situated between the constellations Sagittarius and Ophiuchus.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR NATURAL "BULK"

Needed to Correct Constipation*

Most people recognize the seriousness of constipation. But too often they dose themselves with strong cathartics that often actually lead to chronic constipation.

The natural way to check common constipation is to correct the condition which causes it—usually, insufficient "bulk" in meals.

How can you get "bulk"? Fruits and vegetables have some. Bran has more. The most popular product of this kind is Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron.

This delicious cereal is a wholesome food. Serve ALL-BRAN regularly for regularity, with milk or cream—or use in cooking.

Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily will usually correct constipation due to insufficient "bulk." If not relieved, see your doctor.

ALL-BRAN gives you gentle internal exercise. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

State to Honor Inter-City Club

Acting Governor Joseph L. Hurley will present a state flag tonight to the Inter-City Club of Massachusetts, Inc., at that organization's annual St. Valentine's ball in the Hotel Bradford.

Many federal, state, county and city officials, in addition to the acting governor, will attend the event.

Heading the committee, which is aided by Miss Mildred A. Sawtelle of Hyde Park, and Miss Elizabeth Kenifeck of Dorchester, is General Chairman John W. King, vice-president of the organization.

The original Inter-City Club was founded in 1914 by John J. Sawtelle of Dorchester, its first president, and first to sign the membership roll was Sanford Bates, who now is in charge of federal prisons.

Committee Votes O. K. On Cotton Bill

Washington, Feb. 14 (AP)—Over the opposition of government officials, the Senate agriculture committee today approved the Smith bill directing the sale of approximately 5,000,000 bales of government-owned cotton in weekly blocks of between 20,000 and 28,000 bales. The vote was 13 to 2.

Rah! Rah! Rah!

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 14 (AP)—With objectors shouting, "what would our college boys do?" the South Carolina House of Representatives voted down a bill which would outlaw hitch-hiking.

30 STARS ENTER BIG VERMONT SNOW FETE

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

With many ski carnivals planned for this week-end, New England winter sports devotees will find a full calendar awaiting them when they join the exodus on the snow trains out of the North Station tomorrow.

At Rochester, Vt., the Valley Sports Club have completed arrangements for their second annual ski meet and winter carnival, featured by a national snow-plane championship 50-mile race on Sunday.

Also on the Vermont card are ski and snowshoe races, which will open the meet tomorrow afternoon. In the evening the carnival queen will be crowned, with Lieutenant-Governor George W. Aikens of Vermont, acting as master of ceremonies at the carnival ball.

30 TO COMPETE

It is expected that more than 30 ski jumpers will compete in the Sabbath snow festivities. The new 70-meter ski jump will be used for this expert demonstration.

Switching to the western part of our own state, a down-hill ski championship is scheduled for Sunday at the Thunderbolt Ski Run, Mt. Greylock in the Berkshires, sponsored by the Mt. Greylock Ski Club.

Ranking among the finest ski runs in this part of the country, its almost vertical descent holds many thrills for skiers.

BUSY WEEK-END

The race will climax a busy winter week-end at Pittsfield, which begins tonight, continues with general skiing tomorrow morning and afternoon, a skating exhibition, sleigh rides and other snow sports tomorrow night.

One of the anticipated features of the Sunday ski jump is the timing of the race with the assistance of an ultra-short wave radio.

All over New England snow trains will puff their way into little cities and towns where ski jumps are available, carrying trainloads of happy out - door lovers whose love for the snow has reached its peak this year.

Blotto Contest Is Easiest Ever Conducted Here

R. I. Woman Wins $10 Prize

This blotto brought Mrs. Charles Letendre, 93 Washington street, Central Falls, R. I., the first prize award of $10.

Henry F. Collett of 9 Eden street, Charlestown, penned his name and made the above blotto. He was given a prize of $5 for his efforts.

Without doubt Blotto is the easiest contest the Boston Evening American has ever conducted.

There have been screen faces contests and movie names contests, and the states and President contests and a host of others.

In all of these some slight special knowledge was required. Not a great deal, to be sure, but nevertheless a certain familiarity and speaking acquaintance with the subject matter.

But the Blotto contest is really more of a game. You simply have to know how and be able to sign your name.

After that you follow instructions.

What could be easier than folding a piece of smooth white paper, signing your name in the fold or crease and then re-folding. That's all there is to Blotto, except to send it to the Blotto Editor.

Everyone who can sign his name, except employes of this paper and their families, is eligible. That means that kids from the first grade to grandpop can enter, have a lot of fun, and a chance at the daily cash prizes.

To qualify in the playing blotto contest chief thing to remember is to use black ink. Contestants keep submitting blottos in the colors of the rainbow, and these are necessarily thrown out.

Each day the Boston Evening American awards 12 prizes, aggregating $25. There's a first prize of $10, second of $5, and 10 prizes of $1 each.

You are entitled, as we pointed out yesterday, to send in as many Blottos as you like, but they must not be retouched or altered in any way from the natural design created by blotting your signature in the crease. Don't forget the more Blottos you submit, the better are your chances of getting one of the prizes.

First prize of $10 for the best Blotto received yesterday goes to Mrs. Charles Letendre, 93 Washington street, Central Falls, R. I.

Second prize of $5 was awarded to Henry F. Collett, 9 Eden street, Charlestown.

Ten prizes of $1 each were awarded to Burridell Daskey, Londonderry, N. H.; Charles A. Wells, 6 Heath place, Jamaica Plain; Jeremiah J. Hegarty, 9 Dells avenue, Roxbury; Alvin F. Mann, 306 Main street, Ellsworth, Me.; Mrs. M. Gruttk, 76 Pear street, South Hadley; Mary A. D'Orsi, 58 Winchester street, Medford; Anna May Young, 8 Vermont avenue, Saugus; Eddie McDonough, 44 Winn street, Woburn; Mrs. William Muise, 6 Elliott street, Reading; Beatrice Bradbury, 314 Park street, New Bedford.

How to make a BLOTTO

Crease a piece of white paper (it should be smooth). Open the paper and write YOUR NAME IN BLACK INK ONLY, using a pen, pencil or brush in the middle of the crease. Then crease the paper again quickly and with a firm pressure spread the ink while it remains wet. Open up the paper and you have a BLOTTO. Write your name and address on the same paper and send it to the BLOTTO EDITOR, Boston American, P. O. Box 1868, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston, Mass. BE SURE TO USE SUFFICIENT POSTAGE. Start today. Send in as many BLOTTOS as you wish.

Do not alter or retouch your Blottos in any manner. This can be detected and will disqualify them!

IT COSTS MORE TO PRODUCE BLENDED WHISKEY

"WHISKEY PRICES DON'T SCARE ME ANY MORE!"

Says Edwin Voge

3627 Rexmere Road, Baltimore, Md.

"I hate to think back at the licking my pocketbook used to take. But that was before a friend put me wise to Old Drum. He said Old Drum was distilled from the same choice grains used for expensive whiskies. And believe me — it must be! It sure tastes expensive to me — plenty smooth and mellow. Yet it is priced so low I can really enjoy it! No wonder I like to pass this good news along!"

MEN MARVEL! SAY AMAZING WHISKEY WORTH 40% MORE!

A bargain in better whiskey! Old Drum—the amazing whiskey that is winning America! Voted in nation-wide poll of palates to be worth at least 40% more than it sells for! Bringing a "drinkable" whiskey at a "cents-ible" price!

Be thrifty. Ask for Old Drum. Compare it any way you choose—with any whiskey in its price class. Remember, Old Drum is made from the same "premium" grains that go into the distillation of costliest whiskies. Yet it comes to you at a real money-saving price. You can't beat Old Drum!

HEARST RESCUE FLIGHT LAUDED

New York, Feb. 14 (US)—Prompt appreciation of the rescue work done by the New York American plane, when seven boys of the Civilian Conservation Corps were caught on the drifting ice of Cape Cod Bay, was voiced today by both the CCC and the United States army.

In a letter to William Randolph Hearst Major General Fox Conner, commanding at the headquarters of the First Corps area, Boston, Mass., wrote:

"I wish to thank you most heartily for the part which the New York American-Journal plane played in the rescue of the Civilian Conservation Corps boys from Cape Cod Bay.

"The Civilian Conservation Corps and the United States army both greatly appreciate this fine deed."

More Food Added To Tiny Babe's Diet

Oakland, Calif., Feb. 14 (AP) — The appetite of Nancy Lee Vogt, 15-ounce baby, is growing.

Reporting her progress as "satisfactory" today, Drs. J. W. Sherrick and H. E. Stafford said her feeding had been increased to three and a half teaspoons of mother's milk every tow hours. In addition, three drops of an iron solution have been added to her menu.

'Snooney' Blair Soon to Be Bride

Detroit, Feb. 14 (INS)—Barbara Blair, the "snooney" of radio fame, who broadcasts with Fred Waring's orchestra, said today she would marry Paul Garrett, public relations counsel for the General Motors Corporation, in the Little Church Around the Corner in New York in about three months.

Elizabeth 'Sister' Ware Is Hostess At Gay Valentine Dance

By BETTY ALDEN

FROM THE E-SHAPED table in honor of the hostess' first initial, to the large inviting red satin heart containing mysterious "grabs" for all, "Sister" Ware's Valentine party last evening at the Brunswick Casino was a very well planned affair . . . The Casino, with its red and white leather furnishings, was wisely chosen for a Valentine party and many of the girls fell into the spirit of the occasion by wearing red dresses . . .

ELIZABETH WARE

The hostess herself wore a spring-like flowered silk with large red poppies on a black background, a wide red sash and red slippers . . . Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eliot Ware, Jr., entertained a small company of friends at another table, with Mrs. Ware wearing her Valentine of pink camellias on a black and silver gown . . .

One of the peppiest foursomes in the party, Marjorie Kimpton, Ted Sheafe, Dottie Pierce and George Laurat, didn't miss a trick in the floor show and like most of the younger set, couldn't seem to get enough dancing . . . Marjorie wore a sea green tunic dress and Dottie was one of the girls in scarlet . . .

Even though she is having a busy social program for the next few weeks, Patty Preston can hardly keep her mind on the present, with a European trip on her schedule for March . . . She and Nancy Homans are sailing on the 4th to visit Paris, London and the Alps, among other favorite spots . . . She wore a filmy little dress of black net with a square decolletage and lots of feminine ruffles . . .

Edith Lewis and Polly Olney were among a group of fine looking escorts at the top of the "E" and Sylvia Carter, in a crisp taffeta dress of navy and white print, was nearby with her brother, Adams, and Haswell Clarke . . .

Still others joining in the fun and decking themselves with the red and white carnation favors were Peggy Wright, who says she has just caught up on the sleep she lost at Dartmouth last week-end . . . Barbara Cole in a soft pale blue silk dinner dress, with her chum, Peggy Capper, sitting nearby . . . Joan Sagendorph's shirred satin of battleship gray was extremely effective and suitable to her tall willowy type.

Sally Scudder was always in the midst of a light-hearted, fun-making group and Priscilla Thorndike, Margaret Sperry, Faith Clarke, and Edith Sperry were others among the debs present . . .

"Good Neighbors" Celebrate Victory

ALL THE "GOOD NEIGHBORS," whom we have heard so much about the past 18 days, had a final get-together last night to celebrate their sensational success in carrying this year's Community Fund campaign over the top within the time originally planned for the drive . . . The gathering was a "victory" dinner at the Hotel Bradford, and the crowd of over 800 were so jubilant and relieved with the announcement that the goal had been achieved that the least little excuse set everyone off into lusty cheers and boisterous applause . . .

Through a maize of vividly colored balloons tied to the back of each chair, hundreds of members of the great corps of workers who have so conscientiously solicited the funds during the campaign, and all those who have contributed time to the business management of the drive, made their way to their tables . . . and then and there began their victory celebration . . . as noisy as any Armistice Day gathering, with horns and whistles and a song leader exhorting everyone to sing lustily, "Down by the Old Mill Stream" and "Liza Jane" . . .

Division and district leaders dined in groups at small tables and the campaign officers were honored with places at the head table . . . Mrs. J. Gardiner Bradley, who with Mr. William Chamberlain had charge of the dinner, engaged the prominent speakers in conversation throughout the dinner as she sat next to Charles Francis Adams . . . Mrs. Herbert Bramwell Shaw, Jr., who has plenty of efficient work to her credit, both for the campaign and the coming Dog Show; Mrs. Harvey Bundy, Polly Ehrlich and Mrs. George Bemis were other society women finding their places at the head table . . .

Junior Leaguers Join in Celebration

DINNER COMPANIONS at one table were Mr. and Mrs. S. Eliot Guild and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Motley and Mrs. William Tudor Gardiner . . . Since the dinner was informal the ladies wore for the most part simple afternoon dresses or tailored suits . . . Mrs. Gardiner was attired in a sapphire blue suit trimmed with wide bands of gray Persian lamb to match her square crowned turban of gray Persian . . .

Martha Chapin and Priscilla Phelan made good use of the noisemakers on their table, blowing them in each other's ears and celebrating enthusiastically . . . Catherine Pentecost and Isabel Lawrence, Rachel Warner, Frannie Seaver, Jane Megrew and Virginia Ellis were among the other Junior Leaguers present . . .

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lowell Blake, Mrs. Charles Newhall, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Johnson, Jr., Mrs. Samuel Batchelder, Jr., Mrs. William Brace Pratt, Mr. George Bemis, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin A. G. Thorndike, Mrs. Warren Thayer and Mrs. A. Clark Woodward were among the other distinguished socialites joining in the celebration . . .

Vagabond Dance

FINAL arrangements are being made for the Vagabond Cruise Dance to be held on board the S. S. Philomatheia, Jr., Monday evening.

The Philomatheia clubhouse has been transformed by Miss Patricia Gavin and her assistants to resemble the deck of an ocean liner.

The entertainment committee includes Mary Jordan, Edna Krone, Elizabeth Kilroe, Marguerite Carr, Mary Carlton, Mayre Laffee, Virginia Laughton, Catherine Freeman and Mary Goode.

Miss Palmyna Albre is chairman of the decorating committee, assisted by Agnes MacDonald, Aurelia Kelley, Anne Crowley, Dorothy Davis, Gail Cronin, Helen Kenalea, Elizabeth Kilroe, Helen Casey, Louise Callaghan and Katherine Dorsey.

The refreshment committee is headed by Catharine Egan, and her assistants are Gertrude McCabe, Elizabeth McCaffree, Lillian Ford, Marjorie Greene, Ethel Jarvis, Virginia Coughlin, Mary Hamilton, Josephine Conry, Marion Connelly and Constance Dwyer.

Charles DesLoge O'Malley will be master of ceremonies. The ship's officers of the nautical ball include Raoul St. Pierre, Frank Trainer, Dr. James Monahan, John Kelly, Paul Porcella, William Haywood, Thomas Glynn, Charles McCarthy and John Bonner. Louis Mercier and Leo Curley will be the ship's pursers.

Mary Endicott Peabody Honored at Dance

PHILADELPHIA is presenting a Valentine to Boston society this evening, in the person of Miss Mary Endicott Peabody, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Malcolm E. Peabody of Chestnut Hill, Pa.

Miss Peabody, who is now staying with her grandmother, Mrs. Henry Parkman, is a cousin of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman, who are giving a dance in her honor at 46 Beacon street. Many dinner parties are being held before the dance and a distinguished list of out-of-town guests will attend.

Among the girls who have come from out of town to attend the dance are: Miss Leslie Hadden of Harbor Lights, Cold Spring Harbor; Miss Anne Scull of Chestnut Hill, Pa.; Miss Edith Derby of Old Adam House, Oyster Bay, L. I.; Miss Margaret Hallowell of New York, and Miss Marina Torlonia of New York, all of whom are Miss Peabody's house guests at the Parkmans; Miss Alice Polk of New York and Miss Jean Randolph of Charlottesville, Va., who are staying with the Lymans.

Miss Martha Frick of New York is staying with Miss Katherine Homans at the Homans' home on Marlborough street; while Mrs. William P. Homans will have Miss Helen MacPherson of New York, as a guest at Cedar Tree Farm, her home in Ponkapoag.

Miss Dorothy Robinson of New York will be the house guest of Miss Anne Howard and still other out of towners are Miss Louise Mellhenny of Chestnut Hill, Pa.; Miss Elizabeth Sibley of Rochester, N. Y., and Miss Priscilla Potts of New York.

All of these girls and Miss Mary Brewster Derby of Brookline will be guests at the large ushers' dinner which Mr. and Mrs. Lyman will give at their home before the dance.

Weston Folk In Gymkhana

The enterprising members of the Weston Saddle and Bridle Club, who staged such a humorous burlesque horse show a few weeks ago, will hold a Gymkhana in their new indoor ring tomorrow afternoon.

Non-members as well as members have been invited to enter the various events, including musical stalls, an egg spoon race, an obstacle and barrel race, bill dill, a dress race, and a balloon race.

Among those who are planning to participate are John Wright, Malius Sargent, Robert Parker, Kenneth Billings, Charlotte Donald, Anna Storer, Evelyn Baker and many others.

Last Concert

The executive committee of the Saturday Morning Concerts for Juniors will meet at the Cambridge home of their chairman, Mrs. Eliot Hubbard, Jr., to complete their plans for the third and final concert in this season's series at Sanders Theater. This final concert will be held on March 7 under the direction of Mr. Russell Ames Cook.

JUNIOR BIRDMEN OF AMERICA

DEVOTED TO THE INTEREST OF THE YOUTH OF THE AMERICAS IN AVIATION — TODAY'S PILOTS OF MODELS —TOMORROW'S MODEL PILOTS!

Members of two rival squadrons for the wing honor banner were to be among the Junior Birdmen to attend the Modern Theater where "Ceiling Zero" is being presented as the feature attraction.

The squadrons are the Flying Hawks, sponsored by Miss Esther E. Larson, teacher of eighth grade geography at John Winthrop school, Dorchester, and the Leaping Lenas of Everett, sponsored by Randolph C. Wills, Dartmouth street, Everett.

John Jacobs

The Flying Hawks are commanded by Morris Landy and the Leaping Lenas by John Jacobs. Both are making a valiant fight for the banner, now held by the Lenas. Harold Bloomfield is captain of the Hawks and George Abagis is captain of the Lenas.

For the last three days Junior Birdmen commanders, captains and Eagles have been guests of the management. The air drama "Ceiling Zero" closes today at the Modern after a week's presentation.

The second annual Popular Pilot Poll for Junior Birdmen in which hundreds of thousands of boys and girls from 10 to 21 years old select their favorite air hero will start March 1.

Ballots, each of which will have space for the registration of the choice of 20 boys and girls are being printed now and will be distributed on or after February 24. An official ballot for members will be printed on the Junior Birdmen page of the Boston Sunday Advertiser on Sunday, March 1. Birdmen of the Boston wing who want to help poll votes of non-members in this nation-wide election should write now for ballots.

New England Police Stories

THE POLICEMAN'S MURDER

As Told by Ace Crime Reporters

Young Patrolman Shot Down in Dark By Limping Burglar

STEPHEN HOPPE WAS FORMER SCHOOLMATE OF HIS VICTIM

Here is the 12th in a series of true detective stories from New England police annals being presented daily by the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Arthur J. Quinn, one of the ace reporters for the American, relates the story—vivid details of murder solved by a limp.

Other stories will be written by reporters whose by-lines are familiar throughout New England.

By ARTHUR J. QUINN

Three shots in the early morning . . . a man who ran with a limp . . . a woman who saw him because a curtain had rattled and disturbed her slumber.

This quick succession of events on the early morning of October 4, 1927, furnished the prologue for one of New England's greatest murder mysteries.

One of the bullets ploughed through an artery near the heart of Reserve Policeman Alfred N. Hollis of Quincy.

It was fired by a former school chum.

They didn't know each other in the darkness of that early morning.

Little had they dreamed, either, in their years together at a Braintree school, that the one who chose to live outside the law as a burglar was to snuff out the life of the one who became the father of three children and was struggling for a permanent appointment to the police force.

His Last Words

The "tour of duty" for "Al" Hollis started at midnight with Patrolman John J. Fitzgerald.

It ended in a dark alleyway behind a robbed hardware store.

"Jack, don't leave me, Jack. I'm dy——"

Those were the last words uttered as Hollis died in the arms of the regular patrolman who was "breaking in his f——."

* * *

Grim-visaged fellow officers raced through the district in search for the ruthless slayer. All exits to the city were speedily covered.

State police flashed the alarm and the forces of the Commonwealth were hastily thrown against this latest defy of law and order. Patrolman Jack Fitzgerald was on the verge of collapse.

But the killer had escaped.

Rain had deluged Quincy during the night but the early morning gave promise of a fresh, sunny dawn. A slight breeze wafted over the scene of murder. It was destined to aid later in the capture of the burglar who shot his school chum and didn't know it.

* * *

Mrs Elizabeth Farrar stirred unusually early that early morning in her home in Mechanic st. The rear of her house adjoined the driveway that swung behind the hardware store from Hancock st., Quincy's main artery.

Tell-Tale Limp

In her drowsiness she realized that the rattle of a curtain had awakened her. She peered at her watch. Four o'clock.

To eliminate the rattle, Mrs. Farrar rose and closed the window. She had just turned away when three rapidly fired shots rent the air in the rear of her home.

Instinctively she peered from her second-floor window to the driveway below. She saw a man running LIMPING.

She could make out the forms of two uniformed men in the gray that settles before dawn. She saw one stretched out in the arms of the other.

Her thoughts had hardly blended before the screaming sirens of police cars and ambulances aroused the entire district.

* * *

Still shaken by his terrifying experience, Patrolman Fitzgerald hurried to Quincy after the events of the early morning that robbed three children of an ambitious father.

3 Shots in Dark

He and Hollis had talked of general things before they split, each to take a side of Hancock street. They would meet again to pull a box at Hancock and School streets. Then—

"I was going by the hardware store on my side of the street when I noticed the shadow of a man. He had crouched down and crawled away from the safe.

"I stepped into the front doorway to get a better look. The store was black except for the little light in front of the safe. But I saw the handle of the safe on the floor and I thought I could see a drill and a pinch bar.

"I stood there fully three minutes. I couldn't leave for fear I might miss a good look at the burglar I knew must be in there, away from the glare of the safe light.

"Then Al crossed over from his side of the street. He was a good cop that way. He always kept an eye out for his partner. I eased out of the doorway and together we planned for the capture of the burglar.

"Al took the back way. I stayed out front. We thought we had the fellow definitely trapped.

Hoppe's Prints

"Well, it was about a minute, I guess, when I heard the shots. I jumped down the alley and there was Al stretched out. I never felt so lonely in all my life and I never expect to feel as lonely again."

With these hurried details, investigators set to work seeking a definite clue to the slayer.

Report of "N. D." (nothing doing) flashed back with discouraging regularity from the armed forces at outposts of the city. Police turned to a search for fingerprints in the hardware store.

They found that the death-dealing burglar had used an unusual method of gaining entrance. He had removed the putty from a window and then bored through a section of the building in which the plaster board wall to get into the safe was located.

Nowhere could they find fingerprints that would definitely link the burglar—on window, wall or the burglar tools which were found there. So they thought at that time.

Again the investigators turned attention to the clues furnished by Mrs. Farrar. She told them the limping man wore a raincoat and that he was about 25 years old.

For 10 days the case dragged.

Captain Charles J. Van Amburgh, state ballistics expert and a recognized authority on firearms, reported the death bullet of a peculiar German make.

Then came the discovery that fingerprints found on one of the burglar tools were those of Stephen J. Hoppe, a notorious criminal, whose infamous deeds had been spread upon the crime records of at least 14 states.

A Braintree man furnished the innocent clue that led to a checkup of Hoppe's fingerprints against those found on the burglar tool.

It came during the routine investigation of Hollis' past life—a course that is pursued in murder cases with the hope that some seemingly obscure event might prove the turning point in the case.

The move proved its value.

State Detective Michael J. Fleming and Lieutenant Edward Fallon of Quincy learned from the Braintree man that a "wild kid" named Stephen Hoppe went to school with Al Hollis and that he had since become an expert in safe cracking.

The Braintree man had read of Hoppe's long list of escapades in the newspapers and just happened to mention it in passing as one of those with whom he and Al Hollis had attended school.

His Long Record

Pull ng on his inevitable black briar pipe, the more mature and detective mind of Mike Fleming started to function.

From his police experience he knew Stephen Hoppe to be a daring, crazy dangerous criminal who would not hesitate to kill. He was a jail-breaker of the worst type.

The thought eliminated thousands of fingerprints that would have had to be pored over in an effort to find prints that would match some of those on the tools.

Detectives went straight to the Hoppe fingerprints and found that two taken from the tools matched those in the cr minal files.

* * *

Hoppe's record was a long one It ran from Portland, Me., where he was given a 7 to 14-year sentence for housebreaking, through New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut and other states.

It showed he broke out from the jail at Thomaston, Me. His escapades were numerous but the one most intriguing to Detective Fleming and Lieutenant Fallon was Hoppe's attempt to rob the drug store of Henry L. Drugg in Proctorville, Vt.

"Drug fired point blank at Hoppe and the bullet shattered Hoppe's knee cap," said one line of the record.

"The limp!" Fleming said as he jumped to his feet.

"Everything points to Hoppe!"

Then they read further down in the record the disappointing news that Hoppe had escaped and was still at large from the Vermont state prison at Windsor, Vt. That was in June, 1926, more than a year before the life of Alfred Hollis was sacrificed to duty.

Boys Give Clue

More than two months passed but no trace of the wanted Hoppe was found until—

James H. "Two Gun" Baker, once the terror of South Shore motorists but who has since resigned from the Quincy police department, received a tip that two boys had noticed a stranger in Quincy shortly before the time that Hollis was killed.

* * *

THEY SAID HE WALKED WITH A LIMP. THEY SAID THEY HAD BORROWED MATCHES FROM HIM.

* * *

In Hartford, Ct., Patrolman Daniel Hurley happened by a restaurant on the main street and noticed an automobile parked too close in a hydrant.

Clue in a Word

As he placed a traffic tag on the offending machine, his eyes roved to the inside of the car. He saw a canvas bag that was marked "Palace."

Immediately, the details of a burglary at the Palace Theater in Norwich only a few nights before flashed through his mind. He decided to wait for the car owner to return.

The owner did return—and HE LIMPED. It was Stephen Hoppe.

Like a flash, Hoppe sensed his danger. He ran for it but a bullet from Hurley's service revolver brought him down, seriously wounded. Hurley's prisoner was removed to a hospital. He gave the name of George Bersp.

Fingerprints revealed him as Hoppe and Detective Fleming hurried with Lieutenant Fallon to Hartford.

They raided Hoppe's room and seized a variety of articles that were later exhibited in a Norfolk County jury in Dedham court.

The exhibits included three bullets of German make, many specimens of handwriting, clothing and kindred junk. The detectives left one important link in the life of Hoppe in care of the Hartford police. She was a sweet-faced, innocent-appearing girl of 23 years.

Under a heavy guard, Hoppe was removed from the Hartford hospital to the prison in Vermont. He was held there until the machinery of the Massachusetts law could grind out the indictment which charged him with the murder of Alfred Hollis.

* * *

So closely guarded was the secret "feminine angle" of the case that newsmen did not know until the Hoppe trial had opened in Dedham that the love angle constantly sought by their editors was to enter into a policeman slaying.

William P. Kelley, who passed away only a few months ago, took up the government side of the case as acting district attorney of Norfolk County.

James T. Cassidy, now an assistant to District Attorney William J. Foley of Suffolk county, was head of the Hoppe defense.

Edmund R. Dewing, who recently convicted the Millen brothers, Abe Faber and Norma Millen in connection with murder of policemen in a holdup of the Needham Trust Company, assisted Kelley in the prosecution.

Hoppe was determined he would not stand trial for murder in Norfolk county. He had heard that the county drew juries that had a reputation in the underworld as killers—the kind that sent murderers swiftly to the electric chair.

Two weeks before the trial date Hoppe was nearly successful in carrying out a bold plan to escape from Dedham jail. The dash ended in death for a trusty who went to the aid of a guard who blocked the escape.

In some manner that has never been satisfactorily explained, Hoppe came into possession of a hammer.

In his break for liberty he seized the trusty and rained hammer blows on the head of Thomas J Brennan, who was detailed as night officer at the jail.

The cry of alarm that was sent up over the escape drew the attention of another guard and he accidentally shot to death the trusty who was trying to ward off the blows from Officer Brennan.

Pointed Out

Drawn by the details of the killer's fresh escapade, huge crowds filled the historic courtroom where Sacco and Vanzetti had previously been tried and convicted on a holdup that had reverberated round the world.

Hoppe was led in dressed in a dapper manner. He appeared far removed from the manner of man depicted by his record.

Forced smiles of confidence were his as the first two days of trial brought witnesses who placed the crime, told the details, exhibited maps and brought out other formal details to prove that a murder had been committed.

Hoppe leaned forward in the prisoner's cage at one point and remarked to a reporter who was covering the trial:

"This is a tipover. I've scrammed out of better courts than this"

He listened to the testimony of young Lund and young Ellsworth the two boys who saw him in Quincy shortly before the burglary that was to prove fatal to Alfred Hollis.

They pointed to him in the courtroom. Hoppe only smiled. He knew his law. They had not placed him actually on the scene

Then came Dr. James E. Carroll of Hartford, Ct., whose dignified appearance identified him immediately with his profession.

Hoppe listened attentively but with no outward sign to emotion while Dr Carroll testified that Hoppe visited him four days after the killing of Revere Officer Hollis and asked treatment for an injury that looked suspiciously like a bullet wound.

The injury was in Hoppe's left hand. Dr. Carroll testified. He succeeded in allaying the doctor's suspicions by saying he had injured his hand with a drill the doctor testified.

Scoffs in Vain

Dr Carroll pointed to Hoppe in the prisoner's cage and said

"That's the man I treated under the name of Wilcox."

"That testimony's no good," muttered the accused murderer

The warden of the Vermont prison related in detail the identification of Hoppe by Lund and Wentworth on a visit to the prison with Detective Fleming and Lieutenant Fallon.

Hoppe still clung to his air of bravado. His attorney charged that the Vermont identification was prearranged. A bitter legal wrangle ensued

The three bullets that were taken from Hoppe's room in Hartford were identified at the trial as the same make as that which spelled death for Reserve Officer Hollis

Hoppe's attorney claimed the identification didn't prove a thing Hoppe scoffed again.

A passport was exhibited The government contended it showed that Hoppe had been to Europe and that he obtained the bullets while on that trip.

Enter: The Girl

Hoppe felt more or less smug as his attorneys apparently argued down every contention of the prosecutor. He settled well back in the prisoner's cage with a disparaging demeanor of nonchalance

But Prosecutor Kelley picked up a sheaf of papers and called out.

Helen Elaine Bradshaw!

The call went through the court corridor and produced the startling "femme angle" that Hoppe afterwards admitted "tipped over the whole case."

Hoppe straightened up in his cage. He saw with his own eyes the slight, trim figure of the sweetheart he thought the police had missed.

The sigh he uttered could be heard in every corner of the courtroom.

Although Prosecutor Kelley cheered several times that she was a "reluctant witness," he drew from her the details of Hoppe's return to Hartford after the slaying of Alfred Hollis.

"Shot a Cop"

She quoted him in explanation of the injured hand

"I got in a jam in Quincy. I shot a cop. I guess he's dead !"

Under careful questioning by Attorney Cassidy for Hoppe, Miss Bradshaw charged that the statement was dictated to her by a Connecticut state trooper

"My record isn't so hot anyway and they told me everything would be kissed off the record if I testified to that. They told me he was going to burn anyway," she charged.

In later testimony she also retracted that statement. Attorneys for both sides were driven to distraction.

Whether or not the jury seriously considered the testimony of Helen Bradshaw may never be known. A poll of the jurors later resulted in answers from some that they had and from others that they hadn'

It was late on an October afternoon, just a year after the killing, that the jury took the case for deliberation. The night wore on and no word came from the jury room

At noon the next day came word that the jury wished to return to the court room

Judge Patrick M. Keating, who had remained all night in the hope of a verdict, received the haggard jury. They reported a hopeless deadlock.

Pleads Guilty

The voice of the foreman had hardly died away when Attorney Cassidy hurried to the prisoner's cage and held a brief but important conference with Hoppe. He hurried to the bench and Judge Keating beckoned to Prosecutor Kelley. The three conferred less than a minute

"Prisoner stand up," called the clerk.

Judge Keating: Do you wish to change your plea of not guilty to murder in the first degree to guilty of murder in the second degree?

Hoppe: I do.

Judge Keating promptly sentenced him to life imprisonment. He is serving it now in the state prison at Charlestown.

Hoppe afterward told prison guards that he would rather have pleaded guilty and take a life sentence than to have battled through the trials that were awaiting him in 14 states.

He showed no emotion over the fact that his law-breaking activities had brought death to his schoolboy chum. He was quoted on that score:

"Well, he turned out to be a cop. I went the other way. I hated cops and my school days were over."

Tomorrow's thrilling crime story will relate stirring details of the mystifying collar murder that stirred Boston in May, 1915, as told by John H. Noonan, veteran crime reporter.

ADVICE on LOVE and MARRIAGE

Prelude to Beauty

POSED BY KAY FRANCIS

By DONNA GRACE

THERE is nothing lovelier than a healthy, luxuriant head of hair. It will insure a charm and distinction to even a plain face.

Nearly every case of faded, lifeless or falling hair may be helped and often prevented, if we know what to do, but many of the hair specialists tell us we never appreciate our hair until it begins to fade or fall out.

They mean of course that a few of us do not give it quite enough care and attention while it is strong and healthy.

We wash and comb our faces carefully, and we do keep the hair and scalp clean and well-groomed, too, but the scalp and hair must have frequent stimulation and other treatments. A good head massage to move the scalp and keep it flexible is necessary for those things just as for any other part of the body.

We do not know in every case why the hair falls out, but we do know that the proper care of the scalp and hair will often restore a healthy, normal condition to both.

So now we must try to think of the scalp and hair from the health angle as well as that of beauty. One of the causes of lifeless, falling hair may be careless shampoos and harsh soaps. The most serious fault is in failing to rinse the hair thoroughly.

Every trace of soap or shampoo must be removed—or it may clog the pores and dry the scalp. A good spray should be used for both shampoo or finish the operation under the shower. Take the time to learn how to restore the faded or falling hair. A suphur ointment is one of the best treatments for dandruff.

My treatment for weak falling hair has been successful in so many cases, why not send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for a copy? Address Donna Grace, Boston Evening American.

Smart Slip Covers

BRIGHTEN CHAIRS WITH NEW COVERS

ABOUT this time of year don't you long to do something to the living-room? Change the colors, cover up worn spots, make a new room of it?

Easy! Just stitch together a set of slip covers and the world will look different to you.

Use a bright chintz or cretonne, if your walls and rugs are plain, or get a rich, plain color if you'd rather not worry about where the pattern comes. If you choose a pattern, be sure that you center your material down the front of the chair-back. Keep the cloth smooth and straight, and pin it to the chair along the seams of the upholstery.

There's not enough space here to give you all the step-by-step instructions you'd like. But you will find every step explained and illustrated in our 40-page Home Institute booklet, "Making Slip Covers Successfully."

Full details on materials, plackets, darts to dispose of fullness—every single point that you'd like cleared up. All about covering many kinds of chairs and sofas and a chapter on pulling on an upholstered chair cover. With instructions like these, your slip covers will look exactly like those made by professionals. Save time and material with this practical guide.

Love's Martyrs Bravest Soldiers in Army of Human Progress

Love's martyrs are the bravest soldiers in the world. I refer to those courageous, self-sacrificing men and women who deny themselves the joys of marriage and the supreme satisfaction of babies nestling in their arms.

Insanity, tuberculosis and diseases of an even more terrible nature rise up like ghosts from the graves of mothers and fathers long since dead to haunt the living.

Numbered among my dearest friends are hundreds of girls and boys who have put aside every hope of matrimony because they know the sins and misfortunes of their ancestors might be visited upon the little sons and daughters they would bring into the world.

These girls and boys are the saints of today. For the welfare of the unborn, they sentence themselves to lives of celibacy.

There is no bragging or boasting about it. They do it quietly—in the privacy of their own hearts. They blink away the tears, choke down the sobs and face the future with a determination truly noble.

Today two letters tell of this sacrifice by the heroic youth of the present. I want my readers to study the letters and write me their opinions. It is one of humanity's foremost problems and one that affects the lives and happiness of hundreds of people.

R. N., Discontented, Justice, Still Hoping and Mrs. D. M. C. are today's prize winners. I am sending each a check for a dollar to buy a little souvenir of my affection for them.

Tomorrow I shall award five more one-dollar prizes and a special award of five dollars for the best letter of the week.

And now, dear readers, here are my letters and answers.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Ever since I can remember I have looked forward to the day when I would marry and have babies of my own, but now at 30 I wonder if my dream will ever be fulfilled.

I am a registered nurse. After graduation, I worked steadily for five years at private duty until I contracted a mild case of tuberculosis from a patient I had nursed.

After eight months of sanatorium treatment, I returned home as "arrested case." I have lived carefully for the past two years and have resumed work.

Now my problem is this. I am constantly meeting men who drop me after a few 'dates' when they find I have been ill. Should I tell these men before going out with them or let them find out for themselves that I was once a sanatorium patient?

I want a husband and children, but I feel as though a cowward had been built around me.

Can you give me hope that some day I shall feel those little arms around my neck and those little voices saying "Mother," or must I consider myself doomed to a living death?

R. N.

DEAR LITTLE GIRL:

You are a nurse. You understand your physical condition. You realize that thousands of women with a tendency toward tuberculosis died annually after childbirth. Therefore, I need not discuss these hazards with you.

If the training you have received and the knowledge you have acquired convince you that you are fitted for marriage and motherhood, then you have every right in the world to encourage the attentions of men.

Honesty is always the best policy. You will find it especially so in your relations with the man whom you hope to marry. I see no harm in telling your friends, even on the first "date," that you have been in a sanatorium. You don't have to go into all the details. Neither do you have to picture yourself as a creature standing on the brink of the grave.

A person with an "arrested case" of tuberculosis is actually a lot more fortunate than many of us who think we're perfect physical specimens, because if everyone tomorrow was compelled to undergo a thorough examination, thousands and thousands of never-before-suspected T. B. victims would be revealed.

But, dear child, if there is any reason to believe you might transmit your illness to your babies, don't think of marriage. Greatest of all tragedies is the birth of children born only to die in the cradle.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

It made my blood boil when I read the letter about the dear old lady of 80 who went to the poorhouse. Shame on those five sons and daughters! They should hang their heads just as I bow mine in sorrow for the poor woman.

How often, I wonder, did she deprive herself of food that those babies might not go hungry. And how many times did she pray to God over a sick, little form.

Now, in the sunset of her life, her reward is the almshouse—think of it! Where are the hearts of her children? It's inhuman! One's mother—God's priceless treasure given to us only to lose too soon, treated in such a terrible manner. It is unthinkable.

JUSTICE.

DEAR FRIEND:

How well chosen your name is. I have printed your letter in the hope that these unprateful sons and daughters may see and read it.

It is difficult to understand how children can so quickly forget the debt they owe to fathers and mothers. But they do forget. And no one knows it better than I, for in a year I receive hundreds of letters from aged women who receive nothing but abuse in the homes of the girls and boys they brought into the world.

I often wonder why some of our senators and representatives do not put teeth in the laws compelling children to support their parents. Then write and pass laws of all kinds of useless legislation, but I have yet to see one who took the floor in defense of the unwanted fathers and mothers.

Just a few days ago I met a man who made me angrier than I have been in years. He has a beautiful home, an expensive automobile and all the luxuries a person could desire. And yet he was "cry-baby-ing" because the welfare authorities were forcing him to pay two dollars a week toward the support of his 75-year-old mother!

I looked at him for fully a minute. I noted the raccoon coat he was wearing, the richly-woven scarf about his neck and the dapper spats upon his feet. And I said:

"You are thoroughly worthless. Kindly never speak to me again. I'd as soon be seen in the company of a confessed murderer."

The many men and women who have written me in regard to seeking adequate protection for parents whose children are financially able to care for them give me reason to believe that some day soon our legislators will take action. What do you think?

Write me again, won't you? And I should like to hear from other readers, too.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am rather anxious to tell the world how happy I am. Although my husband and I have been married only nine years we are as much in love today as we were the day we became man and wife.

I was only 16 and he 19, but we have proved to a good many people that an early marriage can be a success.

We have two lovely little girls and one adorable boy who is the pride of his daddy's heart.

What I would like to say is that I think marriage is the only career that can bring true happiness. I am now speaking for quite a few friends who found happiness by marrying young.

MRS. D. M. C.

DEAR FRIEND:

I call you friend because that is what you are. I wish others who are happy would also write me. And I'm sure that hundreds of boys and girls who read your letter will share your happiness.

The greatest joy that any man or woman can find on this old earth of our in the joy of happy marriage. It is a strangely wonderful thing.

If a woman is in love she is willing to endure anything, no matter how much suffering is required. The man she loves is the one and all in her life. Nothing else matters.

Marriage happiness should be the hope and prayer of every young girl. There can be no greater joy nor satisfaction even in Heaven.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a girl of 19 and I want to marry her. But every time I ask her, she changes the subject and becomes quiet. Yesterday when I asked her what was the trouble, she started to cry.

I have reason to believe that the illness of this girl's mother is responsible for her refusal to marry me. She has told me that mother has been in a hospital for more than ten years as the result of a shock.

No matter what the trouble is, I want to marry this girl. Will you please give me your advice?

STILL HOPING

MY SON:

The only thing to do is to have a frank talk with the girl you love. Tell her again that you want to marry her. Question her as gently as you can in regard to her mother's sickness. Don't try to do it in her home. Rather, go for a long walk. Find some place where the two of you can be alone. Then begin to exchange confidences.

There are illnesses that are hereditary. Often physicians advise young men and women liable to transmit such diseases to the children to avoid marriage. My heart goes out to these people, for they are among life's most courageous soldiers.

Yes, dear boy, have a long talk with the girl you hope to make your wife. There should be no secrets in love.

BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Marlene Dietrich Delays Work on Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, Feb. 14—It's all in the lap of the gods whether Paramount loses a $500,000 investment or Marlene Dietrich's picture, "I Love a Soldier," is continued. I might say in the lap of the gods or in the skill of Grover Jones who has been appointed by William Le Baron to write the new scenario.

Louella O. Parsons

Marlene was willing to do a scenario written on the old version but Lubitsch was not willing to do it. Lubitsch has a reputation for making pictures with Dietrich and he wants to make a picture with her. Hence the change.

Chinese backgrounds for Marion Davies' Dance and Raoul Walsh's Cossack scenes on the Metro lot are being torn down to make room for more and bigger sets. All the Chinese people who played in "Forbidden City" are being released.

Jack Warner is very much pleased with the way Kay Francis is handling herself in the role of Elizabeth Barrett in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." Warner has been very much worried about Kay's future ever since the failure of "Give Us This Night," which was one of the most expensive pictures ever made by Gaumont-British. James Cagney's brother, Bill Warner, has completed the cast of "Boy Meets Girl." The story which was first written as a play will now be changed to accommodate Cagney. Warner favorites Jean Muir and Joan Blondell, now appearing side by side in "Stage Mother," will be teamed again in the picture. Bill Warner is also producing "Bullets or Ballots," starring Edward G. "Freshman Love" Proves Merry Campus Farce

By HARRIS MORGAN

A comedy, "Freshman Love," and a melodrama which turns out comically in several unintended moments and which is called "My Marriage," are the featured pictures at the Paramount and Fenway.

"Freshman Love" contains Frank McHugh Patricia Ellis and George E. Stone. It is campus farce, and diverting in the extreme. As no good campus farce is complete without a prize drunk, daughter, Freshman Love lives up to standard.

Miss Ellis is the prexy's daughter and it is her ambition to improve the college crew. Her fiancee is Mr. McHugh who is Coach Speed Hammond of Bunsen College in "Freshman Love" is one of her reasons. Miss Ellis does a pretty good job of promising for dear old Billings, and one of her "fingers" is E. Prendergast Biddle (Mr. Stone).

E. Prendergast is made into a cocswain because his pappy before him had been the jockey of a championship Billings shell. E. Prendergast, as far as row-ing goes proves no chip off the old block.

The big race is very funny. It results in a bale of music. You see, like "Freshman Love" and Mr. McHugh's acting, Miss Ellis romances with Warren Hull, and Joseph Cawthorne Mr. Stone and real fine actor, Henry O'Neil, Mr. O'Neil plays Prexy Simpkins.

In "My Marriage" Claire Trevor has an unhappy time trying to bring credibility to a hodge-podge drama which cannot keep its mood. Paul Kelly, Noel Madison and Ken Taylor give creditable performances.

The base situation is interesting. Miss Trevor plays the role of a girl whose father, also gangsters' bullets, is unmasked in death as a racketeer—not a society figure. It is ineptly developed, however.

Wayne King Tops Sterling Bill

Boston's Show One of Best

By MARION FRENCH

So smoothly co-ordinated in direction, instrumentation and in choice of arrangements, Wayne King's famous orchestra, in its eastern debut at the RKO-Boston Theater, manages in many of its musical moments to convey the illusion that a super-organ is being played.

Mr. King and his men headline the current program at the Boston. They proved a real delight to first-day audiences. At the final show last night, when the first strains of Mr. King's radio-theme, "The Waltz You Saved For Me" were heard, applause broke out which continued until the orchestra faded from view.

The maestro, himself, was the feature of his own program. His unfailing use of the saxophone, never doubted by his host of radio fans, is improved when Mr. King appears in person.

• • •

Balanced effectively, the current bill at the Boston includes a thrilling murder mystery, "Two In the Dark." It is one of local interest because it shows a faithful reproduction of an area of the Boston Common, and has a Boston background. It is of general interest to picture fans, because, for the first time Walter Abel and Margot Grahame are featured together in a romantic story.

The couple were together in "The Three Musketeers." Mr. Abel as d'Artagnan and Miss Grahame a Milady de Winter. In "Two In the Dark" they carry the love interest.

It is being far from reckless to predict that the Abel Grahame combination will become box-office as a result of "Two In the Dark." Two baffling murders, with the handy device of amnesia helping the playwright's progress, are solved in the film. The story holds from beginning to end.

Mr. King and his bandsmen are not the only "in the flesh" entertainers at the Boston this week. A clever mimic, Helen Charleston, an Earl Carroll graduate, pleases, the Allen and Kent dancers are good, too; and there are some ponies and dogs to open the show. In an act called "Opera in the Ruff," Charlotte Arren and Johnny Broderick score a real hit.

The Wayne King program included "The Merry Widow Waltz," "La Golandrina," Beautiful Lady in Blue," and the novelly song "Goofus," which was a Western rage but never a strong hit in these parts.

At the last show, the audience was given an impromptu bit of vocalizing by the doubling-clarinet chosen from the orchestra. The boys were all right, at that. Mr. King declared later that the singing is not a regular part of the program.

He announces a song about once in every three months of "moaning on the lows won't drag over their trumpets and fiddles, lulled by their beautiful soft music."

The show is a strong one, and is to be recommended highly.

Celebrities Discuss Many Theatrical Topics

By GEORGE HOLLAND

As I recall the early days, when a few of us young journalists with funny hats would gather around a table, callow but sardonic, a stock greeting, intended to convey disgust with the "newspaper game," used to be: "It's not the money, it's the interesting people you meet!"

That was a big laugh. That, you see, was the impression the outside world held of the racket. We were quite sarcastic about it.

George Holland

• • •

All right, let's concede a point to the laity. Yesterday for instance, was a day of milk and honey, and were the mood on any member of the local drama departments, it could have been a day of scotch and soda.

By accepting three invitations only, your reporter was able to listen to the following celebrities, each in person, John Boles, Ina Claire, Osgood Perkins, Wayne King, Lawrence Langner, Lee Simonson, Teresa Helburn, Philip Moeller, Sam Behrman, and Russell Crouse.

• • •

I quote you something from each.

Mr. Boles, starring in person at the Metropolitan Theater:

"I confess I like to play musical pictures better than non-musicals. But I am extremely happy in my next release, 'A Message to Garcia.' I am bored with being dressed up like a dandy on the screen. I wear a beard for the major portion of the new film."

Mr. Boles proved a personable, unaffected, manly, considerate, frank and modest gentleman. I am going to see him again.

• • •

Miss Claire, looking (at close range) more beautiful than I ever remember her in our several off-stage encounters, is featured in "End of Summer" at the Colonial:

"One cocktail and I'm high. Thanks for the nice review. How are you? See the play before we close town. You'll like it."

The room was crowded. Ina was cornered by a bevy of gals. The most vital blonde in Hollywood or New York, Miss Claire is the same with one cocktail or without—charming.

• • •

Osgood Perkins, co-featured with Miss Claire, in "End of Summer":

"I can't put up, George. I'm all in. Where's Ann Marsters. She is the best interview about me that I've had in all my experience."

Osgood is famous for his sincerity, his fine mind, his brilliance as an actor and his rating as a human being.

• • •

Wayne King, headlining, with his orchestra, at RKO-Boston:

"Lord, what a day. My first trip East, as a working-man. If you really liked us, drop in any time. The boys are great. We've been together nine years. What about lunch sometime?"

He is good-looking, and has a nice smile. He has a half-million dollars in several banks. I switched the luncheon invitation to one for dinner. The noon hour is terribly early.

• • •

Lawrence Langner, one of the Theatre Guild's founders and directors:

"We decided on a get-together with the newspaper-reviewers. It's been a case of come to Boston, work, work and work, and no fun. From now on—it's going to be different."

Mr. Langner is one of the most esteemed men in the theater. With his wife, he wrote "Pursuit of Happiness." He has a lovely daughter, Phyllis, who gives promise of being a fine actress. I hope he and his wife write a play for her.

• • •

Mr. Simonson, creator of the striking scenic designs which feature Guild productions, and a director also:

"You can't be too local in comedy. That was part of the trouble with 'Parade.' In New York, mention of Brooklyn and Philadelphia got a laugh. I understand Boston laughs at one of the neighboring cities, too. Well, it's an old Greek custom. In the writings of Aristophanes, the mention of Boeotians was always good for a chuckle. Why, no one knew. But a footnote to a fine translation notes that laughter followed any mention of a Boetian."

Mr. Simonson ranks with the best of his craft. He is an intellectual. He loves sarcasm, satire and being bitter about things

• • •

Teresa Helburn, one of the original founders and directors of the Theater Guild:

"Please, Mr. Holland, have a cocktail." (Later) "Mr. Holland, won't you have a tiny cocktail?"

We have thought always that the famous "Terry" was stern, unsociable. She is lovely.

• • •

Philip Moeller, famous director for the Guild (gazing out a window of the Ritz-Carlton which has an exposure of the Public Garden)

"See those little fellows scooting around down there on the ice. Isn't this view superb. I face the park from my home in New York. I like Boston."

• • •

Sam Behrman, author of "End of Summer"

"Am I working! Come in and see the new ending."

Russell Crouse, author-publicist:

"I got blamed for tipping you that the play was going to have a new ending. I didn't, did I? You were pretty psychic at that."

Mr. Crouse is writing two new musical plays. He co-authored "Anything Goes." One, for Vinton Freedley, is expected to open next fall in Boston.

Songbird

Gladys Swarthout is the star of "Rose of the Rancho," which comes to the Uptown screen tomorrow.

Boys' Rescue On Screen

Photos of the thrilling rescue of the seven CCC boys who faced death in Cape Cod Bay after floating adrift for one night are included in the latest news release now on the screens of Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters.

Filmed from a newspaper plane, while another assisted in making the actual rescue—the "shots" include the cutting through the treacherous ice floes of the Harriet Lane, the launching of the "rescue boat," which led to the resultant rescue of the boys; the dropping of the food, blankets, etc., from one of the planes and finally the scene where the boys are shown being transferred into an ambulance.

This complete new edition of the Metrotone News runs 18 minutes.

THEATER STORMED

Crowds at 'Louis Pasteur' Opening

The lobby filled, and a long queue outside the bad weather, crowds stormed the Metropolitan Theater this morning long before the scheduled time for the doors to open.

Theater officials said that seldom in the past five years has the public shown so avid an interest in a picture as was manifested by the throng today anxious to see "The Life of Louis Pasteur."

This Cosmopolitan production, starring Paul Muni, has been hailed by critics, doctors, and laymen wherever it has been seen, as one of the truly great triumphs of the screen. Many believe that it will open an hitherto untouched field for the movies.

It is truly a great biography from every angle. Cosmopolitan spared no expense in the making. Muni is universally recognized as the screen's greatest character actor and the life of Louis Pasteur, itself, presents in the words of Muni, "more facts than any other character I have ever portrayed on the screen."

With three such ingredients, it is unquestionably a picture which should not be missed.

B. U. Names Five To Dean's Cabinet

Five students have been appointed to the Dean's Cabinet, honor group at the Boston University college of business administration, it was announced today.

The appointees are Dexter Wesson of Watertown, Frank O'Leary of Somerville, Genevieve Marston of Revere, George Timson of Nahant, and Carleton Chandler of Roxbury.

Hunter College Wrecked by Flames

New York, Feb. 14 — Firemen, hampered by winds, sleet and snow, battled a four-alarm fire that early today wrecked Hunter College, largest school for women in the United States. The building was unoccupied at the time.

If This Story Didn't Have a Happy Ending
YOU and YOU and YOU
MIGHT NOT BE ALIVE TO SEE IT TODAY . . .

If Pasteur had not won his historic struggle against jeering persecution and the ruthless killers of an unseen world, millions of our generation would not have survived to applaud this breathless drama of his life.

For alone, defying an emperor's wrath and an empire's mockery, he dared to pierce the veil between life and death . . . to fight the invisible "public enemies" of man!

Alone . . . but for one woman at his side . . . he waged war on the unseen evil that stalked from the gutters of Paris to claim the fairest flower of the womanhood of France!

And now Warner Bros. proudly present one of the most important and unusual productions of their career . . .

'Rose Marie' Popular

"Oh, Rose Marie, I Love You"—that famous song of the original "Rose Marie"—has become a Boston theme song from indications at Loew's State and Orpheum Theaters, where "Rose Marie" has been held over for a second week.

A critics' rave, and a public pet, this latest production of Arthur Hammerstein's famous hit is exceeding the popularity of "Naughty Marietta." Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy are co-starred in this excellent production of the Hammerstein-Harbach-Friml-Stothart original.

Two of the world-famous features of the original, the aria, "Indian Love Call," and the "Totem Pole" dance routine, have been retained. The effect of each has been improved—"Indian Love Call" in interpretation and background, and "Totem Pole" in lavishness.

Allan Jones, Reginald Owen, Una O'Connor, Gildea Gray and Lucien Littlefield are among the players cast in support of Miss MacDonald and Mr. Eddy.

FUND SWEEPS ABOVE QUOTA

THIS IS LIFE

By Robert E. Rogers

"Cupid is a foxy boy
He knows what he's about!
He gets you into awful scrapes
But never gets you out.
When e'er he coaxes you to wed
You'll find it wise to tarry,
Do everything that Cupid does,
But—Cupid does not marry!"

This bit of amiable cynicism dates, if I am not mistaken, from one of the Pixley and Luders operettas in the first decade of the century. It might have been "The Prince of Pilsen" or "Woodland" or "The Burgomaster," and I connect it in memory with "The Message of the Violet," and other sentimental ditties of the period.

ROBERT E. ROGERS

Those were the days when love was an amusing affair to be dealt with in gay dance tunes, or heavily romantic to be sung to in waltz tempo. The torch song had not been heard of; there was no moaning low about one's faithless man or fickle maid; there were few double entendres under the tricky words; nor were song and lyric used to drive home the sad lessons to be found in Beatrice Fairfax's column—that wise and practical dean of all the "lonely heart's" correspondence.

Letter to Beatrice Fairfax Gets Practical Answer

"Dear Beatrice Fairfax, I am a nice young man.
I do not drink or smoke or swear,
I pare my nails and bang my hair
And cards and races ban.
My salary weekly is small, I grieve to say,
Oh, must I always live alone,
Or can I wed and found a home
On eighty cents a day?"

Young man! Young man!
I'd hate to see you in it,
A home on eighty cents a day
Would last just eighty minutes!

Middle-Class Love Song Based on Reality

And then there is the pleasant middle-class domestic love song, based strictly on reality rather than on idealism, one of which I remember faintly:

"Me and the boy friend, the boy friend and me,
Happy together like birds in a tree,
He comes to my house
And eats what there is,
I'm on a diet when I go to his.
Saturday evening we take in a dance,
Sunday in church we must be.
We're not millionaires,
Say, but who the deuce cares?
I mean the boy friend and me."

The kind of lyric born of modern conditions and acceptance of those conditions, and a determination to make the best of them. "Just another cup of coffee and just another piece of pie," or "I've got to get up and go to work!"

Much More Wholesome Than Victorian Rhyming

Much more wholesome and natural, I take it, than all the Victorian rhyming about love and dove and June and spoon and skies and eyes and star and where you are and moon and June again and honeymoon and kiss and miss and bliss and so on and so forth and et cetera.

St. Valentine's Day really should come later in the year. One can't help feeling sorry today for poor little Cupid, poor naughty naked Cupid, dressed in a bow and arrow and an exiguous red heart and a ribbon across his tummy, shivering and frostbitten as he plies his job on the toboggan slide and the ski jump and the Dartmouth Winter Carnival.

He should be enjoying himself under the tropic moon at Miami and Palm Beach, on the hot sand shadowed by the great palm trees. There is where Cupid can function properly, one would think. But statistics tell us that he is going very well, thank you, even amid the snow and ice.

For today the rose in the heart is still red, the violet still blue.

Guess Who? Yes, It Is!

The engaging young man in white tie and tails is Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the President. But if you guessed his identity right away, you're smarter than most of the merry-makers at the Broadway night spot where the alert cameraman snapped this picture. Young Roosevelt's attractive little partner is Miss Renee Villon.

Young F. D. Steps Out, Few Know

New York, Feb. 14 (AP)—The engaging young man in white tie and tails, circling the dance floor of a Broadway night club with a pretty girl in his arms, was Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr.

And most of the other merry-makers who were there were just waking up to the fact today.

The President's son and namesake, a Harvard student, visited the night spot with Miss Renee Villon while on a holiday from school. They had a ringside table for the floor show, and arrived about midnight.

A few girls recognized the Roosevelt smile, and brought programs up for his autograph. Young Franklin D., Jr., complied.

Harvard Opens New Laboratory

An innovation in American architectural instruction, a full time "design laboratory" will be introduced at Harvard's school of architecture next year.

Announcement of reorganization was made today by Dean Joseph Hudnut, who resigned as dean at Columbia University's architecture school to take office at Harvard.

Fireman Felled At Stoneham Blaze

Investigation is being made today of the fire which caused $15,000 damage in a Stoneham square drug store during which one fireman, John Knight, was overcome by smoke. Heavy smoke gave firemen difficulty in getting the blaze under control

N. H. Woman Plans Dog Restaurant

Concord, N. H. Feb 14 It's not entirely altruism that prompted Mrs. Wilfred Nordine of Bow, a small town near Concord, to announce today that she will open a restaurant for dogs of the community.

Mrs. Nordine said she will feed all dogs in her community as much as they can eat every afternoon henceforth. Hot meals in cold weather, bones for the summer, she declared, will make up the menu.

The neighbors must be fond of their dogs. Mrs. Nordine opined, or they wouldn't have raided her henhouse and devoured 10 of her chickens. She said she would not complain to town officials but would take up the burden, partly out of compassion, partly for protection

Jailed on Bridal Eve; Fiancee Gone

Valentine's Day, 1936, will long be remembered by Earl E. Helgron, 31, of East Broadway, South Boston who had planned to be married tomorrow.

He spent hilf the day in Charles street jail where he was held on four larceny charges.

And unless someone with $200 comes along pretty soon, he'll spend the rest of it in the same place. Bail was set in that amount, but no one has yet asked the privilege of paying it.

Nor can anyone seem to find Miss Theresa Ryan, 20, of River street, East Dedham, who was supposed to have been the bride.

Helgron was arrested when Special Officer John J. Moynihan recognized his name in a listing of marriage intentions as that of a man wanted by police.

DINNER HAILS BIG SUCCESS

Already far over the top, the 1936 Community Fund Campaign is expected to reach the $4,000,000 mark when final returns and tabulations are completed.

Announcement that the quota of $3,750,000 had been surpassed came at a Victory Dinner at Hotel Bradford during which it was revealed the fund total had already reached $3,776,616.78.

Despite an [illegible] lasted only [illegible] the public and the unceasing efforts of 12,000 volunteer workers made the drive a success

Last year some three months were required to achieve a total of only $3,600,000

More to Come

Drive leaders anticipate a final total of $4,000,000 or more, officials announced chairmen. Most of these after announcing their totals, reported more to come

Carl P. Dennett of the campaign executive committee was principal speaker at the Victory Dinner. He said:

"Much needed financial assistance to organizations has been made possible. This will be of benefit to all the people of Greater Boston. It is a matter which touches the health, happiness and security of the entire community.

"The results cannot be viewed purely from the humanitarian point of view, nor from the point of charity, but rather from the point of view of direct benefits to everyone.

Ends Menace

"Distress and disease cannot be permitted to stalk the streets as a menace to all citizens.

"The community fund is the right idea."

Other speakers included former Secretary of the Navy Charles Francis Adams, president of the Community Federation of Boston, which sponsored the drive in behalf of 170 hospitals and social agencies; Mgr. Richard J. Haberlin, representing Cardinal O'Connell; Dr. Harry Levi of Temple Israel; Ripley L. Dana, general chairman of the campaign, and Otis F. Bradley, executive director.

Some 700 men and women, representing all classes, creeds and activities in Greater Boston, attended the dinner.

Troth to Elissa Denied by Doug, Jr.

Hollywood, Feb. 14 — "No romances. No engagements. No impending marriages."

Such was the heart-free declaration of Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., today, as he stepped from a transcontinental plane today after a two years' absence in England. He said:

Elissa Landi

"Work—and lots of it—is that's the essence of my life right now.

"In reply to reports of my engagement to Elissa Landi, I can only say I was still calling her 'Miss Landi' at the completion of the picture which we made together in London. She's a charming woman.

"Gertrude Lawrence? I am very proud to say she has been a great friend for ten years. Marriage? No, I think not."

CUPID AT WELLESLEY

Valentine Romances Swell Toll

Valentine's Day today is expected to bring to light more romances at Wellesley College, which has been the scene of great activity on the part of Dan Cupid in recent weeks.

Since Christmas time five students have announced their engagements and two have married. Among the alumnae 31 have been married and 38 announced engagements since Christmas.

Engagements were announced by the Misses Celia Ann Waters, N. J.; Rosemond Reid, Summit, N. J.; Dorothy Ross, New Haven, Ct.; Beatrice Lamb, New Britain, Ct., and Olive Hughes, Montclair, N. J.

Those who have married are Mrs. Albert Hamer, the former Irene Rudolph of Chicago and Mrs. Stanley Hyman, the former Mildred Werby.

Bar Doomed Man In Death Rehearsal

Canyon City, Col., Feb. 14 (AP)—Excluded from a rehearsal of his own execution, Otto McDaniels, 30, scorned the privileges of the condemned today as he awaited a trip to Colorado's lethal gas chamber.

Yesterday 100 convicts watched a tiny wisp of smoke curl up from the floor of the death chamber and saw a pig topple over dead.

Tonight McDaniels will take the place of the pig. He was convicted of killing Sheriff V. W. Dunlap of Monte cuma County.

He chided prison officials for not letting him watch the pig die in the gas chamber yesterday.

"I would have liked to have seen it," he said as he waited in the hospital ward for the summons to the death house.

"Black Terror" Given 20 Years

Bridgeport, Ct., Feb 14 (AP)—Walter Gordon, 26-year-old negro, today pleaded guilty to burglary and was given 20 to 30 years.

Police who arrested Gordon last fall claimed he was the "Black Terror" who invaded several homes here, stealing household articles and terrifying women.

Patrol Wagon Beats Stork In Roxbury

Mrs. Irene Erickson, 24, of Cabot street, Roxbury, is doing well at City Hospital today, thanking the speed of a police patrol wagon for coming in first in a race to that institution.

In answer to an emergency call, Patrolmen John Salvador, John Connell and Daniel Sullivan, sped the woman through the streets of Roxbury and the South End, and shortly after their arrival at the hospital a baby girl was born to her.

Navajos' Strange Epidemic Lessens

Gallup, N. M., Feb. 14 (AP)—A strange malady that struck only the young of the tribe retreated from the land of the Navajos today as much a mystery as when it descended on the 15-million acre reservation two weeks ago.

Dannoed variously as grippe, influenza bronchitis and tonsilitis, the illness sent hundreds of Indian boys and girls to hospitals and caused at least two deaths. Other tribesmen escaped.

Missing Prison Doctor Found Dead

Kansas City Mo., Feb 14 (INS)—Dr. Donald O. Megee, 31-year-old surgeon at the Federal penitentiary, Leavenworth, Kan., who had been missing since Wednesday night, was found dead in a downtown hotel here today. Police said indications were he had died from drugs

THIS GIRL ABOUT TOWN

Glamorous nights . . . dancing beneath the stars . . . exciting deck games . . . you know the rest." It's all part of the fascinating cruise literature sent out by Boston's steamship lines plying Southward.

MARJORIE McBRIDE

It's the biggest cruise year since the depression. They'll tell you they are booked a month in advance. Bostonians are luxury-minded again. On the Canadian National Steamship Line they offer a special rate for honeymoon couples who sail within a week of the ceremony. It's the only line sailing directly from Boston to Bermuda. Eastern Steamship has four cruises a year, leaving Boston on the St. John or Acadia, and connecting with the Evangeline in New York for the West Indies and South America.

The United Fruit Line has had cruises to the tropics for four years. They sail to the West Indies every week, year 'round. One of their steadfast customers is Arthur T. Wiggin, banker and treasurer of Boston Symphony. He's sailed for seven consecutive years

The French Line's most popular boat is the Lafayette. Vacation-bound passengers use the boat as a hotel for the 18-day excursion to South America. There's a first and tourist class on the Italian Line's heralded Mediterranean cruise, which is a month's holiday. Statendam, the Holland-American Line's flagship, also sails out of Boston for the West Indies. It is the largest ship under the Dutch flag and carries 600 to 800 passengers.

Cruise prices are down. They average about $12 a day on de luxe pleasure ships. Heads of companies say the fad for cruises is all part of the up-swing . . . or breathing spell . . . after the depression.

College Boys Abandon Bare-Headed Fad

Boys who go bare-headed these winter days are daring but not smart. Collegians have turned thumbs down on the bare-headed craze at all the schools. Also, white shoes in winter are out on the campuses. Suede shoes of gray are the newest wrinkle. English hunting weskits are enjoying a vogue.

"Star of Artaban" Named For the Other Wise Man

"Star of Artaban," a 316 carat star sapphire, is on exhibit at Long's, jewelers in Summer street. It weighed about 1000 carats when it was found by a native in the interior of Ceylon last year.

The stone is oval, with a flat base, about the size of a hen's egg, and is blue in color. The character in Henry van Dyke's "Other Wise Man," who sold his possessions to buy a sapphire for the infant Jesus, accounts for the name of the famous stone.

Young Lady Commuters Buy Meal for Brakeman

Two attractive young ladies commuting on the train from Marblehead to Boston each morning were a never ending source of amusement to Dick Gould, brakeman. They devoted the morning run to a deep discussion of their luncheon menu.

Dick would paddle down the aisle and ask: "Well, what's it going to be today?" They'd tell him.

At last, William H. Day, manager of the Transportation Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, also a commuter, decided something should be done about the daily farce.

He helped the girls prepare a lunch basket. They carted it to the station this week and surprised Gould with it.

A poem, dedicated to him, read:

Your girl friends, Mary and Ruth, say
That every morning at quarter to nine
When the train has reached the end of the line
Dick Gould comes rolling through the cars
Picking up papers and old cigars
He tries to find a lunch or two
But so far his luck has made him blue
To cheer him up and make him snicker
These refreshments are offered — minus the licker!

The Wrong Suitcase!

And How It Meant Months in Prison for an Innocent Girl

By FLOYD GIBBONS

FLOYD GIBBONS

HELLO EVERYBODY:

And a very special "hello" to you Mrs. Bridget Callan, of the Bronx, N. Y., for your prize-winning story today of the wrong suitcase. Gosh, I'll bet that every one of our hundreds of thousands of readers will watch their baggage after reading your unfortunate experience.

I had a funny suitcase experience once myself. I had just got off a street car some four blocks from my home and I left my suitcase, which weighed about a ton, on the sidewalk in front of a drugstore while I bought a pack of cigarettes. As I came out a stranger picked it up and started down the street. I didn't say anything because he was going my way.

Well, sir, I let him tote that heavy suitcase all the four blocks without a word. Then just as he reached my door, I took hold of the handle. "Thanks, old man," I said, "this is where I live." And I walked in with the bag and was his face red?

But Bridget's experience wasn't funny at all. Bridget is an Irish girl—although you might think she was Dutch from her name—but she was born in Scotland. It was back in 1917 during that little war they had over in Europe at that time. Bridget had been visiting friends in Ireland and was on the train that would take her to the boat for Scotland when it all happened. She was with a party of six or seven girls and boys and they all piled their baggage—or luggage as it is called over there—in a pile at the end of the car.

Now Ireland at that time was in pretty much of a turmoil. People going back and forth were watched very closely for that reason.

Well, sir, when the train got to the boat and everyone in Bridget's crowd had taken their baggage, Bridget, who was the last to leave, found her bag was missing. In its place was a suitcase. Thinking that someone had taken her bag by mistake and had left theirs, Bridget picked up the heavy suitcase and got off the train figuring that she would exchange it for hers on the boat.

But, alas and alack! the little Irish colleen never got on that boat. She reached the pier and caught up with her friends and had just put the heavy bag down for a rest when a stern-looking man put a heavy hand on her shoulder.

"Are you folks all together?" he asked.

Bridget told him they were and, at a sign from the first man, several other men stepped up and obligingly relieved the whole party of their baggage. Bridget thought they were going to carry the bags on the boat for them, but they didn't. Instead, the stern man ordered them all to follow him and the party wound up in a small building with bars on the windows.

Bridget told the man that they would miss the boat if he wouldn't hurry, but it didn't seem to impress him much.

She next found herself alone in a little room with a determined woman who calmly ordered the amazed girl to undress! Bridget realized then that something was wrong and permitted herself to be searched. The woman went through the seams of her clothing with a fine tooth comb and when she got through, Bridget says, she couldn't have been hiding a needle.

After that Bridget was marched upstairs to another room. The suitcases were on the floor and showed signs of having been examined.

"Is that your suitcase?" a man asked her.

Bridget said "no" and explained what had happened on the train.

The man smiled sarcastically. "Oh," he said, "then you didn't know what was in the bag you were carrying?"

"Why, no, of course not," she answered.

"That's all," the man said. "Take her away."

And they took Bridget away and the next thing she knew she was in a prison cell listening to the whistle of her boat as it sailed away. The cell was pitch dark. She thought she was alone for a moment, but soon heard one of her friends' voices. The two girls were locked up together.

Maybe this all sounds rather brutal to you, boys and girls, safe in this peaceful country of ours, but don't forget that those were serious times and many innocent looking young girls were in reality spies whose work could and did send many men to their deaths. The secret agents just couldn't take any chances and when you hear what that suitcase held you'll understand why Bridget was treated the way she was. I'm really surprised she wasn't shot.

The door opened only once that night and then it was to admit a bag of straw for the prisoners to sleep on. Bridget and her girl friend cried all night instead, and in the morning they were whisked off to a sure enough prison where even the other prisoners would have nothing to do with "traitors."

For three long months Bridget and her friend suffered the tortures that only innocent imprisonment can give. As they waited for their trial the only consolation the poor girls got was that they would "probably get off with ONLY THREE YEARS." They were held incommunicado as prisoners of the State are in time of war

Finally the day of the trial came. The girls, shadows of their former selves, appeared in court. And when they heard what they were accused of they screamed in sheer terror.

The suitcase Bridget had picked up the day she was arrested contained enough high explosives to blow up ten buildings!

Well, sir, the King's Prosecutor had a cut-and-dried case. Excuses don't go in time of war. But Bridget had one break. She had a jury trial and when that jury of sentimental Irishmen heard her story they believed her and acquitted both girls, and Bridget went home to Scotland without any baggage—or rather luggage.

And to this day she wonders who owned that suitcase

Well, all I know is that it wasn't mine, but I've got one right here that's full of dynamite—your stories I mean—and I'll pull one out of the bag tomorrow. Until then, Hey porter!

LEWIS HANEY ON MONEY

Congress Control OF MONEY ONE OF Nation's Troubles

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Feb. 14—Doubtless some readers will get tired of money discussions. I get so many inquiries about this subject however, that many must have a real interest. So here it is again.

• • •

First let me say that it is a fact which can be verified that the great majority of economists agree on the principles of money which I am presenting here. There are only a few exceptions, and they are easily explained.

• • •

A reader in Washington, Pa., has just sent me some questions which I know are bothering a good many people who listen to the silver cries of wild money schemers. He asks:

(1) "How can the government pay its debts and at the same time give us more money?"

Here is the way it works. The government is not able to sell its long term bonds to private investors who have real money. The government's credit has become so poor that it can't borrow in this sound way.

So it goes to the banks. It sells them its bonds—short term notes, bills, and certificates, which are its promise to pay in a short time.

These notes are backed by the government's promise to pay, and by its ability to levy taxes on us so as to get the money to pay with.

The banks buy the government's promises because, and only because they get from the government credit—new money. Mostly they do not have to pay it out. They get credits as good as the government's credit.

Then the government draws checks on the deposit credits thus established in the banks, or takes the cash paid by the banks, and spends the proceeds in one way or another.

Thus the whole thing is based upon government credit (debt). The banks profit as a matter of course in this process, and are virtually compelled to do it by the government.

• • •

(2) Why would it not be a good thing for Congress to print money enough to pay the bankers for all the money borrowed from them?

The main point is that if we would not be paying the bankers at all. It would merely be giving them one promise to pay in place of another.

When it borrowed, the government sold the banks its printed notes (bonds). These are its debt. Now if it turns around and prints some more notes and says to the banks, "Here take these new notes and consider yourself paid," what sort of business is that?

Printing notes is not making money. Neither you nor anyone else can make money by printing notes.

If we all tried to settle our debts by handing our creditors our printed promise to pay, where would we get?

• • •

(3) Why should Congress farm out the privilege of coining money and issuing credit to a few private individuals?

Congress has done nothing of the sort.

No private individual can coin money or print money.

No private individual issues credit. When anyone gets a loan from a bank, he gives his note, which is backed by real collateral or earning assets and by his record for paying debts. The bank then agrees to let him borrow cash by drawing checks for the amount of the agreed loan. This is a deposit credit.

But the checks do not coin or print money. Nor do they affect prices as money does.

• • •

(4) "Why not let Congress print money and control credit?"

Because congressmen do not know the business of banking, and are not equipped to act in this way. And even if they were, they are dominated by politics. Their existing control over money and credit is one of the chief troubles with us.

GOLD Clause Suits STUDIED

GOV'T STANDS TO LOSE MILLIONS

By Stanley Carroll
Universal Service

Washington, Feb. 14—The government stands to lose $8,523,744 if the 53 gold clause suits filed in the U. S. Court of Claims are successful, a treasury department study, made for Attorney General Cummings, disclosed today.

[illegible] covering five large pages and prepared by treasury gold experts, each case in detail separately, including the allegations of the persons and corporations who filed the actions and the legal grounds on which they are based.

[illegible] payment [illegible] dollars [illegible] demanded.

[illegible] owing on the government's [illegible] dollars [illegible] 59 cents were [illegible] bonds before [illegible] dollars fixed by Congress.

Commenting on the Treasury report, Attorney-General Cummings said he was uncertain what the court's answer to the gold clause cases would be. He would render an opinion, he added, as soon as the briefs [illegible] of reply.

TRADE Activity REDUCED

RETAIL VOLUME CURTAILED

By Associated Press

New York, Feb. 14 — The prolonged cold wave tended to reduce trade activity in some divisions last week, but it was also an accelerating force in other business channels, Dun & Bradstreet reported today in their weekly summary.

[illegible] volume was curtailed in many areas due to the travel and shipping difficulties confronting buyers.

[illegible] were less affected, the summary asserted, and buying proceeded in preparation for the best spring season in the last five years."

• • •

"With clogged highways piled higher with snow, only a few districts reported retail sales larger than a week earlier, the widest gains being made in the small communities.

"The spread over the 1935 comparatives also was narrowed, the estimated increase for the country as a whole amounting to not more than 2 to 8 per cent.

"Sales slumped sharply for the week in the Middle West, as few shoppers braved the blizzard, and the improvement over the total a year ago was a bare 2 to 8 per cent.

"The temporary recession in retail distribution was paralleled to a less extent in wholesale business, as reorders continued heavy for nearly all types of Winter merchandise, and building of spring inventories proceeded, but at the slowest rate since mid-January.

• • •

"Demand was insistent all week for men's heavy suits and overcoats, especially from districts where sub-zero temperatures have prevailed for nearly a month. Many of these orders, however, went unfilled, as stocks had been cleared nearly two weeks.

"With the exception of small centers, where the receipt of raw materials was delayed because of transportation difficulties, industrial operations increased for the week."

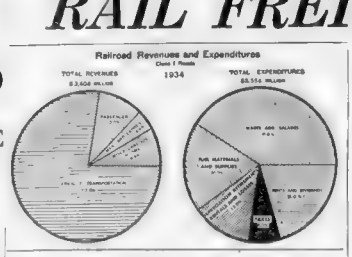
RAIL FREIGHT



Wall Street Sidelights

New York, Feb. 14—Renewed pressure of arriving unsold Canadian wheat parcels is reported to be bearing down on the Liverpool market, according to a grain house.

In addition, holders of Australian parcels and cargoes are said to be anxious to liquidate.

Pointing out that these factors lie behind weakness in prices in that mart, the house adds: "Importers appear to be satisfied that they are assured of sufficient supplies from Australia and Canada, and as these two exporting countries seem willing to accept any reasonable price, interests are buying only in a cautious manner."

It is pointed out, however, that the accumulated surpluses in exporting and importing countries have been nearly liquidated, and that the world wheat stocks on Feb. 1 are estimated at 300,000,000 bushels less than a year ago.

The Investment Dealers Digest, a publication closely informed on what is taking place in security underwriting and distribution, suggests: "From the way tips are bruited around you would think that the security Act of 1934 went out with the NRA."

Price-Earning Ratio Widens

The old measuring rod of price in relation to earnings in appraising speculative prospects of common stocks is getting more consideration by market statisticians at present than for some time past. It is thought is being more frequently expressed that the weakness in the current position of the market might be found in the current high relationship of prices to earnings. Annual reports for 1935 and first quarter of 1936 profits forecasts tend to emphasize this condition. In a majority of instances current prices represent more than the accepted 10 for 1 ratio between earnings a stock is calculated to be worth.

Boardroom pathos: A customer on a brokerage house gasped with amazement watching the quotation sag for Paramount and Loew, two of the better earning amusement stocks, while RKO in receivership, crept ahead.

TVA Upset Seen Overdiscounted

Several veteran market commentators expressed fear that the market in general and utility stocks in particular are placing too broad an interpretation on the pending TVA decision by the Supreme Court. The point was stressed that the actual points on which the ruling will be based are comparatively narrow and in substance pivot on the right of the Alabama Power Company to sell its property to the government. In its strictest sense the TVA does not go into the heart of the situation at all, they claim. Consequently they find it hard to see how any fundamental or basic decision is possible. There are other utility cases pending, however, one of which apparently does involve the life of the utility act.

SILVER Imports Up

Silver imports in January totaled $584,974, against $47,602,523 in December and $19,085,421 in January, 1935. Of the January, 1936, sales China shipped into this country $20,537,546 and Hongkong $3,-451,152.

Silver exports in January totaled $252,992, against $769,286 in December and $1,247,780 in January, 1935.

Eastman Kodak

Eastman Kodak Co. declares usual extra dividend of 25 cents and regular quarterly dividend of $1.25 on the common, payable April 1 to stock of record March 5 it is reported.

REVENUES UP 150 Million Deficit Is Shown

The above chart shows the classifications of revenues and expenditures of the class I roads for 1934.

Freight transportation was the main bulwark of revenue income, accounting for 77 per cent, with passenger at 10 per cent, mail and express 4.6 per cent and miscellaneous income 8.4 per cent.

Wages and salaries constituted the largest single item in expenditures, amounting to 41 per cent, followed by fuel and supplies 20 per cent.

Rents, dividends, depreciation and losses totaled 33 per cent.

The railroad tax bill, amounting to 239 millions, represents 6 per cent of the total expenditures.

The final analysis shows that there was a deficit of 150 millions.

Rise in U. S. Copper Use in 1936 Seen

American industrial activity revealed a practically uninterrupted gradual upward trend throughout 1935, and with everything pointing to a continued steady improvement, a further increase in American copper consumption during 1936 may be expected, according to the annual review of Brandeis, Goldschmidt & Co., Ltd., leading London metal house.

It is also believed that this increase will be met largely by a corresponding increase in American mine production.

The review states that American copper consumption last year increased 90,000 tons over 1934 and is now practically 50 per cent over the low point of the depression.

However, last years consumption was still below that of every year from 1915 to 1931 with exception of 1921.

Wholesale Prices

A widespread moderate decline marked the trend of wholesale commodity prices during the week ended February 8, the all-commodity index declining 1-10th of 1 per cent to 80.4 per cent of the 1926 average, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported.

KEEPS Budget in BALANCE

W. VIRGINIA IN GOOD POSITION

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser
(Copyright 1936, by Universal Service)

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 14—After reorganizing its tax and governmental functional setup, and instituting the gross income tax, West Virginia has emerged from its period of fiscal strain, and has been able to keep its public budget in balance.

This marks a significant change from the status in the midst of the depression, when property owners were in wholesale fashion giving up their holdings because of inability to meet taxes.

Under conditions then prevailing, it was not economic to hold on to non-producing property.

• • •

After recounting how the state had centralized functions at the state capital at Charleston, Fred L. Fox, tax commissioner for the state of West Virginia told me:

"The state of West Virginia has a balanced budget and will be able to meet all its requirements out of its revenues for the current fiscal year. We are now confronted with the social security program, which will require the expenditure of a minimum of three million dollars annually and may require more than that sum. We hope to be able to finance this program out of savings expected to be made from the present relief setup, by reason of the fact that old age pensions, etc. will take care of many who are now on the relief rolls."

• • •

Queried concerning the popular reaction to the new regime of modernized tax and government, Mr. Fox added:

"The people of West Virginia are very well satisfied with the present tax system. During the distressing period through which we have passed, we have been able to maintain the ordinary functions of government.

"On the whole, this state has its public fiscal affairs in a very healthy condition, and we think with reviving business we will have no serious difficulties in the future."

EASTERN GAS

Subsidiary

LIQUIDATION

Planned

By Hugh E. Bradshaw

If present plans of Eastern Gas & Fuel Associates are carried out the Massachusetts Gas Companies will be liquidated.

The object of the step is to simplify Eastern's capitalization and place it in the operating utility as well as the holding company.

The proposed plan is now being worked on by Eastern of the committee appointed at the annual meeting in Boston and by counsel representing the Securities Exchange Commission. In addition the company will have direct supervision of the by-product coke plant at Everett, Mass., and the Reading, Pa., plant of the Reading Coke Company.

As the fact it would eliminate a drain in power and municipal and federal agencies. And, pointed LVA 2...

OVEN-COOKED MEAL HELD POPULAR

[illegible] Martha Lee's Friday Morning Broadcast Over Stations WAAB and WNAC

[illegible] oven cooked dinner grows in popularity with each month—especially in the winter time. And housekeepers can't be blamed for this method of preparing a dinner saves fuel, time, effort and hard work.

So popular are they that we prepared one at the first cooking class of our Martha Lee School this week.

In preparing an oven cooked meal almost vegetables and dessert are placed in the oven at one time. Foods that take the same length of time must be chosen.

Meat Loaf with Chili Sauce
Baked Potatoes Pineapple Garnish
Baked Celery and Carrots
Broccoli—Mayonnaise Cream Sauce
Baked Apples with Cheese
Coffee

Casserole of Chicken
Steamed Potatoes Lima Beans
Mixed Green Salad
Baked Indian Pudding
Coffee

All but the salad and coffee is [illegible] in the oven and cooked at one time.

MEAT LOAF WITH CHILI SAUCE

1 pound ground beef
½ pound ground pork
½ pound ground veal
6 slices bread (soaked in water and drained)
½ cup water
1 onion (chopped fine)
1 tablespoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs
Chili sauce

Mix all ingredients except the Chili sauce thoroughly. Pat into a greased baking pan in two or three rolls. Use one large or two pan (pyrex loaf dish or bread pans). Cover with Chili sauce to cover each roll. Brush with butter and add one-half cup water. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for one hour.

If baked in a pyrex dish serve from same. If not, turn out on a platter and garnish. Bake or parboil baked potatoes and put into oven with the meat about 45 minutes before meat is done. Parboil broccoli and put into oven with the meat and potatoes. Do the same with the pineapple. Arrange the baked pineapple on a platter and fill the center with the cooked broccoli. Pour the cheese sauce over the broccoli and serve.

Arrange casserole containing cooked and partially boned chicken in the oven with the meat. Put a layer of cheese sauce over the chicken and cover with a layer of cheese stuffed celery, and bake for 45 minutes.

CHICKEN CASSEROLE

Cut up one 5 pound fowl into pieces for serving. Parboil with a small onion, a stalk of celery and a bay leaf. Remove the chicken and place in a casserole or covered baking dish. Sauté ½ cup mushrooms in 2 tablespoons butter and add to the chicken. Make a gravy by adding flour and milk to the chicken stock. Pour this gravy over the chicken. Cover the casserole and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 1½ hours.

STEAMED POTATOES

Pare six or eight large potatoes and place in a pan of cold water. Add one-half teaspoon of salt and bring to a boil. Drain off the water and place the potatoes in the oven at the same time as the chicken. When done season with melted butter and salt.

STEAMED LIMA BEANS

Prepare lima beans by washing (dried beans) and soaking over night. Place in casserole and add one-fourth cup water and seasoning to cover. Steam in the oven as for the potatoes for the entire duration of the chicken cooking. Season with melted butter and salt and pepper before serving.

INDIAN PUDDING

8 cups scalded milk
5 tablespoons cornmeal
1-3 cup molasses
½ cup sugar
1 beaten egg
1½ tablespoons butter
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ginger
½ cup butter, in addition

Mix scalded milk with cornmeal; add molasses and cook, stirring constantly until thick. Remove from fire, add egg, butter and spices and bake two hours. Serve with cream. Delicious.

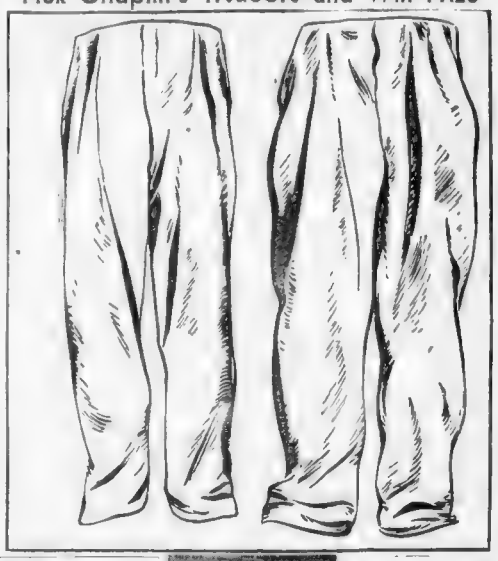
Pick Chaplin's Trousers and Win Prize



Charlie Chaplin—here he is. See the funny pants he's wearing? There's a pair like them in the illustration. Can you pick them and win a prize?

Chaplin Contest Now Nearing End

Here are trousers—two pairs of them. Charlie Chaplin wears pants like one of these in his newest picture "Modern Times" opening Saturday at the Majestic Theater. Pick the right trousers. Win one of the nearly 50 prizes.

When you have made your selection cut out the trousers and paste them on the paper on which you previously placed Charlie's derby, mustache and cane. Be sure to leave room for the shoes, which you will find in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

After you have selected derby, mustache, cane, trousers and shoes for Charlie and have all five articles neatly pasted on a sheet of paper, mail them to the Charlie Chaplin Clothes Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop square, Boston.

All entries must be in the editor's office not later than midnight, February 18 when the work of awarding the prizes will begin.

The first prize is $25 cash. The second is $10. The third, fourth, fifth and sixth are $5 each. The next 20 winners will receive checks for a dollar. And the following 20 are to have pairs of guest tickets for Modern Times.

There are two pairs of trousers today. Study them. Look at Charlie's picture. Which pants does he wear? Make your decision. Follow the simple rules. Win a prize.

PEABODY DEATH REPORT WAITED

Probe into the mystery death Monday of Ordy Grabachuck, Peabody leather worker, was temporarily suspended today pending a report from Medical Examiner Timothy Leary on his examination of the victim's vital organs.

Grabachuck, who lived with his wife in Elm street, was found dead there, a gas tube in his mouth, but because Peabody police thought there was not a sufficient amount of gas in the room to have caused his death, District Attorney Hugh A. Cregg was called in.

He [illegible] after [illegible] Wednesday. Dr. Leary reported in his preliminary examination, that the results to date are consistent with gas poisoning, but withheld a final report pending his study of the man's organs.

Johnny Marcum Has Share-the-Wealth Scheme for Red Sox

JOHN FOOTSIE MARCUM, THE pitcher whom the capitalistic Red Sox recently purchased from the impoverished Philadelphia Athletics, advocates a share-the-wealth plan for baseball players, in which they would be paid in proportion to their employers' means.

Austen Lake

Johnny does not say so in plain words, but he regards the $7500 offered by the Red Sox for six months pleasant exercise, including a six weeks' excursion to Florida, as a form of unfeeling persecution, like being shagged through the swamps by posse and bloodhounds.

Though he received somewhat less than $7500 from Connie Mack last summer, he says, in justice to the Old Man, that was all he could afford to pay and therefore was a reasonable rate of compensation.

But now, in moving to a prosperous town like Boston to go to work for a sporty proprietor like Tom Yawkey, he expects to be hoisted at least $3000, or more than a coal miner could make in 12 months of hand shovelling.

This is on the basis that Connie Mack was a relatively poor man in slum surroundings, while Tom Yawkey is a bloated capitalist who owns mines, factories and forests and runs the expensive Red Sox property as a rich man's toy, and a congenial means of soaking up excess funds

Therefore, Johnny reasons, Yawkey should be charged considerably more than Mack for the same quality of merchandise, after the familiar theory of European shopkeepers with one price for domestic trade and another for American tourists.

* * *

They Won't Share Any Losses

THE TROUBLE WITH MARCUM'S LINE of thought is that, while the players wish to share the profits, they never wish to suffer proportionately with the losses. When the Red Sox were a poor farm and little more than a stooge, or footstool, for the rest of the league, various malcontents among the athletes were always demanding salary boosts, though Bob Quinn was pawning his life insurance to meet the costs of operation.

The ball players have never been willing to accept a share-cropper's agreement, with the owners, which, like the prize fighters' contract with the boxing clubs, calls for a percentage of the yield.

The wrestlers, who are the meekest people in commercial sport, often chew each other into hamburger for box office cuts that give them as little as 50 cents.

But the ball players, naturally, want theirs on the 1st and 15th of every month during the season, and are insured by the league constitution, which underwrites the payroll if defaulted for more than five days.

And though there were times last year when the Braves (now Bees) immediately borrowed back the wages of certain hirelings, there has never been an instance of a rubber salary check or a man mulcted of his pay in the history of the major leagues.

Which is more than most sport enterprises, including the horse track business, as at Agawam last summer, can boast.

NEAR MIDNIGHT LAST FRIDAY the dashboard radios of of police prowl cars throughout Boston heard the short-wave command, "Calling all cars . . . calling all cars . . ." The ears of the motorised John Laws swivelled alertly. Feet tentatively pressed the throttle. Hands fumbled the gears. Nothing less than mass murder would call all cars. The voice droned on, ". . . Shucco beak Sharkey by decision. That's all."

Lady Scout

WHEN, RECENTLY, I REMARKED that women had crashed the last outpost of masculine endeavor, including pocket billiards (Ruth McGuinness), fight management (Lena Levy), horse training (Mary Hirsch), baseball (Babe Didrikson), a jocular reader reminded me that there had never been a feminine major league scout.

Well, there is now. At the top of the current White Sox roster, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Largent are enrolled as ivory hunters. And it is not a typographical mistake.

When Roy undertook to comb the canebrake for likely ball kids, he took his wife along. An ardent student, she became a keen judge of baseball form and turned up several lads that her husband's experienced eye had overlooked. Thus, this year, Owner Lenda Comiskey, possibly as a gesture to Chicago's vast female trade, placed her on the payroll.

AMUSED EAVESDROPPERS were Art Ross and Eddie Shore, Bruins' hockey delegates to the Eleo Sears homage-meal last Monday. As the guests drifted toward the supper room, several mates of the stuffed shirt variety were discussing Art's and Eddie's social credentials. Presently, by coincidence, Art found himself seated next to one of the stuffed bosoms.

"Imagine," quoth the S. S., before the formality of introduction, "that fellow, Ross, skating his way into society."

Slum-Gullion and Shepherd Pie

AS MANAGER OF THE ELMIRA, N. Y., CLUB Rabbit Maranville will receive $7500, whereas the best he could expect as coach or scout with the Braves was $4000 . . . Last authentic word, on Dolly Stark's gripe over his umpire's salary is that he was to receive $8500 for next season as against Bill Klem's top-wage of $13,500, and Dolly thought he was up to Bill's technical standard . . . Letter from Maribel Vinson, U. S. Olympic figure skater, is that England intends to protest Sonja Henie's eligibility before the world's championships next month as the scene of large, light o' the moon, fees received for earlier exhibitions . . . Boston College's athletic office believes that Gil Dobie intends to use his present job as a stepper to something more lucrative, and that a year's residence, or possibly two, is the limit . . . Bruins' gate receipts are running 26 per cent ahead of last year, when they grossed slightly more than $300,000 . . . Lou Smith, whose exit from Rockingham in favor of the Gallagher syndicate was predicted in this column ten days ago, held 19 per cent of the stock before being bought out.

Letter to Best Opponent

Mexico City, Feb. 14 (INS)—Stating that "this is the first time Louisiana College ever gave a varsity letter to an opponent," President Claybrook Cottingham today conferred an "L" on Ernesto Navas, 1935 captain of the University of Mexico football team.

Navas, perhaps the best end Mexico has ever produced, broke up Louisiana College's running attack in every one of the international games played over a period of three years.

President Cottingham of the Pineville, La., institution wrote to Hector Chico Goerne of the Mexican university asking him to present Navas with a sweater bearing the letter.

YVON ROBERT

YVON ROBERT, 21-year-old Canadian wrestling sensation, who has been undefeated in local wars, ready to drop his partner, Arthur Legrand. Robert faces a stiff test tonight when he meets Count Polowski at the Boston Garden. Yvon is still gunning for a match with O'Mahony. Danno will eventually have to meet him if this youngster keeps winning.

Grid Officials Stand on Rules

Cut out the slow whistle and go home" was the advice handed the gridiron patriarchs by Robert G. Zuppke, University of Illinois coach.

1—Use of a whistle to signify the end of a game.

2—Use of three officials instead of four by small institutions if both parties so desire.

3—Numbering players of the slow wheels—which the coaches had asked be given a carte blanc.

5—Discontinuance of a first down penalty against the team which runs into a kicker. Coaches have asked that the down remain the same after the infraction of the customary five yard penalty.

Big Day

Dave Wilson, Boston Evening American handicapper, brought more tears to the eyes of the bookmakers yesterday as they paid off on his four Hialeah Park winners.

Wilson called the following winners on the seven race card at the Miami rival Dunller, $4.00; Epitaph, $5.90; Miss Bam, $11.90, and Loschen, $5.00. Loschen was Wilson's best bet.

Meanwhile, Tracksman's Santa Anita selections, graded by Bob Ahearn, gave the Boston Evening American readers two handsome long shots. They were Evangelist in the first, $33.60, and American Emblem, seventh, $14.10.

ORANGE GIN
A TASTE SENSATION

Mr. and Mrs. America, by the millions, are being thrilled by the newest taste sensation, Orange Gin. It's a glorious new drink bearing the grand old name "Old Mr. Boston." It's a gleaming golden taste miracle, greeting you with a refreshing rush of the truly beautiful flavor of sun-ripened oranges. A superb liquor with real orange completely a part of it. This highest spot in the world's most delicious drinks has all the vigor of full 89 proof, yet is graced with ordinary liquors. Try it, UNDILUTED, for the most glorious tasting liquor of all time. You'll like it tremendously. It's bottled sunshine.

OLD MR. BOSTON smiles, and well he may, for in Orange Gin he has the taste sensation of the nation. It's well worthy of bearing his grand old name.

ORANGE GIN is an delicious that everyone drinks it straight. It makes a wonderful fizz, highball, or cocktail

Mr. Boston 'Irish' Bouts Tests For N. E.'s

By Jack Conway

SPEAKING of news: Tom Kanaly of the Irish-American A. A. says it is necessary for amateur boxers to qualify in the coming tournaments at the Arena if they are to compete in the New England championships. The first of the four qualifying tournaments will be held next Monday.

There will be bouts in the eight championship classes, 112, 118, 126, 135, 147, 160 and 175 pounds and heavyweight.

Mr. Boston

• • •

Kanaly tells me many first class boxers have already entered the Irish-American A. A.'s Monday night show. The list includes Frank Dubois of Wakefield, 112 pounds; John Micolizzi of Malden, Joe Nolan of the University of New Hampshire and Jerry Zullo of Chelsea, 126 pounds; Al Ciardi of Hyde Park, 135 pounds; Ralph Zannelli of Providence and Gus Culotis of Worcester, 147 pounds; Louis Mele of Boston, 160 pounds; Frank McLean of Roxbury and Eugene Wood of Roxbury, 175 pounds; Irving Jensen of Boston and Vincent Yauckoos of Bedford, heavyweights.

• • •

YVON Robert told me today he will file a challenge with the New York Athletic Commission for a title bout with Dan O'Mahony if he succeeds in defeating Count Polowski at the Garden tonight. Robert has given up hope of getting a bout with the Irishman in a Boston ring.

• • •

The referee for tonight's mat tussle will insist that Robert and Polowski battle it out until one or the other wins by a regulation fall. Both grapplers have agreed to a special rule that will prevent a disqualification.

• • •

Robert's speed, skill and fine variety of wrestling holds should give him the edge over the rugged Polowski. You can bet all the tea in Ireland, as well as in China, that Danno will be listening in from Detroit to get the result of tonight's tussle. He has agreed to take on Polowski if the latter wins.

• • •

O'Mahony will oppose George Zaharias in the Detroit Olympia tonight. Danno and Zaharias always furnish a hard, rough bout with the Irishman's right hand punch turning the tide of battle in his favor.

• • •

If Danno wished, he would be able to knock out 99 per cent of the "white hopes" without much difficulty. He is as natural a knocker as I have ever gazed upon. More important, he fights his best when nailed on the jaw by an enemy socko.

• • •

LOU SMITH

IT WAS with regret that Lou Smith's many friends in New England learned he has been succeeded by Bill Gallagher as general manager of Rockingham Park. Smith was the pioneer in New England racing, and did much to build up interest in the game here.

Rockingham Park has been a winner under Smith's management. If he had restricted his efforts to Rockingham and passed up Agawam and Epsom Downs at Hooton, Texas, he would have saved much money and averted many headaches.

• • •

Bill Gallagher has been associated with Rockingham Park since it started. He has been active in the management of the New Hampshire racing plant, and, when it was decided to make a change, it was natural that he should be selected to succeed Smith.

• • •

Bruce Wetmore of Suffolk Downs tells me he is going to ask Walter O'Hara, boss of Narragansett Park, to fly with him to see the Santa Anita Handicap. Later Bruce plans to take a Mediterranean cruise.

• • •

"Whitey" Hurwitz of Boston, who never got past the preliminary ranks, is going to meet Tony Canzoneri, world lightweight champion, in a Florida ring. It will all be over inside of a few rounds.

• • •

Tommy Clayton of the West End has also been boxing in Florida. He has blossomed forth as a heavyweight and has won several bouts.

• • •

Jake Zeramby of Lynn, who defeated Andre Routis in an overweight match when the latter was world featherweight champion, is giving boxing lessons to 50 ambitious youngsters in Lynn. Jake knows what it is all about.

YALE Meets Harvard TOMORROW

Tied for first place in the Quadrangular Hockey League with Dartmouth, Yale's varsity sextet faces an admirable opportunity not only to eliminate Harvard from the race for the league championship but to clinch its third successive annual series when the two meet at the Garden tomorrow night.

The Elis already have beaten Dartmouth, 7-3, and Princeton, 2-1, losing to the Big Green in an overtime battle at Hanover.

The Crimson's lone league victory this season was scored at the expense of Dartmouth.

The success of the Eli sextet this season is the more remarkable because of the serious losses suffered by graduation.

At the start of the season Coach Holcombe York had available only seven players who had had any varsity experience. Yet from these with a few former freshman standouts he has constructed a sextet which has more than held its own in competition with American college opponents.

A sophomore, Clinton L. Charles, was awarded the center position on the second line with Andy Gegarin and Bob Cooke, 1935 squad members, as wings.

Playing the third line are Robert A. Nagel, of Walpole, freshman left wing star last season; Arthur Cocroft, last year's junior varsity center, and Ed Pillsbury.

Two former freshman stars, Thomas Stockhausen and Richard I. Pearce, have been battling for the position all season.

Stockhausen apparently has the edge and will start the Harvard series.

Four Knockouts In Tech Prelims

— Four knockouts in the list of eight scheduled bouts was the feature of the preliminary round of the Tech Golden Glove Tournament at the Hangar Gym.

John Glacken, a sophomore crew man, of Cambridge, was the outstanding performer of the day, scoring a K. O. over Paul Villafor in the second round of their 165-pound bout.

Other knockouts were registered by Richard Belser, '39, over Edward Corea, '37, in the second round; Phil Constance, '39, over John Hamilton, '39 in the second round; and Al Rugo '39 over Louis Castleman '39 in the third round.

Semifinals are scheduled this afternoon.

Joe Louis Will Enjoy Long Reign on Throne If He Disposes of Schmeling, Braddock

Baer Ranked at Top, Louis 10 Last Year

In the twelfth article of his series on the search for a "white hope" to beat Joe Louis, the Associated Press sports writer, Damon Runyon herewith explains the workings of the fight game—how "the old order" must eventually give way to the new.

By Damon Runyon

(Copyright 1936, by Universal Service)

Miami Beach, Feb. 14 — About once every six or seven years, "the old order changeth," so to speak, in the heavyweight division.

A new generation of heavies appears in the land, and the old generation goes to the junk heap. We are undergoing one of those changes now.

At the beginning of 1935, the boxing experts of the United States, by what authority I do not know, ranked the division in this manner:

1—Max Baer.
2—Steve Hamas.
3—Max Schmeling.
4—Art Lasky.
5—Primo Carnera.
6—King Levinsky.
7—Pathy Perroni.
8—Tommy Loughran.
9—Lee Ramage.
10—Joe Louis.

Observe the standing of Joe Louis just a year ago.

BRADDOCK NO. 1

And observe that James J. Braddock, the current heavyweight champion of the world, wasn't even on the list. Now, I am told, the boxing experts rank Louis No. 1, and Braddock No. 2.

I disagree with that rating. Braddock is champion and is automatically No. 1, with me until Louis beats him. I say it is only fair.

What are the experts trying to do—select Louis champion?

In one brief year, "the brown embalmer" knocked out four of the men on the above list, Ramage, Carnera, Levinsky and Baer. He beat Perroni to a decision.

Hamas, a potential champion in 1934, was knocked out by Schmeling in Germany, and has apparently retired to the cafe business in New Jersey. Art Lasky was recently knocked out by Ford Smith and Charley Retzlaff, Louis' last victim.

We hear no more of Ramage, the fast youth from San Diego. Perroni hasn't been going very well.

Of the old order, Levinsky, Paolino Uzcudun, Tommy Loughran, and Johnny Risko are on their way out. Some of them may stick around a bit longer, doing odd chores, but the door is wide open.

Max Baer, who would have been a great fighter if he hadn't been too much of a pugilistic jokester, will attempt a comeback next summer.

TONY SHUCCO

And Joe Louis seems to completely dwarf the new generation.

You cannot name a man who seems even close to him in ability, though two still stand between him and the heavyweight title.

They are Max Schmeling, of Germany, and James J. Braddock, the heavyweight champion.

The pugilistic world does not regard them as much competition, and as a matter of fact, I feel that way myself, thinking of Louis as he is right now. But that doesn't alter the situation, which is he hasn't licked either one of them yet.

I am inclined to the belief, however, that the participants in the new quest of a white hope are displaying great forehandedness in starting their search now.

If Braddock falls before Louis, it will require some time to develop a man to lick Louis. It took seven years for Tunney to ready himself up to licking Dempsey. He had to wait for Father Time to do some hacking on Dempsey's legs with that old scythe.

Of the new generation of heavies, some are not exactly brand new, but they are new enough to be hanging around for some years before they go the way of all pugilistic flesh.

They include Abe Feldman, of New York; Charley Massera, of Pittsburgh (knocked out by Louis), Ray Impellitiere, of Cold Spring, N. Y.; Al Ettore, of Philadelphia; Ford Smith, of Kalispell, Montana; Patsy Perroni, of Boston; Eddie Simms, of Cleveland; Isidore Gastanaga, of Spain; Hank Hankinson, of Akron, Ohio; Steve Dudas, of New Jersey; Art Sykes, of Elmira, N. Y. (another Louis victim); Bob Tow, of Washington; Tony Galento, of New Jersey; Adolph Wister, of Green Bay, Wis.; Yustin Siritus, of New York; Lou Poster, of Bridgeport, Conn.; Tony Shucco, of Boston; Frankie Edgren, of Cheyenne, Wyo., and heaven only knows how many others.

I have already named some of the "green peas," but I should have added the names of George Turner of New York, Hans Kohlhaas of Germany and Jack Kearns' Hank Bath.

I hear rumors of a likely chap on the west coast named Brubaker, but to show you how far I have drifted from the heavyweight situation, I cannot even tell you in which pocket the guy carries his money.

It Louis continues his present manner of living after he wins the title he will be no help to the "white hopes." He has no bad habits. He keeps himself in splendid condition at all times.

Jack Johnson gave the hopes a little assistance, but at that they were from 1910 to 1915 catching up with "Li'l Artha."

(In his next article, Damon Runyon reveals that he, and many other fight fans, have a peculiar "disease"—heavyweightitis—which makes the heart pound furiously at mention of a "white hope.")

TUFTS Faces B. U. Five TONIGHT

As the Tufts courtmen line up against the Boston University basketballmen this evening at the Cousens gymnasium in Medford, they meet the third of their four local collegiate opponents.

Harvard eked out a one-point win on home territory, while the Technmen lost to the Jumbos, 39 to 30.

Northeastern is the fourth and last of the local colleges to play the Jumbos, the game being scheduled for the last day of this month.

Coach Arthur Cochran is starting his usual line-up tonight: Izzy Harris and Tony Wojy, forwards; Tony Radvilas, center; Lew Kyrios and Al Galuszka, guards.

The Tufts and Boston University freshman teams meet in a preliminary game.

Huskies, Bowdoin Tangle

Northeastern winds up its hockey season tonight when it meets Bowdoin at the Arena.

The contest will be the last one for Capt. Charlie Kusenaul, center, and Andy Abbott, goalie. John Shea, Lincoln Fraser, Bill Mitchell and Bill Wanglow will also play their last game tonight.

Earlier in the year up at Brunswick, N. U. licked the Polar Bears, 8-4, with the speedy, skillful Johnny Bialek accounting for five points himself.

Despite the mediocrity of the Husky combination, Bialek stands out as one of the smartest stickhandlers and fastest skatres in college hockey.

BALLANGRUD BREAKS RECORD IN SPEED RACE

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Feb. 14 (INS) — America's first victory of the winter Olympic games loomed well in the foreground in the midst of an orgy of record breaking today as Ivan Brown and Alan Washbond, Keene Valley, N. Y., took a lead of more than three seconds over the field in the two-man bob sled race at the close of its first day.

In third place, with a good chance to overhaul the Swiss, headed by Feierabend, was the original No. 1 American team of Gilbert Colgate, New York, and Dick Lawrence, Branchdale, N. J.

All three teams took a fall out of the old course record, the Brown team beating it in each of its two runs today for a leading two-heat total of 2:43.52. However, at the close of the day Feierabend had the record time for a single run, 1:20.31.

Meantime, no less than seven men broke the old record for the 10,000 meter speed skating championship, Eddie Schroeder, Chicago, among them. The American finished out of the points in seventh place, but at least gained the distinction of doing 17:52 to beat the old record by more than 4 seconds.

Ballangrud Star

However, the real distinction went to old Ivar Ballangrud, the Norwegian, who, in scoring his third championship of the meeting in addition to a second place, did 17:24 3-10 for the distance to better the record by 31 9-10 seconds. The performance gave Ballangrud the amazing personal record of 35 points during the games.

To Ballangrud went also the honor of being the first man ever to win three skating titles at the Olympics and to his country, Norway, the comfort and distinction of sweeping the speed skating races from 500 to 10,000 meters.

Among others who cracked the former record were Birger Vasenius, Finland; Max Stiepl, Austria, and Charley Mathiesen, Norway, finishing in that order.

The Colgate-Lawrence team was the first to nip two-year record of Reto Capadrutt, Switzerland, in the two-man bob run, the result in question being 1:25.2-10. The No. 1 American team was timed in 1:23.6-100. Then Brown and Washbond went careening madly down the run for two successive records of 1:22.82-100 and 1:21.2-100, to practically clinch a maiden American victory.

But the record was only a half hour old when the Feierabend sled did 1:20.31-100 on its final run of the day to jump into second place. The first five at the close of the day with their totals times were:

Brown and Washbond, America, 2:43.52-100; the Fiererabend team, Switzerland, 2:46.65-100; Colgate and Lawrence, America, 2:47; and the Reto Capadrutt team, Switzerland, holders of the old record, 2:49.14-100; the Fred McEvoy team, England, 2:49.46-100; the Baron Lunden of Belgium, 2:50.17-100.

12 Beat Record

The results was that 12 of the 26 sleds beat the old record today and another equaled it, with both American entries getting inside the old mark each time they took the track.

With Schroeder, in spite of a record effort, just failing to make the point scoring, the 500,000-meter speed skating event resulted as follows:

Ballangrud, Norway, 17:24 3-10; second, Vasenius, Finland, 17:28.2-10; Steipl, Austria, 17:30; Mathiesen, Norway, 17:41.3-10; Blomquist, Finland, 17:42 4-10; Langedijk, Holland, 17:43.7-10.

Robert Peterson, Milwaukee, lost what chance he had of breaking into the points by coming a bad cropper in the midst of his heat, plunging spectacularly on the ice when his legs crossed.

"I don't know what happened," he said afterward. "My legs just folded up, although 10,000 meters is certainly not too far for me. But somehow I didn't seem to have the drive today."

The American skaters were outclassed, as usual, although Schroeder made the best time of his life. Delbert Lamb, Milwaukee, and Allan W. Potts, New York, were withdrawn before the race, which saw the first nine men break the Olympic record, so keen was the competition among the topnotchers.

Amateur Diamond Magnates Meet

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 14 (AP) —The Ford Fricks and the William T. Harridges of the sandlots, more than a hundred strong, assembled today for a meeting which will affect more than 1000 teams.

Representing the National Amateur Baseball Federation, the American Baseball Congress and the Mid-South Amateur Athletic Association, they will discuss rules of eligibility for amateurs and fix tournament dates and sites.

Cincinnati and Cleveland, both strongholds of the sandlotters, were regarded as strong possibilities for the National Federation's tournament, which draws teams annually from all sections of the nation.

The Birmingham Federation, host to the convention, already has been awarded the midsouth tourney, and a date probably will be chosen tomorrow.

William T. Duggan, Cleveland sandlot enthusiast and N. A. B. F. president, will open the sessions formally tonight at a meeting of the directors.

'Gansett Special Sept. 16

The third renewal of the rich Narragansett Special will have its running Wednesday, September 16, at the Pawtucket track, General Manager Walter O'Hara announced today.

The Special, a handicap for three-year-olds and upward, will have an added value of $25,000 or $50,000. In event there are among the starters two or more horses which are winners in 1936 of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness, the Belmont, the American Derby or the Arlington Classic the added value will be raised to $50,000.

SCREEN MIXUPS

BY ART MOGER

Now you tell us!

Visit the three popular M & P theatres, the Rivoli, Roxbury; Embassy, Waltham, and Central Square, Cambridge. Here, tomorrow, Managers Newman, Hartnett, and Corkery are presenting "Tale of Two Cities," with some of the above drawn "Screen Mixups" stars. The co-feature at Rivoli is "If You Could Only Cook." At the Embassy—"Broadway Hostess" and the Central Square Theater—"Bar 20 Rides Again."

Unscramble the batch of mixed up letters near each cartoon likeness. When properly arranged they will spell the first and last names of the above drawn Hollywood players.

Mail your entire week's solutions to the Screen Mixups Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass. A complete set of six cartoons (Monday through Saturday inclusive) may win you an award, as offered by the Boston Evening American.

VALENTINES IN RADIO STARS' FAN MAIL

By N. F. T.

This is not only the day of St. Valentine, symbolic of affection and specific heart throbs, it is likewise the birthday of countless people. For our purpose here, having to do with microphones and radio activity, it should be mentioned that Jack Benny and Jessica Dragonnette are February 14 children of the world.

Needless to say, each year finds loudspeaker patrons

"N. F. T."

aplenty remembering Jack and Jessica. Many greetings are sincere and unusually attractive cards, while more than a few stress comedy. Benny swimming through a vast sea of Jell-o was one colorful bit of artwork that reached him last year, with most of the funloving listeners choosing to depict him in caricature, struggling to render "Love in Bloom" on his violin, Jessica, on the other hand, inspires the sentimental type of card, as evidences that her soloing is relished far and wide by the coast to coast air audience.

SELECTED SPARKLERS

Tomorrow afternoon (WNAC) when the peppy half hour of "Community Sparklers" talent takes to the local lanes at 2 o'clock, there will be a galaxy of bright boy and girl artists joining "Uncle Newt" for the radio merrymaking.

These lads and lassies have been selected by special studio auditions and hail from various neighborhoods in the Greater Boston area. Adrienne Duplaine, gifted songstress, just 10 years old and from Woburn, is the latest little artist to be accorded a featured spot.

Others who will take turns are: Mary McIsaac and Betty Gormley of Winchester and Woburn, Johnny Gerstad of Roslindale, Robert Rice of Medford, Donald Ross of Wellington, Mary Clarke of Jamaica Plain Charlotte Cohen of Revere, Virginia Newman of Everett and Frances Hall of Roxbury.

* * *

Igor Gorin will be heard with Janet Gaynor, Robert Taylor and Lewis Stone when "Hollywood Hotel," holds forth (WNAC) at 9 o'clock tonight.

* * *

Another of the lively youngsters air attractions (WCOP) slated for tomorrow morning, is the Juvenile Parade, stretching over the hour that begins at 10:30 and including a group of singing and dancing boys and girls.

HEADING FOR HOLLYWOOD

James Melton, star of the "College Prom" setting (WBZ) this evening at 8:30 p. m., is making arrangements whereby he will get time to be heard on this program, also his regular Saturday night broadcast to leave for Hollywood next month to start production on the movie version of Sigmund Romberg's "Desert Song" operetta, "The Desert Song."

Freeman F. Gosden and Charles J. Correll, who are "Amos 'n' Andy," will shake the Chicago icicles off their brows today and leave winter behind for a vacation in Palm Springs, Cal. Gosden and Correll term it a vacation, although they will continue to broadcast daily (WEEI) at the usual 7 o'clock time throughout their stay.

DEFENSE WEEK MEETING SET FOR TONIGHT

The Massachusetts Department of the Reserve Officers' Association is sponsoring a mass meeting for reserve officers at the Boston City Club tonight as the organization's part in the observance of National Defense Week, February 12 to 22.

Major-General Fox Conner, commanding general of the First Corps Area, will address the meeting.

Lieutenant-Colonel Francis T. Colby, FA Reserve, who served in the Belgian army, before the United States entered the war and then transferred to the regular forces until 1926, will be the feature speaker.

TALKS ON ETHIOPIA

He has made several trips to Africa and has spent considerable time in Ethiopia. He will tell of the people and country of Ethiopia, from a military viewpoint, and will show motion pictures he made while touring the war area.

The Military Order of the World War will join with the Reserve Officers in this observance.

TO TELL AIMS

Captain T. G. Holcombe, chairman of the National Defense Week program committee, will furnish all officers who attend with a complete report and confidential information gathered by the association and the planned program of this area for the coming year.

The goal of the Reserve Officers' Association is a Regular Army of 14,000 officers and 165,000 enlisted men; a National Guard of at least 210,000 officers and men, and a reserve officers' corps of 120,000, with the combat officers receiving two weeks' training every year and the others two weeks at least once in three years.

The Supreme Court's Opinion of a Free Press:

"Since informed public opinion is the most potent of all restraints upon misgovernment, the suppression or abridgement of the publicity afforded by a free press cannot be regarded otherwise than with grave concern. A free press stands as one of the great interpreters between the government and the people. To allow it to be fettered, is to fetter ourselves."

On the Man Who Can Bring the Answer

(From The Carpinteria Herald, California)

THE AIR, LITERALLY, has been filled with "cross-waves" in recent weeks with the contention as to whether the New Deal has answered this nation's prayer, Hon. Alfred E. Smith of New York, a life-long Democrat, says that it has not only not been the answer, but that it has been a nightmare. Senator Joe Robinson points out that Al Smith has changed his mind—and should hang his head in shame.

If Al Smith is smart he will acknowledge that while he was in hopes the New Deal would be the answer, he has been disappointed and is now convinced that it is a nightmare, and that he is taking advantage of the prerogative of a wise man, and has changed his mind regarding it.

However, we feel that all that is neither here nor there—that no Democrat would ever be able to bring in the answer and whether Joe Robinson and Al Smith are in accord as to the unworkableness of the New Deal is beside the question. President Roosevelt has had unhampered control of the affairs of this nation during the past three years and has been unable to make the New Deal work, so the people of the United States are seeking a Republican who can bring the answer to their prayers.

WE SINCERELY believe that the man who can bring the answer is none other than Governor Alf M. Landon of Kansas. Our reasons for so believing are many and the space we are allotted to tell the story is too small to enumerate them.

Almost anyone will agree that the whole trouble in this nation is a lack of confidence. Confidence will not return until the national government is placed on a sound basis. The government must be run within the limits of its income. Its policies must be stable so that a business men or an industrialist can know from day to day just what his government is going to demand of him. When business and industry get on their feet the relief problem will have been taken care of.

Alf Landon was elected Governor of Kansas in 1932 despite the Democratic landslide in that State because he won the confidence of the people of that State. He was re-elected in 1934 because he had justified that confidence.

WHAT HAS HE done to merit that confidence? The State of Kansas has not only lived within its income, but it has been able to reduce its expenses with the resultant reduction in taxes.

The State of Kansas (and this during the worst of the depression, or "emergency," which is the Democratic byword of excuse for wanton waste) has not only reduced taxes, but it has reduced its bonded indebtedness.

The State of Kansas has handled its relief problem in an equitable and efficient manner so that there has been less suffering in that State than in any other State in the Union despite the dust storms, the floods and the drouth.

GOVERNOR LANDON is chief of a great agricultural State and is much closer to the farm problem than is the bureaucracy in Washington. He has given the matter close study and the farmers can look with confidence to him to solve their problem.

There are other good men seeking the Republican nomination for President in the coming campaign, but we believe that the man who would head the ticket should be the man who can bring the answer to the nation's prayer in this time of distress—and that man, we believe, is GOVERNOR ALF M. LANDON OF KANSAS.

Lest We Forget!

Governor Talmadge of Georgia, in his recent Baltimore speech, speaking of the depression, said: "We are just about out, THANKS TO THE SUPREME COURT."

A whole bookful in a single sentence.

The people of this country have not yet acquired a sufficient time-perspective to realize that THE SUPREME COURT SAVED THIS COUNTRY FROM A REVOLUTION AS DRASTIC AS THAT WHICH HAS OCCURRED IN RUSSIA, GERMANY and ITALY.

The country from now on should be made conscious of the fact, by a campaign of enlightenment, that the decisions of the Supreme Court in the last two years preserved not only the Constitution to the people, but, what is of overwhelming importance, SAVED TO THE NATION THE PRECIOUS FIRST AMENDMENT OF THAT DOCUMENT GUARANTEEING OUR LIBERTIES.

Listen World!

By Elsie Robinson

I started to call this article "ARE WOMEN THE CRUELER SEX?" Then I changed it. What's the use of pretending when I know the answer so well. They ARE!

Elsie Robinson

And if you have any lingering doubts on the subject just repeat that remark to them—first firmly ensconcing yourself, dearie, under the living room davenport or, better still, that washington Monument. For the old boy who wrote "Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned" made one mistake. A scorned woman is just a ring-around-a-rosy game compared to the dame who hears the truth about herself. Which is why I advised that davenport.

Says Morris Markey in RED-BOOK:

"Nearly 3000 visitors a year go through the Swift packing plant in Chicago. Of them all, the proportion of women to men who want to witness the slaughtering is about two to one. Time after time, the men of the party will wait outside while the ladies go inside to see the blood fly."

This writer had an opportunity to witness a revolting demonstration of this fact during a performance of "The Last Mile"—a legitimate drama that concerned a condemned criminal's last hour before execution. The Death Row constituted the principal stage setting.

WOMEN ENTERTAINED

It was at no time a pleasant role, but it had been wisely advertised. The reviews were spectacular. The house was crammed with well-dressed women, avid to witness a spectacle so alien to their sheltered lives. And at first they were enthralled. Pity, disgust, indignation played across their excited faces, but the ladies sat silent, eagerly observing every detail. Then as the drab monotony of it began to press upon them—as was the author's intention—their interest flagged. They yawned, looked around, began to wiggle, twist, chatter.

Their escorts, to the contrary, were by now more deeply engrossed. They'd heard a lot about penitentiary life; here was a chance to get at the truth of the thing. Stern-eyed, silent, they followed each word and gesture. But with every second, their ladies' impatience increased.

Then came the final, grisly scene, before which the stoutest heart might well sicken. Inch by desperate inch, the frantic wretch was dragged across that awful interval . . . seeming, as he went, to shrink and crumble within his bag of clothes. And with horrified eyes, the men watched him go. In all that house, as far as I could see, not one man spoke. Many went gray-lipped—sweat breaking out in beads on their livid flesh.

GIGGLING CHORUS

But from the women there came a chattering, giggling chorus, as from a flock of starlings. There—Heaven help us and forgive us—passed the most awful indictment of our human progress. And the ladies powdered their noses as it passed!

Incidents? One might multiply them by the million! Everybody knows that in any open discussion of capital punishment the female vote is 10 to 1 against the male.

In spite of all touching tradition and pretty poetry to the contrary, there the horrid Truth stands—women ARE the crueler sex.

But why? Endless reasons have been given, but the sanest one seems to be the simple fact that women lack that mass imagination which permits them to be touched by suffering which lies outside their own private programs.

Imagination isn't something with which we are born—as with tonsils or toenails. It is something which seems to be grafted upon our average human nature by generations of social experience. And women lack generations of social experience.

Women have had domestic experience. They can feel intensely about their own families—the problems which affect themselves and their families. But they cannot as yet personalize those problems which do not come within their private concerns. Nor, lacking such emotion, can they as yet substitute the gesture of intelligence.

Unless the average woman feels with her heart, she's pretty apt to go blank with her mind.

Little Greece an upright nation,
Wants to pay his debt.
But his neighbors feel vexation
Mingled with regret.
"Strike me pink," the debtors bellow;
"Most astounding sort of fellow!"

In the diplomatic jumble
Debts are all taboo.
Wealthy welshers deftly fumble
When the bills are due.
Welcome, poor but honest, Greece!
May you grow in wealth and peace!

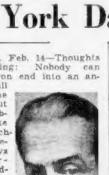
New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

New York, Feb. 14—Thoughts while strolling: Nobody can twist an apron end into an anguished ball like Pauline Lord. Or argue about a cabaret floor like Harry Richman. Somehow I always expect Norman Bel Geddes to be wearing a turban. Three famous Bucks—Gen. Pearl and Frank.



O. O. McIntyre

Look alikes: Premier Laval and Mayor La-Guardia. Boy meets girl: Dick Maney petting Rosie, the Hippedrome elephant. Add attractive redheads: Mrs. John Chapman, Lillian Gish's perpetual expression of timorous innocence is drama in itself. Trigger stuff—an Edward VIII cafe still ready.

For the Look Just the Same as 15 Years Ago Club: Tom Mix. From wonder child to wonder lady: Helen Hayes. And Charlie MacArthur has fulfilled his marriage promise to her. "One thing is certain, You'll never find life dull with me." How about a League for Those Once in Love With Cissie Loftus?

Mae Murray still gracefully waltzing the nights away. Broadway's best-known chop house lady—Helen Gallagher. Never knew a girl called Flo who wasn't a bit of a tomboy. Most expert of the derby wearers—the new British king. Old-timer's sigh: "The right world but the wrong generation."

Zither-playing names — Eva Symington and Spring Byington. Dusky Josephine Baker topsy turvies Paris for years but New York beckons only an indifferent shrug. Why is that? Those frosted cakes in Schrafft's wine down there me emotionally around 5 p. m. I want to buy like a hound!

F. Scott Fitzgerald, greying and chunking up, is reputedly one of the most difficult authors from whom editors may wangle stories these days. He is the literary symbol of an era—the era of the new generation — and editors continue to want stories of flask gin and courteous collegiates preceding ladies through windshields on midnight joy rides.

The public has acquired this Fitzgerald taste, too. But Fitzgerald has taken an elderly and naturally serious turn. Mellowed is the term. He wants to write mellowy, too. And if they won't let him he won't write at all. So there.

Chinatown is feeling the pinch of the times. Its opulence depends on tourists. I counted but four other diners outside of our party of three at the Port Arthur the other evening. There was a droop to the big and piano-box souvenir shops and we were the sole visitors.

But Chinatown has never been the same for me since the passing of its pseudo-mayor, Chuck Conners. Chuck, as a guide, ventilated exaggerations that made one scent opium, look about furtively for a flying tong hatchet and the slippery tread of local Fu Manchus. Chinatown has always been 80 per cent phoney, but with an efficient cicerone it provided a shudder or so for visiting cousins.

Frazier Hunt's ranch in Alberta, Canada, adjoins that of King Edward and it was in this communion that Hunt authored "The Bachelor Prince," a biography of the then Prince of Wales. No American likely has known the new King more informally.

He has ridden range with him, played poker in a lamp-lit ranch house and feasted on midnight beer and cheese while each discussed their jaunts to all parts of the world. But such contacts are now lost forever. The new King will never travel again, save to India, to receive his emperorship.

One of Hunt's prized possessions is an enlarged kodak of him and the prince, autographed "To Spike—E. P."

Major Bowes has become the most gifted man in America. It sometimes requires a truck working all day to carry the perishable stuff to hospitals and orphanages. From Wyoming, for instance, the other day came a 200-pound elk with instructions for Oscar to prepare it for 25 of the Major's friends. The same day 20 crates of grapefruit from Florida, etc., etc.

On page 266 of "Cornish of Scotland Yard" last night I read about Mr. Ingleby Oddie, Coroner of London. And ever since I've been peering down cellars and looking up smoke stacks muttering: "Who has the body, Mr. Ingleby Oddie?"

The Marry-Go-Round

CYNIC'S UNABRIDGED

CURIOSITY—A woman who is never curious. A man who doesn't think of himself as "unusual."

STRATEGY—That to which woman resorts when she wants her way. That to which a man resorts when he wants a woman OUT of the way.

PRIVATE SECRETARY—The human Shock Absorber, that relieves a man of all the jolts and jars and horseplay details of business life. The alibi for all his mistakes.

AGE OF INDISCRETION — That dangerous season of Indian summer, when a man's arteries begin to harden—and his heart and his head begin to soften.

CONCEIT — A man's delusion that the world thinks as much of him as he thinks of himself.

A woman's delusion that she can make the world think MORE of her than she thinks of herself.

BRIDGE TEA—A social occasion, at which 20 or more women can talk at once, without wrecking each other's train of thought.

INDEPENDENCE—That which develops a girl's character—but ruins her talent for keeping the buttons on a man's clothes.

BICKERING—A form of domestic sniping. The weakening of the marriage tie bit by bit—or scrap by scrap.

CUTE—A term of enthusiastic praise, used by debutantes to describe everything from the latest screen idol to the Empire State Building.

That which any normal woman would rather be than beautiful—or even than President.

SPRING—The season of love for the young. (See: pain-in-the-heart.) The housecleaning, redecorating or apartment-hunting "winter of discontent" for the married. (See: pain-in-the-neck.)

Military Court-Martials

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

THE GLOBE TROTTER OF HEARST METROTONE NEWS

The court-martial of a high ranking officer of the Army or Navy is a rare enough occurrence to make real and interesting news.

Edwin C. Hill

Such is the trial scheduled in Washington for Feb. 17, involving a Colonel McMullen, of the staff of the Judge Advocate General, who is charged with accepting money for legal services in a matter having to do with governmental business.

The most prominent court-martial of recent times was that of Brigadier-General William D. Mitchell in 1926, although there was much more ado over the near court-martial of Major General Smedley D. Butler in 1931. Comparatively recent, too, were the cases of Lieutenant-Colonel James T. Watson and Captain Edmund G. Chamberlain.

Colonel Watson was acting commander of Fort Jay on Governor's Island, in New York Harbor, on the day of the arrival of the President of Haiti. The President raised a salute of 21 guns and had to wait fifteen minutes to get them. Whereupon Major General Summerall ordered a court-martial.

THE CHAMBERLAIN CASE

Captain Chamberlain's troubles grew out of a story he told of a battle in the air with German planes. He was an officer in the Marine Corps and, on a visit to the British front in 1918, related how he had brought down several Germans, landed his own riddled plane between the lines, took a German prisoner and brought to safety a wounded Frenchmate.

The British were thinking of bestowing on him the Victoria Cross, but after nine months of investigation decided that his story was untrue. He was dismissed from the service, and, to no avail, carried his appeal from the verdict as high as the United States Supreme Court.

One must go back to the Civil War for a major wartime court-martial, that of Major-General Fitz-John Porter, who, on January 21, 1863, was found guilty on three counts of disobedience of orders, "cashiered and forever disqualified from holding any office of trust or profit under the government of the United States."

Porter to the day of his death never stopped fighting for the vindication of his name, even though Grant himself had belatedly exonerated him, and President Cleveland, by an act of Congress, had restored him to his rank. He died in May, 1901, and in his will enjoined his children to devote themselves to the defense of his name.

Fitz-John Porter, a brilliant and experienced officer of the regular army, was a major-general of volunteers, commanding the left wing of General Pope's Army of Virginia at the second Battle of Bull Run, August, 1862. Facing Pope's 70,000 men was Lee with 50,000, and the government in Washington was anticipating a decisive victory to atone for the first Bull Run of the previous year.

In the early maneuvering Stonewall Jackson, by one of his famous forced marches, got through Thoroughfare Gap with 25,000 men and behind Pope's army. This compelled the Union commander to turn his army, Pope ordered Porter to move up and attack Jackson on August 29; but, unknown to Pope, Lee and Longstreet also passed through the Gap early on the same day to join forces with Jackson.

DISREGARDED ORDER

Realizing the size of the force against him, Porter used his discretionary powers and devoted the day to keeping Longstreet in his place. The battle on August 29th was a stalemate.

Pope ordered a general attack on the 30th in pursuit of the enemy. Fitz-John Porter's advance was made with vigor and courage, but Pope's army was repulsed with tremendous losses.

Pope blamed Porter, and the strongest charge against him was failure to obey the "4:30 P. M. order" of August 29th calling for an attack on the enemy's flank and rear.

McDowell, another corps commander, testified against Porter, but withheld messages from Porter which told him of the Confederate reinforcements and which proved that as late as 6 P. M. of the 29th Porter had not received Pope's "4:30 order" to attack. When the Confederate record became available and McDowell produced the messages Porter had sent him, Porter was vindicated.

MITCHELL AND BUTLER

General Mitchell's criticism of the air policies of the Army and Navy in 1926 brought him a loss of pay and allowance for five years, but he resigned his commission. General Butler's court-martial, due to a speech in which he termed Mussolini "a bit-and-run driver," was called off by President Hoover after the general had expressed his regrets, and he was reprimanded by Secretary of the Navy Adams, the Marines coming under the Navy Department.

To Arms, Ladies!

By Benjamin DeCasseres

Attention, Ladies! — You, too, are to be standardized.

The Roosevelt administration is about to rescind your immemorial and divine right to dress as you please and to change your mind as well as your hats.

You will find these astounding matters outlined in the free government magazine, "The Consumer," issued by the Consumers' Division of the Department of Labor.

The editor of "The Consumer" is a male, Professor Walter Hale Hamilton, but he cannot be held astray, for is he not under the severely regimented glance of Madame Secretary Perkins, a famous authority on hats and how to talk through them?

As an opener, "The Consumer" fires this dainty bit of grapeshot at the ladies:

"It is quite possible, and greatly to be desired, that the time will come when energies of women shall be CANALIZED INTO MORE PURPOSEFUL ACTIVITIES THAN THE INTRICACIES OF PERSONAL ADORNMENT."

RUSSIAN SMOCKS DUE?

Does Dear Hamilton, and incidentally the administration, mean that our ladies will have to give up their pursuit of the beautiful in adornment and whoop it up in Philadelphia next June dressed in Russian smocks?

Growing suddenly intellectual, the editor of "The Consumer," now quotes Schrafft's (evidently finding nothing in Andrew Jackson to bolster him up) as follows:

"The head comes before the hat. Allow me to furnish the interior of my head as I please and I shall put up with a hat like everybody else's."

Here is another paragraph that reveals why they burn so much midnight oil in the Brain Trust barracks in Washington:

"If women didn't spend so much time TRYING on hats, they wouldn't have to pay so much for them. Milliners could have smaller shops and cut down their overhead by employing fewer salesgirls."

A sinister piece of advice in order to RULE THE ARMY OF UNEMPLOYED? Or maybe I'm too cynical.

Now the administration's fashion storm centre grows more militant:

"Under the prevailing structure of industry, it is to the interests of all concerned TO STIMULATE NEW STYLE OBSOLESCENCE."

So, floating draperies, rippling sleeves and the graceful hip cascades are all to be relegated to the horse-and-buggy days!

Variety in women's styles is to be put under the ban like variety in potato packing.

Suddenly changing his style from the rhetorical to the staccato, the Worth of the New Deal thunders:

"RULES OF THE FASHION GAME NEED REVISION!"

Does this presage a Secretary of Ladies' fashions, to sit in at the White House Cabinet meetings between the Secretary of the Treasury, who is at present running a domestic charge-account government, and the Secretary of State, who is running a foreign charge-account government?

"Who," lunges The Consumer magazine, "can compute the waste of time and energy for women, whose shopping for clothes is never done? Stores advertise sizes out of fashion or courtesy."

Stubby-stout sizes are hidden. And the new ruling from the latest screen idol to the Empire State Building.

Then which any normal woman would rather be than beautiful—or even than President.
